Dixie Demos May Defeat Rules Plan

House Chairman Calls For Solid Stand By South

WASHINGTON (AP)—Rep. Howard W. Smith, chairman of the House Rules Committee, said Saturday that eight or ten representatives may hold the key to the success of Speaker Sam Rayburn's plan to enlarge the committee.

Rayburn last week won approval in a Democratic caucus of his plan. Its aim is to add enough "liberal" members so that committee conservatives can not block President Kennedy's legislative program.

WIN POSSIBLE

Smith told The Jackson Daily News that "if we get all the Southern votes and the votes that have been promised to us we will win."

The veteran Virginia Democrat said he expects a House vote by Wednesday. The House Republican policy committee voted to oppose the plan but some Republicans have announced they will support it.

The present Rules Committee contains eight Democrats and four Republicans. Two Democrats, Smith and Rep. William Colmer of Mississippi, have frequently joined with the four Republicans to block "liberal" legislation from going to the House floor.

Under Rayburn's plan, two Democrats and one Republican would be added.

Smith said indications from "a few Southern Democrats" that they back Rayburn is "very serious to us." This thing is going to turn on the difference of eight or ten votes, he said.

Rayburn began his move to enlarge the committee soon after Congress convened. Then he sought to remove Colmer from the committee in what Southerners said was to be punishment for supporting the unpledged electors in last fall's presidential race.

Rayburn finally shifted again to what some congressmen said was a compromise.

Smith said the latest plan is the

19 On Bus Found By Rescuers

SOURIS, Prince Edward Island (AP)—Snowplow crews Saturday rescued 18 high school students and a driver marooned overnight in a school bus on a North Shore road covered by snow drifts reaching the level of the telephone wires. All were reported safe and well.

The bus was found stalled in a drift about 12 miles west of this fishing town on the Gulf of St. Lawrence after the worst blizzard of the winter.

Though temperatures were near zero, the bus was new and tight and the driver, Stirling Burke of Fortune, was able to run the heater periodically. And the boys and girls were dressed for rough weather.

Twenty - four children were aboard when Burke headed out of Souris at 2 p.m. Friday in the rising storm to deliver them to their homes along his 54-mile route.

A half-dozen had been dropped off when further progress was blocked at a point several miles from the nearest farm house and about eight miles from a telephone.

When it failed to return by 2 a. m., another plow was dispatched on the same route, battling snow and 90-mile-an-hour winds that stalled sea and air transportation and delayed trains. The total fall was 18 inches.

The bus was dug out and, with a plow breaking trail, crawled along and delivered the rest of the children—right hungry after more than 20 hours aboard—to their homes.

The storm took at least one life. A. T. Ceretti, 81, died on his way to a hospital after a snowplow crew found him in a marooned car near Bedeque.

Cold And Clear Weather Today

Still another hard freeze is due in the Twin Cities tonight after low's in the 20's for two straight nights.

Fair, sunny skies will prevail during the day with the high expected to be near 45. Tonight, the mercury will dip to 28.

The high Saturday was a mild 41 degrees and Federal Aviation at Selman Field recorded an overnight low yesterday of 28.

Winds will be southeasterly today from six to 12 miles per hour.

DOUBLE WRECK

Man Killed, Wife Hurt In Mishap

CROSSETT (Special) — A 73-year-old Hamburg, Ark., man was killed and his wife critically hurt late Saturday when their automobile was knocked into a concrete bridge abutment south of Hamburg.

G. B. Swan, driver of the car, died in St. Francis hospital in Monroe. His wife, 71, was in a very critical condition. She is the sister of U.S. Congressman W. F. Norrell of Monticello.

SECOND WRECK

And, with fate riding against Mrs. Swan, the ambulance which was being used to transport her from Crossett to Monroe had a wreck.

Mrs. Swan was thrown into the front of the ambulance when it struck a car driven by a Bastrop Negro, Benny Harp, 52.

According to Mrs. Swan's daughter, Mrs. Bob Pilgram of Crossett, who was in the ambulance, the siren was on and the signal light was blinking as it approached the rear of the auto.

Both vehicles slid 25 feet into a car parked in front of a washateria. The car was knocked into the washateria causing about $100 in damages. The car belongs to Ned Stephens, 21.

Ambulance driver Huey F. Rist said he was going approximately 55 miles per hour.

No charges were filed in the Bastrop wreck pending investigation.

Legislature Awaits Call From Davis

BATON ROUGE (AP)—An administration leader said Saturday he doubted the Louisiana Legislature, standing by to resume its integration fight, would return next week.

The lawmaker said he and others were prepared to go back to work on short notice but there was no indication from Gov. Jimmie H. Davis they would be recalled immediately.

The legislator, close to Davis, asked that his name not be used.

STANDBY SESSION

A fourth straight special session of the legislature began Jan. 9. then adjourned until Feb. 13. The 30-day session ends the following day.

The session was advertised in advance as a standby session to cope with any segregation problems that might arise.

In Franklin meanwhile, Lt. Gov. C. C. Aycock entered a hospital for what his wife called a checkup and rest. Mrs. Aycock said her husband was not ill.

Mrs. Aycock said the lieutenant governor was not receiving visitors and did not have a telephone in his room so he would be able to have a complete rest.

The state awaited a ruling by the U.S. 5th Circuit Court of Appeals on an appeal by East Baton Rouge and St. Helena Parish school boards from a U.S. district court summary judgment in favor of the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People. The Negro group seeks public school integration in East Baton Rouge Parish here and nearby St. Helena Parish.

Kennedy Offers New York Aid To End Strike

NEW YORK (AP) — President Kennedy's one-day-old administration offered Saturday to lend a hand toward settling a 12-day rail and ferry walkout that has hit 100,000 commuters.

Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller said Labor Secretary Arthur Goldberg telephoned him from Washington and "offered his cooperation" in working toward a settlement.

Khrushchev Sent Reply By President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy Saturday night told Soviet Premier Khrushchev "we are ready and anxious to cooperate" with all who genuinely seek a peaceful world."

"Speaking on behalf of the government and the people of the United States of America," Kennedy added, "I can assure you that the efforts of the United States government will be directed toward this imperative goal."

REPLIES TO CABLE

Kennedy wired his message to Khrushchev in reply to an equally cordially worded cable of congratulations received from Khrushchev on the occasion of Kennedy's inauguration Friday.

The White House announcement came after Khrushchev called in U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson for a two-hour conference at the Kremlin in Moscow.

Presumably, Khrushchev outlined to Thompson his ideas for a meeting with Kennedy. The Soviet premier has urged a summit conference in the spring.

Khrushchev, who has repeatedly castigated former President Eisenhower since last May's U2 incident and summit blow-up, has been holding forth the idea of negotiating with Eisenhower's successor on outstanding East-West issues.

Kennedy replied after consulting with his new secretary of state, Dean Rusk. Presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger made public the Kennedy response as it was dispatched to the U. S. Embassy in Moscow for delivery to Khrushchev.

Probe Due In Trunk Body Case

JACKSON, Minn. (AP) — The ex-Marine husband of a San Diego woman whose body was found stuffed into a trunk held in a Chicago express shed took an overdose of sleeping pills, delaying extensive questioning Saturday.

Edward Albrecht, 24, who lived in Lakefield, Minn., before joining the Marines, was under police guard in a Jackson hospital.

Sheriff Harry Tordsen said Albrecht told him during a brief questioning period that he had taken 50 sleeping pills Friday night because he was worried about his wife.

Police found the body of his wife, Ann, 24, Friday in a trunk stored in a Chicago express depot. Albrecht said he had had domestic troubles with his wife and had last seen her Dec. 20.

Albrecht was not questioned Saturday about his wife's disappearance and the discovery of her body. The sheriff's office said he was still groggy from the overdose and probably would not be well enough for detailed questioning until Sunday or Monday.

Bailey New Chairman Of Demo Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy started John M. Bailey as Democratic national chairman Saturday with a promise of full cooperation by the White House in political matters.

In his first public speech since his inaugural Friday, Kennedy praised Bailey, a Hartford, Conn., attorney, as one who knows the problems of the party at the state and national level.

ELECTED TO POST

The President spoke shortly after the Democratic National Committee unanimously had elected Bailey—Kennedy's choice—to succeed Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. Jackson, who had served as chairman since July 16, resigned to devote all his time to his Senate duties.

Bailey, who for the last 16 years has been Connecticut state chairman, has been working with Jackson here for several weeks.

Two Suspects Are Held For $9,000 Theft

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—Two men were under arrest Saturday in the $9,000 robbery of Kate Gindulis, an artist, who kept the family savings in a suitcase at her home because she did not trust banks.

Also in custody is her attractive 17-year-old daughter, Liana, a waitress. The girl was taken into custody at Tulsa, Okla., with her boy friend, William G. Phipps, 19, who had attracted attention by flashing currency of large denominations.

Under arrest here was Austin Shannon, 22, who told police in a signed statement that the girl had told him and Phipps about the money cache. He added the girl had no part in the robbery and did not know about it.

He said that although Liana had helped them disguise themselves for the robbery, she was led to believe they were going to rob a grocery store.

Mrs. Gindulis, who said some of the money represented income from her paintings, was bound and gagged by two men who entered her home Friday.

MAJOR COLD WAVE

Dixie Gets Hard Freeze Warnings

By United Press International

The first major cold wave of 1961 spread rapidly over the eastern two-thirds of the nation Saturday, reaching deep into Dixie with its icy blasts and threatening the Florida citrus and vegetable crops.

Even the winter playground of Miami felt the frigid air, recording a low of 39 degrees before the mercury climbed to 63 degrees later in the day.

The U.S. Weather Bureau, meanwhile, issued hard freeze warnings for all gulf states except Texas, with frost or freeze warnings expected throughout most of the Florida peninsula by sunrise Sunday.

FLOOD STRIKES

Soaring temperatures, however, caused hardship at Anchor Point in southeast Alaska. The Red Cross and civil defense aided 50 families stranded and driven from their homes in the area by flood waters reaching depths of six feet. Heavy rains and warm temperatures caused ice and water to flood into homesteads.

Highways also were plagued by snow and mud slides, and a snow slide cut rail travel to Seward. Communication lines also were threatened by snow, cascading down on highways.

The arctic air hugging the nation east of the Rockies followed a deadly blizzard that cut across the East on inaugural day.

The toll from the storm, which dropped a heavy blanket of white from the Carolinas to Maine after

'Dead Man' Found To Be Alive

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—A 78-year old man who was declared dead at a hospital and taken to the county morgue where he was found to be alive, remained critically ill and in a coma Saturday.

Leo Happel was found on the floor of his rented room Friday night by a police officer who had been asked by a brother of Happel to break in the closed door.

Officers Richard Barnett and Robert Bellows took the unconscious man to County Emergency Hospital. There Dr. John McAnlis, a physician on duty, examined Happel and detecting no heart beat or breathing, signed a form certifying that he was dead. The officers then took Happel to the morgue.

When a blanket was lifted from Happel's face, the officers and morgue attendants noticed movement in his throat. Then they saw his chest moving although they could not detect a pulse. The

UNDER NEW GEORGIA PLAN

Schools Offered Option

ATLANTA (AP) — The Vandiver program, stripped of its legal jargon and complex phrases, would have the effect of letting cities keep their schools open — and integrated.

It seems certain that if Gov. Ernest Vandiver's legislation wins approval that is exactly what will happen in Atlanta next September. School leaders in the capital city, with desegregation ordered, already are breathing sighs of relief.

Conversely, small towns or rural areas could vote to close their schools when or if they faced a court desegregation decree. If they decided after a few months that schools with some integration are better than none at all, they could vote to reopen them.

That is the local option embodied in the governor's plans to maintain public education insofar as possible in Georgia. However, a private memo in the hands of administration legislative leaders says:

"This should not be called a local option bill but should be referred to as a local suspending or school-closing bill."

There was no explanation for the choice of descriptive words. Regardless, the option is there and spelled out. The memo says that large metropolitan areas "will not probably close their schools."

The bill does not mention segregation or integration. Here's how it would work:

1. A school board could by resolution of a majority of its members call an election on the question of suspending schools.

2. The calling of such an election would be mandatory when the board is presented a petition signed by at least 15 per cent of the registered voters in the district.

3. If a majority votes for suspension, the board would be required to close the schools.

4. Principals, teachers and other personnel would continue to draw salary until they got other jobs or their contracts expired.

5. A system with closed schools would continue to receive state funds.

6. An election on reopening would be attained by the same method.

7. A board would not be required to call a second election on either closing or opening if one election already has been held in the school year.

8. When schools are closed in any local system, the compulsory attendance law becomes invalid there.

Of course, cities which can't go for integration can vote on closing just the same as small towns or rural areas. But integration isn't a curse word in the cities as it is in the country. Observers have expressed belief that no election would be called in Atlanta and that if it were the vote would be for open schools.

FAMED GORILLA DIES

Zoo Loses Holder Of World's Record

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bamboo, holder of the world's record for longevity among gorillas in captivity, died Saturday at the Philadelphia Zoo. He was the zoo's leading animal citizen for more than 33 years.

Bamboo's long-time next door neighbor, Massa, runner up for the longevity title the last 10 years, immediately was proclaimed king of the zoo's monkey house. Massa is 30.

Bamboo died after a short illness with a coronary ailment.

Despite predictions he would live only a few months, Bamboo set a longevity record for in excess of any established by a gorilla in captivity. Gorillas rarely survive long in captivity.

The zoo's success with Bamboo set a pattern for caring for the big apes and they now are seen in many zoos. In 1956, the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums presented Freeman M. Sheely, the zoo's director, with a citation commending the Zoological Society of Philadelphia for its outstanding success with gorillas.

In his heyday Bamboo weighed 435 pounds. He was 6 feet and had a reach with arms outstretched of eight feet. He has not weighed more than 350 pounds for at least 10 years.

Oaths Given Officials Of New Regime

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration opened for business Saturday as the entire Cabinet was confirmed, then sworn in, and the new President ordered more and better food given to the needy.

Chief Justice Earl Warren administered the oath to President Kennedy's 10 Cabinet members in a body about three hours after the Senate confirmed their nominations with hardly a dissent.

Adlai Stevenson, who tried for the presidency twice himself, was sworn in as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. He may sit with the Cabinet when Kennedy invites him to do so.

REDEEMS PROMISE

Kennedy, whose order broadening the food distribution program started redeeming a campaign promise, looked on as the black-robed Warren gave the oath to the Cabinet officers standing in a semicircle in the gold-and-cream East Room of the White House.

One of those inducted was Robert F. Kennedy, the President's brother and now his attorney general. Robert Kennedy's nomination was the only one to draw a "no" vote in the Senate. His only opponent was Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., who challenged his qualifications.

Congratulating his Cabinet chiefs, and Stevenson, Kennedy said:

"They are all patriotic men who are devoted to the welfare of the country, and they will meet their responsibilities with high distinction."

Kennedy also thanked Warren for "all your good work" on the Supreme Court to which Warren, a Republican, was named by former President Eisenhower.

Injured Bishop Transferred To N.O. Hospital

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel, who was injured in Baton Rouge Oct. 9, was transferred to a New Orleans hospital by ambulance Saturday.

A physician who, in a car, followed the prelate on the 1-hour-45-minute, 85-mile trip from Our Lady of the Lake Hospital to Hotel Dieu, said Rummel was "doing very well."

Asked about his trip, the 84-year-old Rummel said, "We had a very nice trip. There were no bumps."

Newsmen said the archbishop looked well, but apparently had lost considerable weight. No photos were permitted either on departure in Baton Rouge or on arrival in New Orleans.

Riding in the ambulance with the patient were a nurse and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph C. Vath, archdiocesan vice chancellor, who has been in Baton Rouge with the archbishop since the accident.

The physician said it was not known how long the archbishop would be kept in the hospital before being returned to his residence.

He fractured a leg and an arm and received a facial cut when he stumbled over a sidewalk. He had gone to Baton Rouge to dedicate St. George's Church.

Khrushchev Sent Reply By President

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy Saturday night told Soviet Premier Khrushchev "we are ready and anxious to cooperate" with all who genuinely seek a peaceful world."

"Speaking on behalf of the government and the people of the United States of America," Kennedy added, "I can assure you that the efforts of the United States government will be directed toward this imperative goal."

REPLIES TO CABLE

Kennedy wired his message to Khrushchev in reply to an equally cordially worded cable of congratulations received from Khrushchev on the occasion of Kennedy's inauguration Friday.

The White House announcement came after Khrushchev called in U. S. Ambassador Llewellyn E. Thompson for a two-hour conference at the Kremlin in Moscow.

Presumably, Khrushchev outlined to Thompson his ideas for a meeting with Kennedy. The Soviet premier has urged a summit conference in the spring.

Khrushchev, who has repeatedly castigated former President Eisenhower since last May's U2 incident and summit blow-up, has been holding forth the idea of negotiating with Eisenhower's successor on outstanding East-West issues.

Kennedy replied after consulting with his new secretary of state, Dean Rusk. Presidential press secretary Pierre Salinger made public the Kennedy response as it was dispatched to the U. S. Embassy in Moscow for delivery to Khrushchev.

Kennedy's message, which was addressed to Soviet President Le-

Probe Due In Trunk Body Case

JACKSON, Minn. (AP) — The ex-Marine husband of a San Diego woman whose body was found stuffed into a trunk held in a Chicago express shed took an overdose of sleeping pills, delaying extensive questioning Saturday.

Edward Albrecht, 24, who lived in Lakefield, Minn., before joining the Marines, was under police guard in a Jackson hospital.

Sheriff Harry Tordsen said Albrecht told him during a brief questioning period that he had taken 50 sleeping pills Friday night because he was worried about his wife.

Police found the body of his wife, Ann, 24, Friday in a trunk stored in a Chicago express depot. Albrecht said he had had domestic troubles with his wife and had last seen her Dec. 20.

Albrecht was not questioned Saturday about his wife's disappearance and the discovery of her body. The sheriff's office said he was still groggy from the overdose and probably would not be well enough for detailed questioning until Sunday or Monday.

Bailey New Chairman Of Demo Party

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy started John M. Bailey as Democratic national chairman Saturday with a promise of full cooperation by the White House in political matters.

In his first public speech since his inaugural Friday, Kennedy praised Bailey, a Hartford, Conn., attorney, as one who knows the problems of the party at the state and national level.

ELECTED TO POST

The President spoke shortly after the Democratic National Committee unanimously had elected Bailey—Kennedy's choice—to succeed Sen. Henry M. Jackson, D-Wash. Jackson, who had served as chairman since July 16, resigned to devote all his time to his Senate duties.

Bailey, who for the last 16 years has been Connecticut state chairman, has been working with Jackson here for several weeks.

Two Suspects Are Held For $9,000 Theft

KANSAS CITY, Kan. (AP)—Two men were under arrest Saturday in the $9,000 robbery of Kate Gindulis, an artist, who kept the family savings in a suitcase at her home because she did not trust banks.

Also in custody is her attractive 17-year-old daughter, Liana, a waitress. The girl was taken into custody at Tulsa, Okla., with her boy friend, William G. Phipps, 19, who had attracted attention by flashing currency of large denominations.

Under arrest here was Austin Shannon, 22, who told police in a signed statement that the girl had told him and Phipps about the money cache. He added the girl had no part in the robbery and did not know about it.

He said that although Liana had helped them disguise themselves for the robbery, she was led to believe they were going to rob a grocery store.

Mrs. Gindulis, who said some of the money represented income from her paintings, was bound and gagged by two men who entered her home Friday.

MAJOR COLD WAVE

Dixie Gets Hard Freeze Warnings

By United Press International

The first major cold wave of 1961 spread rapidly over the eastern two-thirds of the nation Saturday, reaching deep into Dixie with its icy blasts and threatening the Florida citrus and vegetable crops.

Even the winter playground of Miami felt the frigid air, recording a low of 39 degrees before the mercury climbed to 63 degrees later in the day.

The U.S. Weather Bureau, meanwhile, issued hard freeze warnings for all gulf states except Texas, with frost or freeze warnings expected throughout most of the Florida peninsula by sunrise Sunday.

FLOOD STRIKES

Soaring temperatures, however, caused hardship at Anchor Point in southeast Alaska. The Red Cross and civil defense aided 50 families stranded and driven from their homes in the area by flood waters reaching depths of six feet. Heavy rains and warm temperatures caused ice and water to flood into homesteads.

Highways also were plagued by snow and mud slides, and a snow slide cut rail travel to Seward. Communication lines also were threatened by snow, cascading down on highways.

The arctic air hugging the nation east of the Rockies followed a deadly blizzard that cut across the East on inaugural day.

'Dead Man' Found To Be Alive

MILWAUKEE, Wis. (AP)—A 78-year old man who was declared dead at a hospital and taken to the county morgue where he was found to be alive, remained critically ill and in a coma Saturday.

Leo Happel was found on the floor of his rented room Friday night by a police officer who had been asked by a brother of Happel to break in the closed door.

Officers Richard Barnett and Robert Bellows took the unconscious man to County Emergency Hospital. There Dr. John McAnlis, a physician on duty, examined Happel and detecting no heart beat or breathing, signed a form certifying that he was dead. The officers then took Happel to the morgue.

When a blanket was lifted from Happel's face, the officers and morgue attendants noticed movement in his throat. Then they saw his chest moving although they could not detect a pulse. The

FAMED GORILLA DIES

Zoo Loses Holder Of World's Record

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Bamboo, holder of the world's record for longevity among gorillas in captivity, died Saturday at the Philadelphia Zoo. He was the zoo's leading animal citizen for more than 33 years.

Bamboo's long-time next door neighbor, Massa, runner up for the longevity title the last 10 years, immediately was proclaimed king of the zoo's monkey house. Massa is 30.

Bamboo died after a short illness with a coronary ailment.

Despite predictions he would live only a few months, Bamboo set a longevity record for in excess of any established by a gorilla in captivity. Gorillas rarely survive long in captivity.

The zoo's success with Bamboo set a pattern for caring for the big apes and they now are seen in many zoos. In 1956, the American Association of Zoological Parks and Aquariums presented Freeman M. Sheely, the zoo's director, with a citation commending the Zoological Society of Philadelphia for its outstanding success with gorillas.

In his heyday Bamboo weighed 435 pounds. He was 6 feet and had a reach with arms outstretched of eight feet. He has not weighed more than 350 pounds for at least 10 years.

Oaths Given Officials Of New Regime

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Kennedy administration opened for business Saturday as the entire Cabinet was confirmed, then sworn in, and the new President ordered more and better food given to the needy.

Chief Justice Earl Warren administered the oath to President Kennedy's 10 Cabinet members in a body about three hours after the Senate confirmed their nominations with hardly a dissent.

Adlai Stevenson, who tried for the presidency twice himself, was sworn in as U.S. ambassador to the United Nations. He may sit with the Cabinet when Kennedy invites him to do so.

REDEEMS PROMISE

Kennedy, whose order broadening the food distribution program started redeeming a campaign promise, looked on as the black-robed Warren gave the oath to the Cabinet officers standing in a semicircle in the gold-and-cream East Room of the White House.

One of those inducted was Robert F. Kennedy, the President's brother and now his attorney general. Robert Kennedy's nomination was the only one to draw a "no" vote in the Senate. His only opponent was Sen. Gordon Allott, R-Colo., who challenged his qualifications.

Congratulating his Cabinet chiefs, and Stevenson, Kennedy said:

"They are all patriotic men who are devoted to the welfare of the country, and they will meet their responsibilities with high distinction."

Kennedy also thanked Warren for "all your good work" on the Supreme Court to which Warren, a Republican, was named by former President Eisenhower.

Injured Bishop Transferred To N.O. Hospital

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — New Orleans Archbishop Joseph Francis Rummel, who was injured in Baton Rouge Oct. 9, was transferred to a New Orleans hospital by ambulance Saturday.

A physician who, in a car, followed the prelate on the 1-hour-45-minute, 85-mile trip from Our Lady of the Lake Hospital to Hotel Dieu, said Rummel was "doing very well."

Asked about his trip, the 84-year-old Rummel said, "We had a very nice trip. There were no bumps."

Newsmen said the archbishop looked well, but apparently had lost considerable weight. No photos were permitted either on departure in Baton Rouge or on arrival in New Orleans.

Riding in the ambulance with the patient were a nurse and the Rt. Rev. Msgr. Joseph C. Vath, archdiocesan vice chancellor, who had been in Baton Rouge with the archbishop since the accident.

The physician said it was not known how long the arcibishop would be kept in the hospital before being returned to his residence.

He fractured a leg and an arm and received a facial cut when he stumbled over a sidewalk. He had gone to Baton Rouge to dedicate St. George's Church.

The blizzard moved out to sea Saturday after barrelling through eastern Canada and Newfoundland, leaving 20 foot drifts and widespread damage in the wake of its fury. But on Prince Edward Island, a school bus with its driver and 15 students aboard was found safe Saturday after the vehicle had been lost in the storm for almost 24 hours.

Transportation was stymied throughout the East and New England as snow removal crews battled through drift - clogged streets and roads to stranded autos and some small isolated communities.

Railroad and air traffic was reported nearly normal, however.

Numerous fires also broke out in the snow-choked area, where ice, high winds and bitter cold make it difficult for fire-fighters to battle the flames. At Port Chester, N.Y., 200 persons were made homeless temporarily after about 200 firemen fought about five hours to bring under control a blaze which swept through a row of houses and stores.

The bone-chilling cold also forced temperatures to freezing levels as deep as central Louisiana and southwest Texas.

Poughkeepsie, N.Y., was probably the coldest spot in the nation Saturday, recording a 30-degree below zero temperature shortly after sunrise. It was even colder at Poughkeepsie than at the U.S. South Pole station, where the low was 27 below zero, the weather bureau said.

In addition, Poughkeepsie had 19 inches of snow, and the city was forced to proclaim a state of emergency as it battled the winter elements.

"It is the thing the speaker was trying to do all the time," he added.

"The effort to purge Colmer raised so much violent objections it was dropped and he came back with his original proposition to me, to pack the rules committee.

Smith rejected all three moves.

He said "committee packing" would in effect purge Colmer, second ranking Democrat on the committee.

It was designed, he said, to give what he called the left wing element in Congress a free load. That is not for sound, conservative Southern Democrats, he added.

Colmer is opposed to the committee packing move, Smith reported.

"He didn't ask them to stop purging him. Colmer doesn't weaken. He stands by his guns. I'd like to see the Solid South have the courage to do the same," Smith said.

Colmer, a veteran of 28 years in the House, was one of the four Mississippi Congressmen who forsook the party to support the unpledged slate.

This unpledged group won Mississippi's eight electoral college seat and six in Alabama.

with Rusk and Undersecretary of State Chester Bowles. Rusk and Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara were called for what looked like a day-long session Monday.

Other Cabinet officers installed: Postmaster General J. Edward Day, Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman, Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges, Secretary of Labor Arthur J. Goldberg, Secretary of Welfare Abraham Ribicoff, and Secretary of the Interior Stewart L. Udall.

President Kennedy, seeming to thrive on the frantic pace of the inauguration celebration, rose at 8 a. m. after little more than four hours of sleep.

By 9:15, Kennedy was in conference with his top staff aides and not long afterward the White House issued Kennedy's first executive order.

It directed the new secretary of agriculture, Orville L. Freeman, to broaden the food distribution program with funds already on hand. This food, from government-held stocks acquired under the price support program, goes free of charge to impoverished families in areas of chronic unemployment.

Thus—less than 24 hours after taking office—Kennedy moved to fulfill a pledge he made during the presidential campaign.

In a busy day, President Kennedy also:

—Received a briefing on the latest intelligence reports dealing with the international situation. This confidential briefing was supplied by Gen. Andrew J. Goodpaster, who had served former President Eisenhower in that capacity. The White House said Goodpaster will stay on for an indefinite period.

—Dropped in on a meeting of the Democratic National Committee and promised to cooperate "in every possible way" in future political action.

—Named Charles Murphy, who had served as chief legal adviser to former President Harry S. Truman, as undersecretary of agriculture.

The President, shunning hat or outercoat, made a point to go out to the driveway to greet the man who occupied the White House eight years ago.

Truman, who once opposed Kennedy's bid for his party's nomination, conducted Kennedy on a tour of the White House and they chatted over coffee in the upstairs living quarters.

The White House said about four million persons now are receiving surplus food under the distressed areas relief program.

The Kennedy order is expected to increase the number who benefit, as well as the amount, variety and quality of the food they get.

Pierre Salinger, the new White House press secretary, said it is impossible to say at this time how much the added food distribution will cost. Another Kennedy aide told a news conference the government now is spending about $36 million a month on this program.

At present, Salinger said, the average beneficiary receives about five cents worth of food a day. This value would be virtually doubled by the new Kennedy order, he said.

According to estimates, the program now provides only 35 per cent of the nutrition considered essential for subsistence, Salinger said: The Kennedy directive will boost that percentage, Salinger said, but there was no immediate indication on the extent.

Distributed now are flour, corn meal, rice, dry milk, eggs and lard. The White House did not say what other food items will be added.

Surplus food currently is distributed in about 1,100 counties and 120 cities and towns, Salinger said.

Marshal, Tex., was traveling behind Swan going in the same direction.

According to Roden, the Swan car was partially off the highway. He said he attempted to pass and Swan swerved back into the road.

The Swan car was completely demolished, according to state police.

Mr. and Mrs. Swan were rushed to the St. Francis hospital in Monroe from the Crossett Health Center. He died about 7:45 p.m. Saturday.

He had recently recovered from a heart attack.

Roden and the three passengers in his car were unhurt.

Traveling with Roden were his wife and daughter, Mrs. Sylvia Whitely of Louisville, Ky., and her 15 month old child.

State trooper Paul Hamilton said last night that no charges had been filed in the accident pending an investigation.

Mrs. Pilgram, the daughter, suffered minor injuries in the Bastrop wreck, but had not undergone examination late last night.

No funeral arrangements had been made last night.

Gives Reason For Decrease In Farmers

WINNSBORO (Special) — H. C. Sanders, director of the Louisiana State University Extension Service, was principal speaker at a Farm and Home Development supper meeting at the VFW Home here last night.

About 200 persons attended the meeting.

Sanders explained that the decrease in the number of farms in the country did not mean that agriculture had decreased. Agriculture has become more progressive and efficient.

There are fewer farmers with more production, Sanders said. They supply the people of this country with agricultural products at lower prices than any other country, he noted.

"We find people who really want to move forward and who have an open mind at heart and will open their books. We take an inventory and analyze their resources and determine the benefit of the manager and set the goal. Then we help plan the use of the resources and help them make adjustments, bringing them information."

There are 54 families working under this program in Franklin Parish. The program was started six years ago under Claude Taylor, who is now county agent. The program has been directed by Austin W. Johnson, associate agent for the past three years.

Johnson gave a summary on 43 farms, noting that they had made an average increase in inventory since start of the program of $3,661, and the net increase in annual income was $1,569.

Others speaking at the meeting were A. J. Riser, president of the Franklin Parish Police Jury; Bailey Martin, Franklin Parish school board president; and Rep. Lantz Womack, of Franklin Parish.

Four farmers on the program were Whit Erwin, C. R. Adams Jr., James Siddon and Rupert Scott. The program includes large and small farms and farmers who have small and large incomes.

The legislature may return in event of such an adverse ruling. There could be a move to take control of the schools in the two parishes in efforts to prevent or delay integration.

Administration legislative leaders, meanwhile, contend they have not heard rumors that Davis may seek a statewide referendum on some form of taxation to support the segregation fight through aid program.

The House passed a one-cent sales tax increase to finance the private school program. But Davis was unable to muster the 26 votes needed in the Senate to get the two-thirds majority required for passage.

officers rushed Happel back to the emergency hospital, administering oxygen en route. A re-examination showed Happel was breathing eight times a minute and had a blood pressure of 60.

Happel's sister, Rose Wagner, had already been notified that her brother was dead. She was informed later that the report was incorrect.

Authorities said Happel had been under treatment for throat cancer. They speculated that his heart might have been restarted in a bump in the ambulance ride.

Dr. Harold Coon, superintendent of the County General Hospital said Happel was presumed dead when first brought to the emergency hospital and the physician certified him as dead when he could detect no heart beat or breathing. Dr. Coon said it was possible that the obstruction in the windpipe cleared spontaneously in the ambulance on the way to the morgue and Happel started breathing again.

time which never can be replaced from their studies?

Not necessarily so. That's where a state grants-in-aid phase would become operative.

Under this bill, any pupil between 6 and 18 not attending public school would be entitled to receive from the local board a grant of "state and local funds to be expended for the purpose of attending a nonsectarian private school."

The legislation does not fix the amount of such grants and they would vary from county to county. The amount would be fixed by dividing the number of pupils into the amount of state and local funds allotted to the school system.

The governor and State Board of Education are authorized to give such systems additional state money when available.

But probably the most important feature of the grants-in-aid measure is that it would repeal all school segregation laws in Georgia. The idea is to prevent or cut down suits to desegregate based on racial discrimination plea.

Vandiver's junking of massive resistance to integration also entails a vote by the people in November, 1962, on a constitutional amendment providing that "freedom of association at all levels of education shall be preserved inviolate."

The purpose: To guarantee that no white child will be forced to go to school with a Negro.

—Dropped in on a meeting of the Democratic National Committee and promised to cooperate "in every possible way" in future political action.

—Named Charles Murphy, who had served as chief legal adviser to former President Harry S. Truman, as undersecretary of agriculture.

The President, shunning hat or outercoat, made a point to go out to the driveway to greet the man who occupied the White House eight years ago.

Truman, who once opposed Kennedy's bid for his party's nomination, conducted Kennedy on a tour of the White House and they chatted over coffee in the upstairs living quarters.

The White House said about four million persons now are receiving surplus food under the distressed areas relief program.

The Kennedy order is expected to increase the number who benefit, as well as the amount, variety and quality of the food they get.

Pierre Salinger, the new White House press secretary, said it is impossible to say at this time how much the added food distribution will cost. Another Kennedy aide told a news conference the government now is spending about $36 million a month on this program.

At present, Salinger said, the average beneficiary receives about five cents worth of food a day. This value would be virtually doubled by the new Kennedy order, he said.

According to estimates, the program now provides only 35 per cent of the nutrition considered essential for subsistence, Salinger said. The Kennedy directive will boost that percentage, Salinger said, but there was no immediate indication on the extent.

Distributed now are flour, corn meal, rice, dry milk, eggs and lard. The White House did not say what other food items will be added.

Surplus food currently is distributed in about 1,100 counties and 120 cities and towns, Salinger said.

Man Killed, Wife Hurt In Mishap

Marshal, Tex., was traveling behind Swan going in the same direction.

According to Roden, the Swan car was partially off the highway. He said he attempted to pass and Swan swerved back into the road.

The Swan car was completely demolished, according to state police.

Mr. and Mrs. Swan were rushed to the St. Francis hospital in Monroe from the Crossett Health Center. He died about 7:45 p.m. Saturday.

He had recently recovered from a heart attack.

Roden and the three passengers in his car were unhurt.

Traveling with Roden were his wife and daughter, Mrs. Sylvia Whitely of Louisville, Ky., and her 15 month old child.

State trooper Paul Hamilton said last night that no charges had been filed in the accident pending an investigation.

Mrs. Pilgram, the daughter, suffered minor injuries in the Bastrop wreck, but had not undergone examination late last night.

No funeral arrangements had been made last night.

Gives Reason For Decrease In Farmers

WINNSBORO (Special) — H. C. Sanders, director of the Louisiana State University Extension Service, was principal speaker at a Farm and Home Development supper meeting at the VFW Home here last night.

About 200 persons attended the meeting.

Sanders explained that the decrease in the number of farms in the country did not mean that agriculture had decreased. Agriculture has become more progressive and efficient.

There are fewer farmers with more production, Sanders said. They supply the people of this country with agricultural products at lower prices than any other country, he noted.

"We find people who really want to move forward and who have an open mind at heart and will open their books. We take an inventory and analyze their resources and determine the benefit of the manager and set the goal. Then we help plan the use of the resources and help them make adjustments, bringing them information."

There are 54 families working under this program in Franklin Parish. The program was started six years ago under Claude Taylor, who is now county agent. The program has been directed by Austin W. Johnson, associate agent for the past three years.

Johnson gave a summary on 43 farms, noting that they had made an average increase in inventory since start of the program of $3,661, and the net increase in annual income was $1,569.

Others speaking at the meeting were A. J. Riser, president of the Franklin Parish Police Jury; Bailey Martin, Franklin Parish school board president; and Rep. Lantz Womack, of Franklin Parish.

Four farmers on the program were Whit Erwin, C. R. Adams Jr., James Siddon and Rupert Scott. The program includes large and small farms and farmers who have small and large incomes.

Legislature Awaits Call From Davis

warned the appellate court ruling may be adverse and asked people to prepare for an immediate integration order, probably effective with the September school term.

The legislature may return in event of such an adverse ruling. There could be a move to take control of the schools in the two parishes in efforts to prevent or delay integration.

Administration legislative leaders, meanwhile, contend they have not heard rumors that Davis may seek a statewide referendum on some form of taxation to support the segregation fight through aid program.

The House passed a one-cent sales tax increase to finance the private school program. But Davis was unable to muster the 26 votes needed in the Senate to get the two-thirds majority required for passage.

'Dead Man' Found To Be Alive

officers rushed Happel back to the emergency hospital, administering oxygen en route. A re-examination showed Happel was breathing eight times a minute and had a blood pressure of 60.

Happel's sister, Rose Wagner, had already been notified that her brother was dead. She was informed later that the report was incorrect.

Authorities said Happel had been under treatment for throat cancer. They speculated that his heart might have been restarted in a bump in the ambulance ride.

Dr. Harold Coon, superintendent of the County General Hospital said Happel was presumed dead when first brought to the emergency hospital and the physician certified him as dead when he could detect no heart beat or breathing. Dr. Coon said it was possible that the obstruction in the windpipe cleared spontaneously in the ambulance on the way to the morgue and Happel started breathing again.

Negro Youth Hit By Automobile

A 10 - year - old Negro boy was struck by a car when he darted out into Louberta Street yesterday.

Charles Edwin Quinn was hit by a 1953 Ford driven by Elbert Littleton, 28, 4107 Wiley St.

Littleton said he was driving east on Louberta, approaching a group of boys standing on the south side of the street, when the boy darted into the road.

Quinn was taken to Conway Memorial Hospital where he was treated for a fractured leg and bruise on the head, then released.

New Georgia School Plan Offers Option

time which never can be replaced from their studies?

Not necessarily so. That's where a state grants-in-aid phase would become operative.

Under this bill, any pupil between 6 and 18 not attending public school would be entitled to receive from the local board a grant of "state and local funds to be expended for the purpose of attending a nonsectarian private school."

The legislation does not fix the amount of such grants and they would vary from county to county. The amount would be fixed by dividing the number of pupils into the amount of state and local funds allotted to the school system.

The governor and State Board of Education are authorized to give such systems additional state money when available.

But probably the most important feature of the grants-in-aid measure is that it would repeal all school segregation laws in Georgia. The idea is to prevent or cut down suits to desegregate based on racial discrimination plea.

Vandiver's junking of massive resistance to integration also entails a vote by the people in November, 1962, on a constitutional amendment providing that "freedom of association at all levels of education shall be preserved inviolate."

The purpose: To guarantee that no white child will be forced to go to school with a Negro.

Winnfield Man Hurt By Tree

Bally Ray Bates, 22, route three, Winnfield, was struck on the leg by a section of a tree trunk which he and his father, Aury W. Bates, were sawing up for firewood.

Khrushchev Sent Reply By President

onid Brezhnev as well as Khrushchev, said:

"Please accept this expression of my appreciation for your kind message of congratulations on the occasion of my inauguration as president of the United States of America.

"I welcome your expression of hope for a fundamental improvement in relations between our two countries and in the world situation as a whole; it is a hope which we share.

"We are ready and anxious to cooperate with all who are prepared to join in genuine dedication to the assurance of a peaceful and more fruitful life for all mankind.

"Speaking on behalf of the government and people of the United States of America, as well as on my own behalf, I can assure you that the efforts of the United States government will be directed toward this imperative goal.

"Sincerely, John F. Kennedy."

Khrushchev's "Dear Mr. President" message Friday, which was signed too by Brezhnev, expressed hope that "by our joint efforts we shall succeed in achieving a fundamental improvement in relations between our countries and a normalization of the whole international situation."

Kennedy talked with Rusk, and also with United Nations Ambassador Adlai E. Stevenson and Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, immediately after their swearing-in ceremony at the White House late Saturday afternoon.

DSA, BOSSES NIGHT

Jaycee Banquet Slated Thursday

DR. PAUL HENDERSHOT

Dr. Paul T. Hendershot, head of the department of economics at Louisiana Tech, will be guest speaker Thursday night when the Monroe Junior Chamber of Commerce holds its annual Distinguished Service Award Banquet.

The DSA award is presented each year to the young man — 21-35 — who has made the most outstanding contributions to the community during the preceding year.

The affair is scheduled for 7 p.m. on the roof of the Hotel Frances.

Dr. Hendershot, 44, a native of Malvern, Ark., is a popular area speaker. He received his B.A. certificate from the Henderson State Teachers College with the class of 1938, and his M.A. from Louisiana State University in 1941.

He was conferred a PH.D. in economics and business administration in 1947, also at LSU.

Wedged in with his formal education was a period of service with the U. S. Navy in 1942 as an apprentice seaman. He was later sent to the Naval Officers Training School at Cornell University in Ithaca, N. Y., and saw service in the south Pacific and Australia as a lieutenant.

Following the war, Hendershot returned to LSU where he served as graduate assistant with the department of economics from February to June of 1946. Upon completion of work for PH. D., he was named professor of the department of economics at Tech.

He has remained in that post until this time.

Hendershot is married to the former Mary Theresa Lacey of Baton Rouge, and is the father of five children, Mary, 16; Claude, 13; Anne, 12; John, 2; and David, aged 7 months.

Coupled with the DSA award Thursday night will be Bosses Night, the annual meeting of the Jaycees and their employers. Bosses Night is a feature of Jaycee activities throughout the nation and is dedicated to those employers who support the organization and recognize its values.

For the first time this year a Boss of the Year will be chosen locally and a certificate issued.

The Distinguished Service Award winner will later be entered in a statewide contest with the Louisiana winner in turn being entered into a national competition which will determine the 10 most outstanding young men of the country.

Funds Asked For Local Needy Family

Donations are being sought for a needy West Monroe family of five in which three of the members have heart conditions.

The Trinity Baptist Church Brotherhood is seeking aid for this family who live just off the Natchitoches Road in West Monroe on Route Two in a four-room frame house.

Mrs. Era Phillips, 51, lives here with her two daughters, Theresa, a 17-year-old high school senior; Mrs. Marlene Sanderson, 27; and two grandaughters, Peggy, eight, and Evelyn, seven.

Mrs. Phillips, a widow, has a heart condition, and her daughter, Mrs. Sanderson is confined to bed with a rheumatic heart. The eight-year-old child also has a rheumatic heart, spokesman said.

The family's only income is a social security check which will stop in March when Theresa becomes 18. Mrs. Phillips husband drowned 13 years ago in an accident at Cheniere Lake. Her daughter is divorced, and according to church spokesmen, Mr. Sanderson does not contribute to the family's income.

Jim Leonard, president of the Brotherhood, said that the family is in dire need of help as they owe around $400 in medical and hospital bills and Mrs. Sanderson must leave Feb. 20 for treatments in a New Orleans hospital.

He explained that Mrs. Sanderson, who developed rheumatic heart at age seven, is the worse of the three heart patients and must go to New Orleans twice a year for treatment that may last anywhere from 10 to 13 weeks.

"She doesn't have money for the fare to and from New Orleans," he said.

The family applied for welfare aid some seven years ago, but were turned down, Leonard said. However, friends and neighbors along with the senator are attempting once again to get welfare aid for them.

Davis pointed out that Mrs. Phillips must stay at home with Marlene to take care of her and is therefore unable to work. According to Mrs. Phillips, Marlene and her daughter Peggy are taking medicine that costs $56 a bottle and lasts approximately two months. Other medical expenses run on the average of $12 weekly, Mrs. Phillips said.

Mrs. Phillips has worked hard to keep the family in food and clothing, Leonard stresses. She picks berries such as blackberries, huckleberries and plums and trades them to neighbors during season for vegetables so that she can put up canned goods for the winter.

Besides all of this, she sews a little too, Davis added.

Pointing out the federal aid that the U. S. sponsors to other nations for such cases, Davis stated that he felt "we should sweep around our own door-steps" and help those at home who need help.

Friends and neighbors have brought food and aid in various ways, during the past month, he noted.

Donations for this family should be sent to Trinity Baptist Church Brotherhood, 214 Reagan St., West Monroe.

Leonard said that this family's dire need was brought to his attention by Archie Davis, chairman of the benevolence committee for the brotherhood.

Richland parish schools will hold Career Day February 24, open to all seniors in the five parish high schools.

The affair is slated to be held at Rayville High school.

Milton Posey, guidance counsellor for the parish schools, said plans are being formulated to include 14 careers.

Outstanding educators from colleges, the business world, vocational trade schools and the armed forces will be on hand to help the seniors with decisions on their post-high school occupations.

Posey says a folder filing system for Mangham High school was completed last week.

It includes an accumulative record on each high school student with information about his school and personal life; his testing record; autobiography and abilities.

The files will be used in helping seniors determine their future careers.

Reds Within Big Threat, Speaker Says

"I am not so much afraid of communism from without the United States as I am of communism from within," Dr. Emmett Lee Irwin stated Friday night at a Kappa Alpha Order banquet.

Irwin, principal speaker at the annual convivium of Kappa Alpha, declared that "communism in the United States is the country's' biggest problem."

The event was planned by the local chapter in honor of Gen. Robert E. Lee's birthday and the founding of Kappa Alpha Order in 1865.

Irwin emphasized that communism has slowly seeped into many important phases of American life — the educational system, politics, and even churches in this country.

"As citizens of the future, young men in all walks of life must guard against communist propaganda in every form," the speaker warned. He reminded the group of Joseph Stalin's statement that the United States would not be brought under communistic control until all other world governments had given in. He based his statement on the belief that the United States had the strength of 48 separate countries united under one federal government.

Dr. Irwin closed his address by emphasizing the advantages of having better understanding and relationship between universities, colleges and fraternities. "Each has a responsibility to the other," he said.

A film, depicting the life of General Lee, was included in the banquet program. An added feature was Dr. Irwin's' presentation of a gavel and block to Henry Dawson, Kappa Alpha head at Northeast. The gifts were carved from a tree grown on the lawn of the speaker's residence in Mississippi.

JFK Can't Stand Still On Big Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy plans to concentrate for several months on increasing U. S. military power and shaping new proposals in preparation for negotiations with Soviet Premier Khrushchev and other world leaders.

Reporting this Saturday, authorities said Kennedy intends to avoid foreign trips if at all possible during the early phase of his administration. Presumably Secretary of State Dean Rusk has the same intention.

Diplomatic officials consider it probable, however, that by May Kennedy and Rusk may find it necessary to make a quick trip to Europe for consultation with Allied government chiefs there prior to a brief exploratory talk with Khrushchev.

Action along those lines looks like the best bet for moves by Kennedy, pending development of new or revised proposals on such major issues as the future of Berlin and the international reduction and control of armaments.

Kennedy is understood to be fully aware that although he needs a breathing spell of several months to work on the big issues in East-West relations he cannot stand still for long.

At least in the field of diplomatic maneuver he must demonstrate by action a desire to get his new "quest for peace" under way; otherwise he will find the initiative once more in Khrushchev's hands.

Four Escapees Caught After Night In Cold

ABERDEEN, Miss. (AP)—Four escaped prisoners who spent the night in below-freezing weather gave no resistance Saturday when they were picked up by officers.

Sheriff Paul Brasfield said he and two FBI agents found John D. Becton, 21, and Robert Bell, 20, asleep in a truck at Strong, Miss., halfway between Aberdeen and West Point.

Enalie Alexander, 30, and Lee P. Files, 20, were arrested by deputy Carl Bryan after they went to the home of J. H. Parker in West Point and asked him to call the sheriff.

Two of the prisoners knocked jailer Owen Crouch unconscious Friday night and used his keys to free the other two.

All were white men awaiting sentence on federal car theft charges.

Trend To Hamburger

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI)— A grocer's reputation is built on his hamburger instead of his sirloin steak, Cornell University economist Herrell De Graff told a cattlemen's conference.

De Graff said 30 per cent of all beef sales now is hamburger, and ground beef is pushing steaks off the dinner table in the United States.

SIXTH TO SECEDE

Louisiana To Observe War Between The States

(Editor's ntoe: Louisiana celebrates the 100th anniversary of its secession from the union on Jan. 26. State editor Norman Richardson of The Shreveport Times delved into archives and records for the circumstances and found some interesting facts. Richardson made his story available to The Associated Press.)

By NORMAN RICHARDSON
State Editor
The Shreveport Times
(The Associated Press)

During the next four years, Louisiana will join the nation in paying homage to the men who fell in combat from both sides in what history calls the greatest American conflict, the Civil War.

It began and ended in the first half of the 1860's but to many the war lives on, referring to it also as the War of the Rebellion, the War Between the States or intimately as the Confederate War.

Thursday, Jan. 26, will mark the 100th anniversary of an act which was to shape Louisiana's destiny for many years, the state's secession from the Union—the sixth state to declade itself an independent power.

The secession of 1861 will be re-enacted at the state capitol in Baton Rouge, the first of many events slated during the long centennial celebration. A special centennial commission has been set up to coordinate the various functions.

But to get the full background of this history-making decision, we must go back to the years immediately preceding the secession.

There had been growing unrest in Louisiana and the South over national economic and political differences, the slavery question and over talk of the violation of states rights even before the 1856 election of James Buchanan as U.S. President.

The angry clouds of civil war were gathering ominously on the American horizon and the problems which had been threatening to split the nation were rapidly moving to a point beyond peaceful negotiation.

That point was reached in 1861 when Confederate batteries opened fire on Fort Sumter.

Louisiana factions divided themselves into two groups: Those advocating immediate secession and those who wanted to delay the move until more Southern states declared themselves.

Meanwhile, in the North, a new political party called the Republicans was born, pledged to prevent the further spread of slavery over the territories. Its first candidate, Abraham Lincoln, swept to victory and was to head the nation until his assassination in 1865.

Confusion and bitterness reigned in state politics until Dec. 20, 1860, when the Charleston (S.C.) Mercury blazed this headline:

"The Union is Dissolved."

South Carolina had seceded from the Union, causing the first dent in the armor of the country.

Louisiana's Gov. Thomas Moore, prompted by mounting secession sentiment and the South Carolina news, called the state legislature into a special session which met Jan. 23, 1861, in Baton Rouge. A committee of 15 was named to draw up an ordinance of Louisiana's formal withdrawal from the Union.

Emotion ran high and the tears and curses flowed freely as the delegates listed and debated persuasive secession talks by Gov. Moore, ex-Gov. J. L. Manning of South Carolina and Gov. J. A. Winston of Alabama.

The special committee on Jan. 26 reported favorably to the secession move and the report was accepted by a vote of 121-9. Louisiana was declared to be a "free, sovereign and independent power," and the "connection between the state and the federal Union is dissolved."

A new state flag—red, yellow, white and blue with 13 stripes and a single star "to remind citizens that Louisiana has risen to take her place in the political firmament"—was adopted Feb. 11.

Gov. Moore called out the state militia, seized the U.S. Custom House and U.S. Mint at New Orleans and a 21-gun salute ushered in Louisiana's new independence."

After a Confederate Convention in Montgomery, Ala., in February 1861, Louisiana was a full member of the Confederate States of America under President Jefferson Davis.

The Rebel flag waved proudly over the Bayou State.

In a message, Gov. Moore said, in part, that "whatever lingering hopes might have been felt by confiding men of the South that these dissensions would be healed by the voluntary act of the people of the North within the Union. . . have disappeared. The common cry throughout the North is for coercion by submission, by force of arms if need be, of every state and all states of the South."

Louisiana had taken its stand. There could be no turning back. The long dispute was now to be settled by war.

When the fighting first began, many in Louisiana thought it would be over in a few weeks, but in the first month a federal blockade was thrown up against all Southern ports, a crippling blow to the South. Goods that had been plentiful now became scarce as the full impact of the move hit the people.

The new soldiers marched proudly through the streets as they answered the call for fighting men. Thousands of Louisianians under Gens. Polk, Beauregard, Bragg and Taylor enlisted and were sent to the scarred battlefields of Virginia.

For over a year after the actual start of the conflict, Louisiana remained untouched by warfare. But in April, 1861, Flag Officer David Farragut led 43 Union ships up the Mississippi River toward New Orleans in a daring move to cut off one of the South's main sources of supplies.

Farragut, after a 5-day bombardment of Fort Jackson and Fort St. Philip, slipped 17 gunboats past the guns of the forts and 48 hours later, April 26, anchored at the foot of Canal Street with no opposition. Confederate Gen. Mansfield Lovell, after ordering all war materials to be blown up, moved his troops back.

May 1 saw 15,000 Union troops move into New Orleans and Gen. Benjamin Butler began his military rule of the city.

Farragut and his Yankee forces moved upriver and took Baton Rouge and Bayou Sara. A desperate attempt by 3,000 Johnny Rebs to re-capture the capitol city pushed the boys in blue back to the levees.

But. Gen. John C. Breckinridge was unable to hold the city because of a breakdown of the Southern gunboat, "Arkansas," and was forced to withdraw to Port Hudson.

On July 4, 1863, Vicksburg fell to Gen. U.S. Grant. Union forces came to the aid of Gen. Nethanial Banks' siege of Port Hudson and the city surrendered July 9.

Minor skirmishes followed at Berwick Bay, Donaldsonville and Kenner as the Union army was on the march.

Until 1863, most of Louisiana west of the mighty Mississippi River was still under Confederate control with Opelousas serving as the state capitol.

As Gen. Dick Taylor fell back before the thrusts of Gen. Banks, the capitol was shifted to Shreveport, a relay point for goods purchased in Mexico and headed east via the Red River.

A large steamer was scuttled across the mouth of Loggy Bayou on the river as Banks and Adm. Porter headed toward Shreveport and subsequently into East Texas to smash all opposition west of the Mississippi.

Two Union detachments—one sent up the Red River Valley and the other up Bayou Teche—penetrated as far as Mansfield where they were routed April 8, 1864, in the second most important land battle ever fought on Louisiana soil. The first was the battle of New Orleans in 1815.

The fight opened in a clearing chosen carefully by Gen. Taylor who had posted his ragged forces in a sweeping semi-circle extending over three miles from flank to flank.

The Yankee column extended for some 14 miles along the dusty and narrow road through the thick pine forests of DeSoto Parish. Several brigades of New York cavalry made up the right flank and a crack regiment of Massachusetts cavalry held the left flank while the Chicago Mercantile Battery pulled down the center position.

Gen. Taylor watched the advancing Union Army and when the column hit a clearing gave the order to fire.

For several hours a blanket of smoke covered the bloody battlefield as the Confederates struck a swift jab, retreated and then came on in a fierce yelling charge that crushed the Union's defense.

When the smoke cleared, some 40,000 federal soldiers were in full retreat.

But the price of victory had been high. The screams of the wounded and dying filled the night air as a full moon shone mockingly down on the field of death.

The blue-coated boys from the North stumbled back toward Grand Ecore in a disorganized retreat and put up a stiff resistance at Pleasant Hill two days later before fleeing, leaving behind their dead and wounded.

Deep trenches, dug when news first arrived that Banks was heading upriver toward Mansfield and Shreveport, can still be found at Grand Ecore where Banks' forces debarked. After the fight they came back to Grand Ecore to await Adm. Porter's fleet and when it came, the town was put to the torch, the final blow to a growing port city.

Exerpts from Gen. Taylor's proclamation to his soldiers in the Battle of Mansfield — sometimes called the Battle of the Cross Roads—are given here:

"On the eighth of April you fought the Battle of Mansfield. Never in war was more complete victory won. . . the enemy was driven from every position, his artillery captured, his men routed.

"Soldiers! From a thousand homes thanks will ascend to the God of battles for your victories. Tender wives and fond mothers will repose in safety behind the breastworks of your valor."

Portions of Louisiana Gov. W. H. Allen's address to the victorious CSA soldiers follow:

"In the name of the people of Louisiana, I congratulate you and your late victories.

"You have stripped the federals of their well-appointed artillery and their rich-laden trains. You have met the Yankee chief in the day of his pride, and torn from him his laurels, and from his followers their stolen wealth.

"It will be the proud boasts of children of another age that their fathers fought at Mansfield and Pleasant Hill."

But the joys of victory were to be short-lived as the tide of war was changing even as Allen spoke.

For Louisiana, the conflict was all but over.

Gov. Allen declared further bloodshed would be useless and the state formally surrendered May 26, 1864. Allen's government at Shreveport crumbled and the Union took over.

With Louisiana's complete surrender, the state was governed by military governors and was finally re-admitted to the Union after several years of troubled rule by corrupt politicians and "carpetbaggers," sometimes called the saddest years in the history of Louisiana.

Noted Minister To Be Speaker

The Rev. Samuel Moor Shoemaker, rector of the calvary Episcopal Church of Pittsburg, Pa., will address the 123rd annual session of the Diocesan Convention of Louisiana, meeting in Alexandria, Wednesday and Thursday.

The session will take place at St. James Episcopal Church. Emphasis of the meeting will be on evangelism.

Rev. Shoemaker in 1955 was named by a national news magazine as "one of the 10 greatest preachers in the United States."

JFK Can't Stand Still On Big Issues

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Kennedy plans to concentrate for several months on increasing U. S. military power and shaping new proposals in preparation for negotiations with Soviet Premier Khrushchev and other world leaders.

Reporting this Saturday, authorities said Kennedy intends to avoid foreign trips if at all possible during the early phase of his administration. Presumably Secretary of State Dean Rusk has the same intention.

Diplomatic officials consider it probable, however, that by May Kennedy and Rusk may find it necessary to make a quick trip to Europe for consultation with Allied government chiefs there prior to a brief exploratory talk with Khrushchev.

Action along these lines looks like the best bet for moves by Kennedy, pending development of new or revised proposals on such major issues as the future of Berlin and the international reduction and control of armaments.

Kennedy is understood to be fully aware that although he needs a breathing spell of several months to work on the big issues in East-West relations he cannot stand still for long.

At least in the field of diplomatic maneuver he must demonstrate by action a desire to get his new "quest for peace" under way; otherwise he will find the initiative once more in Khrushchev's hands.

Four Escapees Caught After Night In Cold

ABERDEEN, Miss. (AP)—Four escaped prisoners who spent the night in below-freezing weather gave no resistance Saturday when they were picked up by officers.

Sheriff Paul Brasfield said he and two FBI agents found John D. Becton, 21, and Robert Bell, 20, asleep in a truck at Strong, Miss., halfway between Aberdeen and West Point.

Enalie Alexander, 20, and Lee P. Files, 20, were arrested by deputy Carl Bryan after they went to the home of J. H. Parker in West Point and asked him to call the sheriff.

Two of the prisoners knocked jailer Owen Crouch unconscious Friday night and used his keys to free the other two.

All were white men awaiting sentence on federal car theft charges.

Trend To Hamburger

RALEIGH, N.C. (UPI)— A grocer's reputation is built on his hamburger instead of his sirloin steak, Cornell University economist Herrell De Graff told a cattlemen's conference.

De Graff said 30 per cent of all beef sales now is hamburger, and ground beef is pushing steaks off the dinner table in the United States.

SIXTH TO SECEDE

Louisiana To Observe War Between The States

(Editor's note: Louisiana celebrates the 100th anniversary of its secession from the union on Jan. 26. State editor Norman Richardson of The Shreveport Times delved into archives and records for the circumstances and found some interesting facts. Richardson made his story available to The Associated Press.)

By NORMAN RICHARDSON
State Editor
The Shreveport Times
(The Associated Press)

During the next four years, Louisiana will join the nation in paying homage to the men who fell in combat from both sides in what history calls the greatest American conflict, the Civil War.

It began and ended in the first half of the 1860's but to many the war lives on, referring to it also as the War of the Rebellion, the War Between the States or intimately as the Confederate War.

Thursday, Jan. 26, will mark the 100th anniversary of an act which was to shape Louisiana's destiny for many years, the state's secession from the Union—the sixth state to declade itself an independent power.

The secession of 1861 will be re-enacted at the state capitol in Baton Rouge, the first of many events slated during the long centennial celebration. A special centennial commission has been set up to coordinate the various functions.

But to get the full background of this history-making decision, we must go back to the years immediately preceding the secession.

There had been growing unrest in Louisiana and the South over national economic and political differences, the slavery question and over talk of the violation of states rights even before the 1856 election of James Buchanan as U.S. President.

The angry clouds of civil war were gathering ominously on the American horizon and the problems which had been threatening to split the nation were rapidly moving to a point beyond peaceful negotiation.

That point was reached in 1861 when Confederate batteries opened fire on Fort Sumter.

Louisiana factions divided themselves into two groups: Those advocating immediate secession and those who wanted to delay the move until more Southern states declared themselves.

Meanwhile, in the North, a new political party called the Republicans was born, pledged to prevent the further spread of slavery over the territories. Its first candidate, Abraham Lincoln, swept to victory and was to head the nation until his assassination in 1865.

Confusion and bitterness reigned in state politics until Dec. 20, 1860, when the Charleston (S.C.) Mercury blazed this headline:

"The Union is Dissolved."

South Carolina had seceded from the Union, causing the first dent in the armor of the country.

Louisiana's Gov. Thomas Moore, prompted by mounting secession sentiment and the South Carolina news, called the state legislature into a special session which met Jan. 23, 1861, in Baton Rouge. A committee of 15 was named to draw up an ordinance of Louisiana's formal withdrawal from the Union.

Emotion ran high and the tears and curses flowed freely as the delegates listed and debated persuasive secession talks by Gov. Moore, ex-Gov. J. L. Manning of South Carolina and Gov. J. A. Winston of Alabama.

The special committee on Jan. 26 reported favorably to the secession move and the report was accepted by a vote of 121-9. Louisiana was declared to be a "free, sovereign and independent power," and the "connection between the state and the federal Union is dissolved."

A new state flag—red, yellow, white and blue with 13 stripes and a single star "to remind citizens that Louisiana has risen to take her place in the political firmament"—was adopted Feb. 11.

Gov. Moore called out the state militia, seized the U.S. Custom House and U.S. Mint at New Orleans and a 21-gun salute ushered in Louisiana's new independence."

After a Confederate Convention in Montgomery, Ala., in February 1861, Louisiana was a full member of the Confederate States of America under President Jefferson Davis.

The Rebel flag waved proudly over the Bayou State.

In a message, Gov. Moore said, in part, that "whatever lingering hopes might have been felt by confiding men of the South that these dissensions would be healed by the voluntary act of the people of the North within the Union. . . have disappeared. The common cry throughout the North is for coercion by submission, by force of arms if need be, of every state and all states of the South."

Louisiana had taken its stand. There could be no turning back. The long dispute was now to be settled by war.

When the fighting first began, many in Louisiana thought it would be over in a few weeks, but in the first month a federal blockade was thrown up against all Southern ports, a crippling blow to the South. Goods that had been plentiful now became scarce as the full impact of the move hit the people.

The new soldiers marched proudly through the streets as they answered the call for fighting men. Thousands of Louisianians under Gens. Polk, Beauregard, Bragg and Taylor enlisted and were sent to the scarred battlefields of Virginia.

For over a year after the actual start of the conflict, Louisiana remained untouched by warfare. But in April, 1861, Flag Officer David Farragut led 48 Union ships up the Mississippi River toward New Orleans in a daring move to cut off one of the South's main sources of supplies.

Farragut, after a 5-day bombardment of Fort Jackson and Fort St. Philip, slipped 17 gunboats past the guns of the forts and 48 hours later, April 26, anchored at the foot of Canal Street with no opposition. Confederate Gen. Mansfield Lovell, after ordering all war materials to be blown up, moved his troops back.

May 1 saw 15,000 Union troops move into New Orleans and Gen. Benjamin Butler began his military rule of the city.

Farragut and his Yankee forces moved upriver and took Baton Rouge and Bayou Sara. A desperate attempt by 3,000 Johnny Rebs to re-capture the capitol city pushed the boys in blue back to the levees.

But. Gen. John C. Breckinridge was unable to hold the city because of a breakdown of the Southern gunboat, "Arkansas," and was forced to withdraw to Port Hudson.

On July 4, 1863, Vicksburg fell to Gen. U.S. Grant. Union forces came to the aid of Gen. Nathanial Banks' siege of Port Hudson and the city surrendered July 9.

Minor skirmishes followed at Berwick Bay, Donaldsonville and Kenner as the Union army was on the march.

Until 1863, most of Louisiana west of the mighty Mississippi River was still under Confederate control with Opelousas serving as the state capitol.

As Gen. Dick Taylor fell back before the thrusts of Gen. Banks, the capitol was shifted to Shreveport, a relay point for goods purchased in Mexico and headed east via the Red River.

A large steamer was scuttled across the mouth of Loggy Bayou on the river as Banks and Adm. Porter headed toward Shreveport and subsequently into East Texas to smash all opposition west of the Mississippi.

Two Union detachments—one sent up the Red River Valley and the other up Bayou Teche—penetrated as far as Mansfield where they were routed April 8, 1864, in the second most important land battle ever fought on Louisiana soil. The first was the battle of New Orleans in 1815.

The fight opened in a clearing chosen carefully by Gen. Taylor who had posted his ragged forces in a sweeping semi-circle extending over three miles from flank to flank.

The Yankee column extended for some 14 miles along the dusty and narrow road through the thick pine forests of DeSoto Parish. Several brigades of New York cavalry made up the right flank and a crack regiment of Massachusetts cavalry held the left flank while the Chicago Mercantile Battery pulled down the center position.

Gen. Taylor watched the advancing Union Army and when the column hit a clearing gave the order to fire.

For several hours a blanket of smoke covered the bloody battlefield as the Confederates struck a swift jab, retreated and then came on in a fierce yelling charge that crushed the Union's defense.

When the smoke cleared, some 40,000 federal soldiers were in full retreat.

But the price of victory had been high. The screams of the wounded and dying filled the night air as a full moon shone mockingly down on the field of death.

The blue-coated boys from the North stumbled back toward Grand Ecore in a disorganized retreat and put up a stiff resistance at Pleasant Hill two days later before fleeing, leaving behind their dead and wounded.

Deep trenches, dug when news first arrived that Banks was heading upriver toward Mansfield and Shreveport, can still be found at Grand Ecore where Banks' forces debarked. After the fight they came back to Grand Ecore to await Adm. Porter's fleet and when it came, the town was put to the torch, the final blow to a growing port city.

Exerpts from Gen. Taylor's proclamation to his soldiers in the Battle of Mansfield — sometimes called the Battle of the Cross Roads—are given here:

"On the eighth of April you fought the Battle of Mansfield. Never in war was more complete victory won. . . the enemy was driven from every position, his artillery captured, his men routed.

"Soldiers! From a thousand homes thanks will ascend to the God of battles for your victories. Tender wives and fond mothers will repose in safety behind the breastworks of your valor."

Portions of Louisiana Gov. W. H. Allen's address to the victorious CSA soldiers follow:

"In the name of the people of Louisiana, I congratulate you and your late victories.

"You have stripped the federals of their well-appointed artillery and their rich-laden trains. You have met the Yankee chief in the day of his pride, and torn from him his laurels, and from his followers their stolen wealth.

"It will be the proud boasts of children of another age that their fathers fought at Mansfield and Pleasant Hill."

But the joys of victory were to be short-lived as the tide of war was changing even as Allen spoke.

For Louisiana, the conflict was all but over.

Gov. Allen declared further bloodshed would be useless and the state formally surrendered May 26, 1864. Allen's government at Shreveport crumbled and the Union took over.

With Louisiana's complete surrender, the state was governed by military governors and was finally re-admitted to the Union after several years of troubled rule by corrupt politicians and "carpet-baggers," sometimes called the saddest years in the history of Louisiana.

Church Shifts Location To New Building

The First Presbyterian Church of Monroe now in its 106th year of service will move its location today to a new seven-acre site at Stubbs and North 14th street.

Dr. Wave H. McFadden, pastor, announced the church has completed its educational building which has facilities for approximately 1000 persons, and fellowship hall. The latter structure, with a seating capacity for 400, will serve as a temporary sanctuary.

The church's building program will be completed with the sale of its property located at the corner of Grammont and Catalpa streets. The board of trustees of the First Presbyterian Church said the sale of this property would provide proceeds to be applied to the building of a new sanctuary at the Stubbs and North 14th Street location.

BUILDING DESIGN

The general design of the new educational building includes 12 children's classrooms, six adult classrooms, the church office, session room, parlor and library. There is also an entrance located at the east end of the building which will serve as the vestibule for the proposed sanctuary.

The building contains 30,000 square feet of floor space and is centrally heated and air-conditioned. Architects for the project were Rivers and Heuer and C. L. Denson and B. C. Root were chairmen of the building and finance committees.

Special additions to the fellowship hall which will serve as the church's temporary sanctuary are a walnut pulpit and communion table in memory of Mrs. Dorothy Hodges Jones, and a cross in memory of Mrs. Mary Hamilton from her son, James Hamilton.

Also under construction on the church's lot is a new Boy Scout hut.

The church will follow its regularly scheduled program in the new location, Dr. McFadden said.

Census Slated By Churches In W. Monroe

The West Monroe Ministerial Alliance has asked for the assistance of all churches in its area in conducting a religious census on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 29.

Approximately 1,000 workers will be needed for the task, officials said. Cards will be distributed to workers on Jan. 28.

Plans have been under way since mid-1960 for this survey as a cooperative effort by all denominations.

When workers call on residents of West Monroe they will ask for information on church affiliations.

Publicity, Rev. E. B. Emmerich chairman; Rev. W. Alan King, Howard Griffin.

Zoning, location and area committee, Rev. A. T. Mitchell, Rev. Tillman Brown, co-chairman, Rev. Connie Ward, Rev. W. H. Dowden, Rev. O. C. Clark, and Rev. K. Mills.

He was the first pastor of the church which will observe its 10th anniversary next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 with gospel singing and a review of its history. The present pastor is the Rev. H. Austin Smith. Revival services will be held nightly at 7:30.

Church Shifts Location To New Building

The First Presbyterian Church of Monroe now in its 106th year of service will move its location today to a new seven-acre site at Stubbs and North 14th street.

Dr. Wave H. McFadden, pastor, announced the church has completed its educational building which has facilities for approximately 1000 persons, and fellowship hall. The latter structure, with a seating capacity for 400, will serve as a temporary sanctuary.

The church's building program will be completed with the sale of its property located at the corner of Grammont and Catalpa streets. The board of trustees of the First Presbyterian Church said the sale of this property would provide proceeds to be applied to the building of a new sanctuary at the Stubbs and North 14th Street location.

BUILDING DESIGN

The general design of the new educational building includes 12 children's classrooms, six adult classrooms, the church office, session room, parlor and library. There is also an entrance located at the east end of the building which will serve as the vestibule for the proposed sanctuary.

The building contains 30,000 square feet of floor space and is centrally heated and air - conditioned. Architects for the project were Rivers and Heuer and C. L. Denson and B. C. Root were chairmen of the building and finance committees.

Special additions to the fellowship hall which will serve as the church's temporary sanctuary are a walnut pulpit and communion table in memory of Mrs. Dorothy Hodges Jones, and a cross in memory of Mrs. Mary Hamilton from her son, James Hamilton.

Also under construction on the church's lot is a new Boy Scout hut.

The church will follow its regularly scheduled program in the new location, Dr. McFadden said.

Census Slated By Churches In W. Monroe

The West Monroe Ministerial Alliance has asked for the assistance of all churches in its area in conducting a religious census on Sunday afternoon, Jan. 29.

Approximately 1,000 workers will be needed for the task, officials said. Cards will be distributed to workers on Jan. 28.

Plans have been under way since mid-1960 for this survey as a cooperative effort by all denominations.

When workers call on residents of West Monroe they will ask for information on church affiliations.

COMMITTEES

Publicity, Rev. E. B. Emmerich chairman; Rev. W. Alan King, Howard Griffin.

Zoning, location and area committee, Rev. A. T. Mitchell, Rev. Tillman Brown, co-chairman, Rev. Connie Ward, Rev. W. H. Dowden, Rev. O. C. Clark, and Rev. K. Mills.

He was the first pastor of the church which will observe its 10th anniversary next Sunday afternoon at 2:30 with gospel singing and a review of its history. The present pastor is the Rev. H. Austin Smith. Revival services will be held nightly at 7:30.

Church Group Moves Into New Building Today

The congregation of the Riverview Baptist Church, South 7th and Austin streets in West Monroe, will hold the first service in its new sanctuary today.

Queen Visits Gandhi Shrine

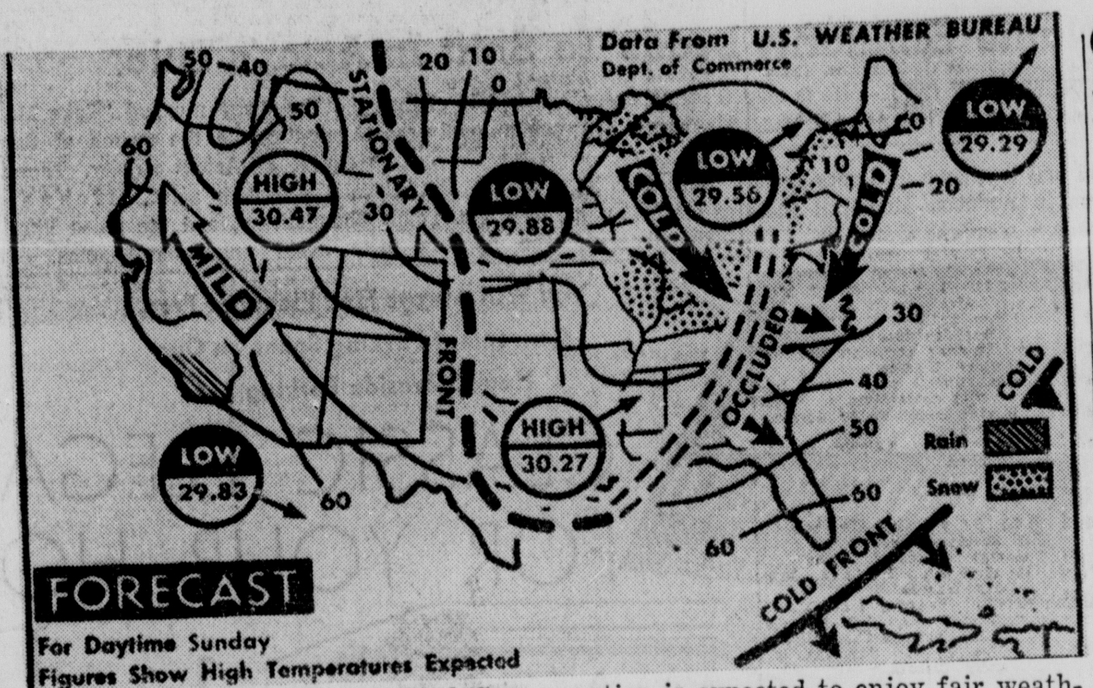
About 100,000 Indians watched in orderly silence.

By leading the long agitation which resulted in India's independence, Gandhi probably contributed more than any other individual to the breakup of Britain's once vast empire. He spent a dozen years in British prisons.

Yet the first official act of the first British sovereign to visit India since 1911 was to lay 500 roses at the site where Gandhi's body was cremated in 1948.

Later the Queen planted a sapling in a 21-acre park dedicated to Gandhi's memory, placing it between a flowering magnolia sent by President Eisenhower and a mango planted by India's President Rajendra Prasad.



SNOW FLURRIES are expected Sunday for the Appalachians, the Ohio and Tennessee Valleys and the Lakes' region. Cheryl Crane Released From Girls' School

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Juvenile Court Friday freed Cheryl Crane from a county girls' school and placed her in the custody of her mother, actress Lana Turner, and her stepfather, Fred May.

It was the first time Cheryl, now 17, has been in Lana's care since she fatally stabbed John Stompanato in 1958. Cheryl has been at El Retiro School for Girls since last March, except for two brief periods when she escaped from custody.

The tall, shy girl left the court with Lana, May and her father, restaurateur Stephen Crane, second of Lana's five husbands. The actress was wed last November to May, a wealthy sportsman.

Miss Turner said they would live on May's horse ranch at Chino, Calif.

Cheryl will remain a ward of Superior Court and will be required to report to probation officers, Juvenile Court Referee Harry Simon ruled at Friday's closed hearing here.

She has been a ward of the court since she stabbed Stompanato, then her mother's lover. She said he had threatened Miss Turner.

MAP SUMMARY

Bitterly cold air covered much of the eastern United States late Saturday afternoon. Light snow was still falling in most sections of the middle Atlantic region and along leeward sides of the Great Lakes and in northern portions of Minnesota and eastern North Dakota. Skies remained mostly clear in New England as was also true of the southern states and most of the middle section of the country and much of the west. A little light rain was falling in extreme south west Arizona and local areas of fog continued in some valleys of California and Washington state.

Temperatures continued to highlight the late afternoon weather picture. In the upper Mississippi valley afternoon readings remained near or just slightly above the zero degree mark. New England remained far below freezing with most stations reporting late afternoon readings in the teens. This pattern was also true for much of the middle Mississippi valley and the ara eastward across the Ohio valley into the middle Appalachians. Upper 20's and low 30's were general in the middle Atlantic and northern sections of the south Atlantic states. Considerable local warming occurred in western regions of the central and southern plains. Pueblo, Colorado, reported a high of 58 and Dodge City, Kansas, 57 degrees. Across the Pacific states another quite variable temperature pattern was noted. In coastal sections of California several 60 and low 70 degree readings were registered but in interior valley sections where cool air was trapped Sacramento reported only a high of 44 and Fresno a 55. In coastal sections of Washington and Oregon the 60's were common but farther inland some readings remained in the low 30's.

The outlook for today — A few snow flurries will continue in the Ohio valley and along the higher elevations in the Appalachians and also in the Great Lakes region. It will continue cold in the east and south but skies will be mostly clear. Fair weather and somewhat warmer temperature is indicated for much of the central and southern plains but a little light rain is in the forecast for coastal sections of southern Texas. In the west fair to partly cloudy skies will prevail and some morning fog is forecast for the interior valleys.

Queen Visits Gandhi Shrine

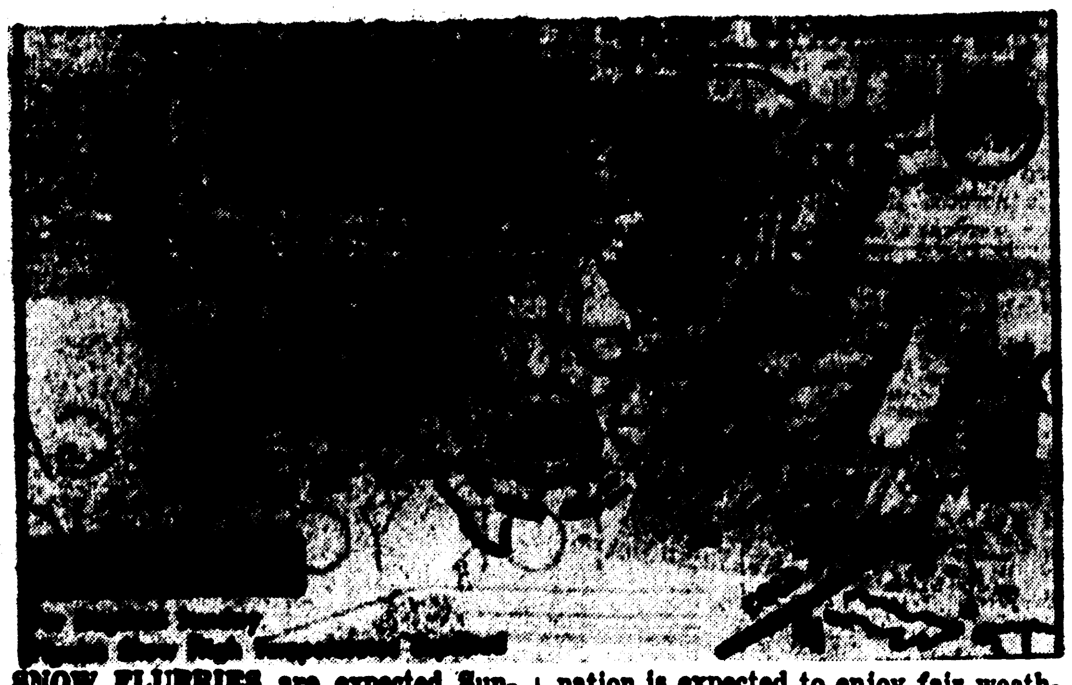
About 100,000 Indians watched in orderly silence.

By leading the long agitation which resulted in India's independence, Gandhi probably contributed more than any other individual to the breakup of Britain's once vast empire. He spent a dozen years in British prisons.

Yet the first official act of the first British sovereign to visit India since 1911 was to lay 500 roses at the site where Gandhi's body was cremated in 1948.

Later the Queen planted a sapling in a 21-acre park dedicated to Gandhi's memory, placing it between a flowering magnolia sent by President Eisenhower and a mango planted by India's President Rajendra Prasad.



SNOW FLURRIES are expected Sunday for the Appalachians, the Ohio and Tennessee Valleys and the Lakes' region. Although showers are forecast for extreme southwest the rest of the nation is expected to enjoy fair weather. Low temperatures will continue east of the Mississippi Valley and northern Plains. Cheryl Crane Released From Girls' School

SANTA MONICA, Calif. (AP)—Juvenile Court Friday freed Cheryl Crane from a county girls' school and placed her in the custody of her mother, actress Lana Turner, and her stepfather, Fred May.

It was the first time Cheryl, now 17, has been in Lana's care since she fatally stabbed John Stompanato in 1958. Cheryl has been at El Retiro School for Girls since last March, except for two brief periods when she escaped from custody.

The tall, shy girl left the court with Lana, May and her father, restaurateur Stephen Crane, second of Lana's five husbands. The actress was wed last November to May, a wealthy sportsman.

Miss Turner said they would live on May's horse ranch at Chino, Calif.

Cheryl will remain a ward of Superior Court and will be required to report to probation officers, Juvenile Court Referee Harry Simon ruled at Friday's closed hearing here.

She has been a ward of the court since she stabbed Stompanato, then her mother's lover. She said he had threatened Miss Turner.

MAP SUMMARY

Bitterly cold air covered much of the eastern United States late Saturday afternoon. Light snow was still falling in most sections of the middle Atlantic region and along leeward sides of the Great Lakes and in northern portions of Minnesota and eastern North Dakota. Skies remained mostly clear in New England as was also true of the southern states and most of the middle section of the country and much of the west. A little light rain was falling in extreme south west Arizona and local areas of fog continued in some valleys of California and Washington state.

Temperatures continued to highlight the late afternoon weather picture. In the upper Mississippi valley afternoon readings remained near or just slightly above the zero degree mark. New England remained far below freezing with most stations reporting late afternoon readings in the teens. This pattern was also true for much of the middle Mississippi valley and the arc eastward across the Ohio valley into the middle Appalachians. Upper 20's and low 30's were general in the middle Atlantic and northern sections of the south Atlantic states. Considerable local warming occurred in western regions of the central and southern plains. Pueblo, Colorado, reported a high of 30 and Dodge City, Kansas, 57 degrees. Across the Pacific states another quite variable temperature pattern was noted. In coastal sections of California several 60 and low 70 degree readings were registered but in interior valley sections where cool air was trapped Sacramento reported only a high of 44 and Fresno a 55. In coastal sections of Washington and Oregon the 60's were common but farther inland some readings remained in the low 30's.

The outlook for today — A few snow flurries will continue in the Ohio valley and along the higher elevations in the Appalachians and also in the Great Lakes region. It will continue cold in the east and south but skies will be mostly clear. Fair weather and somewhat warmer temperature is indicated for much of the central and southern plains but a little light rain is in the forecast for coastal sections of southern Texas. In the west fair to partly cloudy skies will prevail and some morning fog is forecast for the interior valleys.

Teen Librarians Attend Meeting At Baton Rouge

Making the trip from West Monroe High School were Sharon Goodwin, Patsy Smudricks, Douglas Wink and Howard Coy, along with their sponsor, Mrs. Sue Hardin.

Representing Ouachita Parish High School were Bruce Brooks, Dorothy Conville, Glenda Cage, Amos Price, and, as sponsor, Mrs. Gladys Ward, librarian. Brooks is state secretary of the association.

Phyllis Bruscato and Barbara Barton attended from St. Matthew's High School.

Held at Louisiana State University, the convention featured various addresses, study and business sessions, and campaigning, election and installation of officers for 1961.

Included for the local group were tours of Esso Standard facilities in Baton Rouge, the state capitol and the home of James Audubon in Audubon Memorial State Park.

Youngsters Try Out New Y Pool

Milestone For YMCA

The Twin Cities YMCA has made tremendous forward strides since its launching in the spring of 1954. Adequate testimony to this will be the formal opening today of its new building at 1809 Glenmar, which is valued at approximately $255,000, and has a broad range of facilities including an indoor swimming pool.

The buff brick building, which has 19,921 square feet of space, has in addition to the 30 foot by 75 foot swimming pool, a large gymnasium, three locker rooms, one for women and girls, adequate office space and an exercise room.

Opening ceremonies will take place at 4 p.m., and open house will be held until 5 p.m.

Today's program coincides with the national observance of YMCA Sunday, a time set aside each year to emphasize the close relationship existing between the Y and churches of all faiths.

Officials in announcing formal opening of the YMCA building, recalled how the idea for such an organization was promoted at meetings of interested persons held in the fall of 1953 in Monroe and West Monroe.

The first board of directors was elected in February of 1954, and the local group received its charter from the Southern Area Council of YMCA's meeting in Atlanta in March of that year. The launching of activities was in April, 1954.

From that beginning through to the present, the local YMCA has held steadfastly to its role of helping youth develop health and character.

A statement from the organization here observed:

"Your YMCA is part of a worldwide fellowship of millions of members in 80 countries, of men, boys, women, and girls working together for a common purpose, being that we 'regard the Young Men's Christian Association as being, in its essential genius, a worldwide fellowship of people united by a common loyalty to Jesus Christ for the purpose of developing christian personality and building a christian society.' "

Growth of the Twin Cities YMCA during the past seven years has been impressive both program-wise and budget-wise.

Attendance at meetings during 1954 totaled 8,404, while during the past year attendance reached the 54,569 mark. The 1954 budget was $15,575.01, while officials said the budget for this year is expected to be $84,413.

There was only one person on the Y staff during the early days of the program. Currently there are six employees.

With the new facilities, Y officials are looking forward to the advance of a more flexible program. They pointed out that in addition to the "learn to swim" class for all ages, there will be skin diving or scuba diving, synchronized swimming or swimming to music, water ballet, aquatic institutes which will include junior and senior life saving, leader examiner, instructor and water safety courses.

Another important phase of the aquatic program will be therapeutic swimming, in which temperature of the water will be increased by a few degrees for polio victims and others who need special treatment.

There will be competitive swimming, diving, recreational swimming, and instruction in casting, fly fishing and water polo.

While the pool will be amply sheltered from frigid winds in winter, it will not be completely shut off from the balmy breezes of summer.

The pool has 60 feet of doors on one side that can be rolled up to give a special indoor-outdoor effect in summer time.

Officials said, "With the windows and lighting effects and the location of the pool there will be ample sunshine in the side of the pool. With this combination the humidity in the summer time is greatly reduced."

All activities will not center around the pool, however. In the gymnasium there are two cross-court basketball floors for use by youths of junior high school age and under, and a main floor. There are two volleyball courts and two badminton courts.

Gymnastic equipment includes horizontal bars, parallel bars, side horses, spring boards, trampolines, swing rings, rope climbing, mats for tumbling, facilities for wrestling, judo, and, officials said, "almost any other exercise. ."

While emphasis is on youth, the program also will have provisions for assisting those in the older groups in retaining a more youthful physical complex.

Officials said, "There will be reconditioning classes for 'older men' and the program will develop as the members request it."

Across the hall from the gymnasium there is a general exercise room which will be used for weight lifting and body building activities. In the center of the new YMCA setup is an outdoor patio which can be used for volleyball, badminton, or other appropriate activities. A full time physical director is on the staff of the organization, giving more stature to its program. He was added to the staff last Sept. 1.

Men and boys will be placed in divisions according to age. That is, those under 15 years of age will have supervision while in the building, and those above this level will be permitted to work individually or in groups. An ample amount of time will be allowed for swimming and in the gymnasium for individual workouts and recreational exercises.

Baskets will be available for storing swimming and gymnastic equipment at the Y, where it may be left all the time.

The YMCA program is not confined to the limits of the new building. It is continuing its work through most of the schools in Ouachita Parish.

This phase is known as the "Four Fronts Program," which contains something for all boys from the age of six through 18 years.

Boys in the six to eight years category take part in the Father and Son Y Indian Guides. Aimed at fostering comradeship between father and son, the activity is centered around Indian lore.

The Gray-Y draws boys from nine through 12 years of age. Each club elects its own officers, and plans its programs.

Commenting on this, Y officials said.

"Well qualified christian leadership enables each club member to constructively enjoy his leisure time. As our Gra-Y program progressed, the parents of our boys requested a similar program for the girls of the same age group. This program was also requested by school principals. Thus we have a program called Tri-Gra-Y for girls which runs parallel to the boys' Gra-Y program."

The Junior Hi-Y is for boys 12 to 14 years of age. Its purpose is to strengthen bodies, develop their minds, worship God, and work together for betterment of community and the world. Well trained christian leaders supervise all phases of this club activity.

The purpose of the Hi-Y program, which is for high school boys 15 through 18 years of age, is "to create, maintain, and extend throughout the home, school, and community high standards of christian character."

Its members hear special speakers, attend club meetings, and follow a program of activities which includes devotionals, movies, conferences, service projects, forums, introductions, worship services, and athletics.

Every year the Twin Cities YMCA sends boys and girls to the Hi-Y —Tri-Hi-Y Training Congress at the YMCA Blue Ridge Assembly in Blue Ridge, North Carolina. Various civic clubs in the Twin Cities pay a portion of the transportation fees to allow chartering of a bus for the trip.

With summer vacation time comes another important phase of the Y program, that of day camping. There were 163 youngsters in the summer camps of 1945. Last summer day camp sessions drew a total of 654.

Three years ago the YMCA invited the YWCA to jointly run a day camp for girls This action came when a number of parents expressed a desire for such a setup. Since that time the number of girls attending day camp has risen from 123 to 250 during the past summer.

In the past, the Y's aquatic program was limited to summer months when the Swayze Natatorium at Forsythe Park was open. One of the important features conducted there was the Aquatic Institute, in which 29 persons have qualified in senior life saving, leader examiner, or instructor classifications.

In 1960 a youth guidance program was held in two local high schools, Neville and West Monroe. Four topics included were sex education, gambling, alcohol and narcotics.

Charles Flurry of Baton Rouge led the discussion on narcotics. Drs. Fred Marx, Doyle Hamilton and Jack Jackson, led the sessions on sex education, and district attorney Albin Lassiter discussed gambling.

A committee appointed to evaluate the 1960 guidance program and recommend changes, suggested an effort to expand the series from four topics to include sessions on smoking, auto safety, teenage marriage, cheating, profanity, and prejudice this year. The committee also felt that parents should be more involved in the program to assure maximum benefits to students.

This year the programs are in progress in West Monroe, Ouachita, and Neville High Schools.

Shelter For The Aged

Editor's Note—Across the country, the spector of loneliness stalks a rising percentage of the population grown too old for competitive industry but still too young for the grave. At a special workshop in Manhattan some have found a way to brighten their twilight years.

By MARY CAMPBELL

NEW YORK (AP)—Each morning a group of men and women converge on a Manhattan workshop, chat, hang up their coats, and get busy.

Could be like any other business place in town, except that most of these people are over 70 years of age—none under 60.

And they do their job in a converted automobile showroom, part of a project to help take the sting of loneliness and boredom out of their lives.

In a nation confronted with a rapidly rising proportion of elderly citizens, the Manhattan "shelter," as it is called, may be of more than local interest.

PILOT PROJECT

As an expanded pilot project its sponsors consider remarkably successful, it could point the answer for groups with similar problems elsewhere.

One of the workers put it this way: "This place saved me from myself when I was on the verge of doing something I shouldn't do to myself."

And another, "What can I do all day? I thank God every morning I can still go to work."

Workers at the nondenominational Council Workshop for Senior Citizens, operated under the auspices of the National Council of Jewish Women, have a job as long as they have the desire and physical ability to work. There are a handful of similar shelters across the country and a few others which train older persons for short terms, with the object of getting them back into industry.

The Manhattan director, Dr. Allen Speiser, says many employes start at the workshop complaining of illnesses and pains which seem to fade away as they work each day and make friends. After a while, he says, workers gain confidence, begin to look younger and even start to gripe a little.

"Then I am encouraged," he says, "because they're treating me like a boss."

Work is subcontracted, largely from New York's garment industry. Workers sew buttons and cloth swatches on cards, package notions items and operate sorting machines. Sponsors hope soon to take in more complex mechanical assembly, to provide more jobs appealing to men.

PURPOSE

Employes are paid, but the money is not intended to be their primary means of support. The workshop's purpose is to provide employment and the psychological benefits which come from doing meaningful work. Because of the slow production rate of older workers, income from manufacturers does not cover the workshop's expenses, and the difference is made up by the National Council of Jewish Women.

"It's a nice place here," says Max Weiss, 67, for 34 years a New York taxi driver. "We're three on our machine. We talk the whole day through. But we get the work out just the same."

Bertha Einhorn, here from Germany 21 years, decided at 79 not to move with her married daughter to a suburb but to remain in New York "because I love the work so much here. This is so much better for me."

And tiny, London-born Maude Connors, 74, says, "I insisted on working. I said I don't want anything for nothing. As long as I can stand on my two feet, I'll stand on them."

Officials who are concerned with ways of extending the useful years of persons who have passed the age limits for employment in industry, have presented several points to ponder.

They pointed out that a number of persons who excelled in various lines of endeavor, reached that level of attainment when they were in advanced years.

If older persons can be gainfully employed at something they like to do they will ease the burden on public welfare rolls, and be less likely to accumulate a number of psychological problems.

Milestone For YMCA

The Twin Cities YMCA has made tremendous forward strides since its launching in the spring of 1954. Adequate testimony to this will be the formal opening today of its new building at 1809 Glenmar, which is valued at approximately $255,000, and has a broad range of facilities including an indoor swimming pool.

The buff brick building, which has 19,921 square feet of space, has in addition to the 30 foot by 75 foot swimming pool, a large gymnasium, three locker rooms, one for women and girls, adequate office space and an exercise room.

Opening ceremonies will take place at 4 p.m., and open house will be held until 5 p.m.

Today's program coincides with the national observance of YMCA Sunday, a time set aside each year to emphasize the close relationship existing between the Y and churches of all faiths.

Officials in announcing formal opening of the YMCA building, recalled how the idea for such an organization was promoted at meetings of interested persons held in the fall of 1953 in Monroe and West Monroe.

The first board of directors was elected in February of 1954, and the local group received its charter from the Southern Area Council of YMCA's meeting in Atlanta in March of that year. The launching of activities was in April, 1954.

From that beginning through to the present, the local YMCA has held steadfastly to its role of helping youth develop health and character.

A statement from the organization here observed:

"Your YMCA is part of a worldwide fellowship of millions of members in 80 countries, of men, boys, women, and girls working together for a common purpose, being that we 'regard the Young Men's Christian Association as being, in its essential genius, a worldwide fellowship of people united by a common loyalty to Jesus Christ for the purpose of developing christian personality and building a christian society.' "

Growth of the Twin Cities YMCA during the past seven years has been impressive both program-wise and budget-wise.

Attendance at meetings during 1954 totaled 8,404, while during the past year attendance reached the 54,560 mark. The 1954 budget was $15,575.01, while officials said the budget for this year is expected to be $84,413.

There was only one person on the Y staff during the early days of the program. Currently there are six employees.

With the new facilities, Y officials are looking forward to the advance of a more flexible program. They pointed out that in addition to the "learn to swim" class for all ages, there will be skin diving or scuba diving, synchronized swimming or swimming to music, water ballet, aquatic institutes which will include junior and senior life saving, leader examiner, instructor and water safety courses.

Another important phase of the aquatic program will be therapeutic swimming, in which temperature of the water will be increased by a few degrees for polio victims and others who need special treatment.

There will be competitive swimming, diving, recreational swimming, and instruction in casting, fly fishing and water polo.

While the pool will be amply sheltered from frigid winds in winter, it will not be completely shut off from the balmy breezes of summer.

The pool has 60 feet of doors on one side that can be rolled up to give a special indoor-outdoor effect in summer time.

Officials said, "With the windows and lighting effects and the location of the pool there will be ample sunshine in the side of the pool. With this combination the humidity in the summer time is greatly reduced."

The YMCA Pool Is Spacious

All activities will not center around the pool, however. In the gymnasium there are two cross-court basketball floors for use by youths of junior high school age and under, and a main floor. There are two volleyball courts and two badminton courts.

Gymnastic equipment includes horizontal bars, parallel bars, side horses, spring boards, trampolines, swing rings, rope climbing, mats for tumbling, facilities for wrestling, judo, and, officials said, "almost any other exercise. ."

While emphasis is on youth, the program also will have provisions for assisting those in the older groups in retaining a more youthful physical complex.

Officials said, "There will be reconditioning classes for 'older men' and the program will develop as the members request it."

Across the hall from the gymnasium there is a general exercise room which will be used for weight lifting and body building activities. In the center of the new YMCA setup is an outdoor patio which can be used for volleyball, badminton, or other appropriate activities. A full time physical director is on the staff of the organization, giving more stature to its program. He was added to the staff last Sept. 1.

Men and boys will be placed in divisions according to age. That is, those under 15 years of age will have supervision while in the building, and those above this level will be permitted to work individually or in groups. An ample amount of time will be allowed for swimming and in the gymnasium for individual workouts and recreational exercises.

Baskets will be available for storing swimming and gymnastic equipment at the Y, where it may be left all the time.

The YMCA program is not confined to the limits of the new building. It is continuing its work through most of the schools in Ouachita Parish.

This phase is known as the "Four Fronts Program," which contains something for all boys from the age of six through 18 years.

Boys in the six to eight years category take part in the Father and Son Y Indian Guides. Aimed at fostering comradeship between father and son, the activity is centered around Indian lore.

The Gray-Y draws boys from nine through 12 years of age. Each club elects its own officers, and plans its programs.

Commenting on this, Y officials said.

"Well qualified christian leadership enables each club member to constructively enjoy his leisure time. As our Gra-Y program progressed, the parents of our boys requested a similar program for the girls of the same age group. This program was also requested by school principals. Thus we have a program called Tri-Gra-Y for girls which runs parallel to the boys' Gra-Y program."

Y.M.C.A. Ceremonies

This afternoon, beginning at 4 o'clock, Monroe and West Monroe citizens will have an opportunity to behold a dream come true. Open house for the newly constructed Twin Cities Young Men's Christian Association building, at 1809 Glenmar, marks the beginning of a new era in the history of the organization.

For more than 30 years there have been efforts to give the Twin Cities the kind of Y.M.C.A building they needed. During most of that time there has been some sort of Y.M.C.A. organization here. Now, however, the plans for a good building have been brought to realization.

The Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. was officially begun in April, 1954, although the real organization of the association grew out of several meetings of interested citizens from Monroe and West Monroe in the fall of 1953. The first board of directors was elected in February, 1954, and the local Y.M.C.A. received its charter in the Southern Area Council of the Y.M.C.A.'s meeting in Atlanta, Ga., in March, 1954.

The local Y.M.C.A. is part of a worldwide fellowship of millions of members in 80 countries—or men, boys, women and girls working together for a common purpose. The Y.M.C.A. is a worldwide fellowship of people united by common loyalty to Jesus Christ for the purpose of developing Christian personality and building a Christian society.

Both program-wise and budget-wise, the Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. has grown tremendously. In 1954 there was an attendance of 8,404 and in 1960 there was a total attendance of 54,569. The budget has grown from $15,575.01 in 1954 to an anticipated budget of $83,413 for 1961. The staff has grown from one full-time employe in April, 1954, to six full-time employes at present.

The new Y.M.C.A. building, with adequate physical facilities, lies between 18th and 19th streets. Facilities which have been needed for such a long time will serve the entire family.

These facilities consist of an indoor swimming pool, 30 by 75 feet; a large gymnasium; three locker rooms, one for women and girls; adequate office space, and an exercise room. While this building is not a complete Y.M.C.A. building and is only the first phase, it will surely enhance the program of the "Y" and will be beneficial to the entire community.

There are two cross-court basketball floors for junior high school age and under and one main floor. There are two volleyball courts and two badminton courts. Also located here is the gymnastic equipment, such as horizontal bars, parallel bars, side horses, spring boards, trampoline, swing rings, rope climbing, mats for tumbling, wrestling and judo and almost any other exercise to be found in the gymnasium. There will be reconditioning classes for "older men" and the program will develop as the members request it.

Incidentally, the opening of the new building here coincides with the beginning of the annual celebration of national Y.M.C.A. week. National Y.M.C.A. Sunday is set aside each year to emphasize the close relationship that exists between the Y.M.C.A. and churches of all faiths. The Y.M.C.A. serves as a secondary religious institution attempting to meet the practical Christian program needs of people whom the church cannot reach through lack of staffs, funds and facilities. The Y.M.C.A. is interdenominational and non-sectarian and its program is designed to help build Christian character and develop Christian personality in the lives of people around the world.

Officials of the Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. and those citizens of Monroe and West Monroe who have worked so diligently to provide this area with a suitable building deserve the highest praise. Accomplishment of this long-sought aim is a high tribute to their faith, energy and perseverence. To them and to everyone who has contributed anything toward the realization of this goal we can say:

"Well done."

Harvard On the Potomac

Observers of the Kennedy appointees all over the country are taking note of the great percentage of Harvard men. In fact, "the Harvard boys" is paralleling the old "brain trust" of the F. D. Roosevelt days.

Some humorists are referring to the old joke, "The way to succeed in politics is to go to Harvard and turn left." And some are not smiling when they repeat it.

The "crimson tide" in the Kennedy team starts with the Cabinet. Like the new President, younger brother Robert Kennedy, the new Attorney General, is a Harvard graduate. Douglas Dillon and Robert S. McNamara, secretaries of the treasury and defense respectively, were both Harvard men. The new Postmaster General, J. Edward Day, was graduated magna cum laude from the Harvard Law School.

Four men in the new Chief Executive's office have Harvard backgrounds although some other alma maters begin to enter the picture. The budget director, David E. Bell, was chief administrative officer at the business school. But McGeorge Bundy, special assistant for national security affairs was a Yale man. However, he later served as Dean of Arts and Sciences at Harvard.

James M. Landis, who recently made a report to Mr. Kennedy on federal commissions, is a Princeton graduate. Later he attended Harvard Law School and became its dean.

One of the President's principal advisers is Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., Harvard summa cum laude and faculty member. Another is J. Kenneth Galbraith, Harvard professor of economics.

The list grows longer with Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert who studied at the Harvard Business School after graduation from Yale. Paul H. Nitze, assistant to the Secretary of Defense, and Robert C. Weaver, named to head the Housing and Home Finance Agency, both were graduated from Harvard College cum laude.

Undersecretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz was graduated from Harvard Law School, as were John J. McCloy, new disarmament administrator for the State Department, and Alanson W. Wilcox council of Health, Education and Welfare. Solicitor General Archibald Cox, who comes from the Law School faculty, was a Harvard undergraduate and law student.

These are only the Harvard men in official capacities. Many more will gain a footing in the new administraton whose names will never be publicized. If F. D. Roosevelt made use of a kitchen cabinet, certainly Mr. Kennedy may formulate policy with a "mortar board of directors."

The history of the country shows that Harvard has furnished more U. S. Presidents than any other college or university. Both Adames and both Roosevelts and now Mr. Kennedy.

This is centainly no poor reflection on the school. But the long list of appointees from Harvard made by the new President is an open admission that his vision is limited.

One-Sidedness Of Response

Readers From All Over Agree With Columnist That Biased Campaign Coverage Perils Confidence In Press

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Nobody so far, unless it's the postal carrier who is toting the extra fan mail, has taken any umbrage at a recent column in which I raised the point of biased reporting in last autumn's campaign.

The one - sidedness of the response is almost alarming. Readers from all over, with a sprinkling of editors and publishers, have said "Yes" to the question voiced here: Is there a danger that the American public will lose confidence in the American press? A few more counts have been added to the implied indictment. Nominations for the Two or Three Worse newspapers have been seconed and ringingly endorsed. A few examples may be given:

Item: "Whenever Nixon was in the South, his very brief statements —usually a sentence or two — on integration nearly always were played up by the press associations — and ALWAYS on television . . . The South must have gotten the impression . . . Nixon . . . was campaigning for integration and not for the presidency."

Item: "I have heard . . . that Washington, D. C., has no conservative or unbiased newspaper. If this is true, it is deplorable that we are not getting more straight news from the very seat of our government."

Item: "If you want another example of biased editing, I submit samples where the editorial scissors were used . . . The pen may be mightier than the sword, but the scissors can snip the point off the pen."

Item: "Every American (capable of thinking for himself) knows that our press is no longer a free, unbiased and untrammeled news medium. All worthwhile newspapers in our metropolitan areas are now owned or controlled (directly or indirectly) by ultra - liberal one worlders."

Item: "I was a write - in candidate . . . I didn't want the office and knew I couldn't win — I openly said so . . . But this is aside from the question I want to discuss; namely, our press coverage of the news . . . I put out 10,000 of the enclosed circulars in about 45 countries . . .Newspaper editors often complimented my stand . . . but to my knowledge no paper ever printed my direct charge against (the incumbent) Senator . . . They (the papers) took it and kept quiet."

There is more of the same, with several prominent papers mentioned by name, but this much will suffice to point to some conclusions.

Readers of American newspapers feel, as they should a partnership interest in the public press and they assert their right of criticism.

Readers, even when their handwriting and grammar are imperfect, are remarkably sophisticated in that they see through the dodges and trickery.

Only one of the several complaints against us is that we snip or slant the news. There is dissatisfaction because some of the big papers are allegedly in the hands of liberalissimos and globalissimos — and because some of the smaller papers are allegedly not interested in individualists, such as non - winning write - in candidates. And that large and small newspapers are allegedly intimidated by libel laws and other overhanging threats to frankness and rough - house reporting.

My own feeling is that readers set high and perhaps unobtainable ideals for the press. It is well that this is so. It gives us a splendid goal for which to strive. But there is a danger of being over - harsh toward our honored profession. Writers, editors and publishers have human prejudices (often defended in this column). Every newspaper is a business enterprise with the instinct for profit and survival.

The cure for our ills most certainly is not Federal licensing, or Federal competition, or any such nonsense as compulsory "equal time." The cure is within ourselves in the form of vigor, idealism and damm - the - torpedoes. The best tonic of all for newspaper anemia is competition — a pair or more of rivals in every town.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator from Arizona

The ladies of the National Press Club were kind enough to invite me to address their January meeting in Washington. Traditionally this affair is a gay and joyous occasion and consonant with the mood of the affair I was assigned to offer some suggestions to the liberals, who will hold forth in this session of Congress.

This may come as a shock to some of my critics, but even conservative Senators are not always somberly serious. And the first portion of my remarks that evening were intended to contribute to the fun of the occasion.

"When a conservative is invited to give advice to the liberals, he finds himself in approximately the same situation as a vegetarian missionary assigned to a tribe of cannibals. Without a quick conversion on two vital matters, the results will be personally painful. I think it is absolutely necessary that we conservatives counsel with our liberal friends to prevent the Daniel Boones of the New Frontier from leading us all down the wilderness trail to a completely collective estate.

"While I have been asked to be here tonight only in the capacity of an advisor, I cannot resist the temptation to comment on the recent election. The other day I came across a message that describes how I feel about the election so much better than I can hope to phrase it. I have taken the liberty of bringing it with me tonight. This was a telegram sent by the defeated Presidential candidate to his victorious opponent in a musical comedy some years ago.

"It reads and I quote 'Heartily congratulate you on your splendid victory and charge fraud in Indiana, Illinois, Nebraska, Montana, Washington, Ohio and Massachusetts.'

"But this is a session of good will and nonpartisanship. A nonpartisanship that I have every reason to believe will last until January 20th. It may even last longer and go all the way thru January 21st.

"During this happy period you will see the lions and the lambs frisking together in a joyous coexistence reminiscent of the peaceful days when Mr. Khrushchev was being entertained at Camp David, and those days in West Virginia when my friend Hubert was saying so many nice things about th President-elect.

"In the spirit of 'one for all, and all for one,' I want to compliment our President - elect on his choice of Mennen Williams to be in charge of African affairs. Although we kept it a close secret during the campaign, I think I can now safely reveal to you that Dick Nixon had intended to offer him the same post if the Republicans had won.

"I know that Governor Williams probably stayed up as late as the rest of us election night sweating out the returns. But he was the only politician in the country who really didn't have to worry how it came out. He was earmarked for Africa no matter who won. He will be safe there — Reuther can't lay a hand on him and it will be virtually impossible for him to distort the tax solvency of those countries.

"I am sure it was a sentimental gesture on the part of our President and Vice President - elect that caused them to purchase their clothes in London. Sentimental or not, at a time when we have our own depressed areas, I think it would be fitting if the leaders of our country would buy their clothes in America and support our economy. You will forgive my using the word 'economy', Mr. Kennedy, I know it wasn't in your platform.

"We all recognize that Joe Kennedy is the only member of the Kennedy family who did not take an active part in the campaign, and was therefore ineligible for a cabinet job.

"You make this perfectly clear, Jack, at the outset when you said you wouldn't appoint anyone, anyone mind you, just because they had made a substantial financial contribution to the Democrat party.

"The President - elect has been working with great diligence on his new cabinet. But as we have all recognized he has experienced difficulties in finding an adequate supply of men who are acquainted with PT boats, who graduated from Harvard, who have been ushers in one of the Kennedy weddings and who can play touch football. Harvard is being robbed to supply this administration with men. It might have been cheaper to move the capital to Boston. In fact, this will probably become known as the 'broad A' administration." How do you stand, sir?

Strange Cabinet

Robert Kennedy Only One Of 10 Members Who Is Well Known

Monday morning the ten members of the Kennedy Cabinet will go to their desks in the mammoth Department office buildings and the hundreds of thousands of Government workers in Washington will have new bosses.

To most Americans it is a little known group of men, the ten who will make up the Kennedy Cabinet. Few Americans a month ago had ever heard of Rusk, Dillon, McNamara, Day, Udall, Freeman, Hodges, Goldberg and Ribicoff, who will fill nine of the places. Robert Kennedy who will be Attorney General, had become well known in the last year as his brother's campaign manager, but no one looked upon him as the probable chief law officer of the Federal Government.

In reality the nation's lack of any clear image of the Administration may be said to extend to the incoming President himself. Perhaps it is true that John F. Kennedy will go to the White House least known of any of our Twentieth Century Presidents, save only Warren G. Harding.

Harding shares with Kennedy only the distinction of being elected to the Presidency while a member of the United States Senate. The nation hardly saw Harding or heard his voice in those pre-radio and television days. He conducted a front porch campaign at his home in Marion, Ohio, and was elected in a landslide which made him our biggest percentage winner of any President in American history.

Kennedy went into nearly every state, made hundreds of speeches, and appearances, and won by the smallest percentage plurality in our history. Harding promised to appoint a strong Cabinet. Two of them from the beginning far overshadowed the President — Charles Evans Hughes, who became Secretary of State, and Herbert Hoover, Secretary of Commerce.

Hughes had been Governor of New York and Associate Justice of the United States Supreme Court, had himself been narrowly defeated for President, and was the nation's most eminent lawyer. Hoover as Food Administrator in World War I, won undying fame in feeding a hungry world. Andrew Mellon, Secretary of the Treasury, as unknown to the nation as any member of the Kennedy Cabinet when appointed by Harding, became one of the all - time great Secretaries of the Treasury.

There hardly seems to be any Hughes, Hoover or Mellon in the Kennedy Cabinet. Nor happily does any one think there possibly could be an Attorney General Harry M. Daugherty or a Secretary of Interior Albert B. Fall, two of the characters who were to give the Harding Administration its unsavory reputation.

The four Cabinet posts on which the spotlight will play are those of State, Treasury, Defense and Attorney General. Special circumstances may bring a man who fills a lesser post strongly into the picture. For instance because of the controversial farm problem Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson became better known than any Eisenhower cabinet member with the exception of Secretary of State John Foster Dulles.

In the Cabinet which is so little known to the nation the tendency has been to pick Robert S. McNamara, Defense Secretary - designate, as the probable strong man.

The most criticized appointment has been that of Robert Kennedy for Attorney General. There was some outcry that it was of dubious propriety and smacked of nepotism. But principally it revolved around the fact that the incoming President's brother has had no actual trial experience in any tribunal, has never in fact engaged for a minute in private law practices and whose only experience was seven months in a very minor law post of the Department of Justice.

Kennedy was also widely criticized in his home State for forcing the appointment of Benjamin A. Smith II as his successor as Senator. Smith, little known in the Bay State, was a Harvard roommate of John F. Kennedy and he and Smith were ushers at one another's weddings.

Smith promised not to be a candidate for re-election two years hence and many Massachusetts politicians felt Smith is merely holding the seat (baby-sitting some termed it) for the younger Kennedy brother, Ted, who has not yet reached the Constitutional age of 30 required for United States Senators, but will have attained it by 1962. One brother as President of the United States, another as Attorney General and a third United States Senator would certainly constitute an American political "royal family."

There has been some criticism of the Kennedy Cabinet as well as men appointed to other high posts on the ground that it is sectional and provincial (it is strongly Eastern), that it has too many professors, especially too Harvard, plus too many Phi Beta Kappa keys.

But generally the attitude of the country has been what it ought to be: To let time tell the merit or [illegible] of merit of the appointmen[illegible] the incoming President paid political debts in the appointments of Governors Ribicoff of Connecticut as Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare and Hodges of North Carolina as Secretary of Commerce, there is no reason to think that Ribicoff and Hodges may not turn out to be excellent Cabinet officers. And he appointed two men with whom he had no acquaintance, Rusk for State and McNamara for Defense, because he thought they were the best men obtainable.

There is little justification for the charge that has been made in some quarters, that the Cabinet is an "opportunist patchwork." Trying to guess in advance how a Cabinet or its individual mebers will turn out is a futile task."

The guess on the Kennedy Cabinet can be the same as could have been made on any President's Cabinet in the past or can be made on any in the future: Some will serve the distinction; some will be misfits.

Jobless Profile

At Least 5,600,000 Willing And Able To Work Are Unemployed

On the first working day of the Kennedy administration, there are at least 5,600,000 men and women able and willing to hold jobs who can't find them — and the percentage of unemployed in our country is still climbing dangerously, is possibly even already at or above the "near critical" level of 7 per cent of our work force.

Nothing underlines as dramatically as these figures the urgency of President Kennedy's call for positive actions to help pull us out of this recession, put us back into a strong sustained upswing. And surely the jobless totals alone assure that Congress will respond quickly with legislation to combat the recession in general, aid the unemployed in particular.

But a jobless statistic of this magnitude doesn't reveal the story of the people in it — and no statistic can reflect the heartbreak, the fear of unemployed. To recognize the fundamental and growing challenges of our jobless, grasp the cold fact that not even a strong business upsurge will cure it and understand that we must attack the causes, you first must know the who, the where, the why of today's unemployed.

Today's unemployed is a young man or woman, under the age of 25. He or she is 14 to 19 years old and dropped out of high school without getting a diploma. Or they are 20 to 24 and at the start of their job careers, losing jobs or shifting from one to another because they have only a minimum of education, skills, training.

The under - 25 account now for about one-third of all our unemployed, although they represent only 17 per cent of our workers. Their unemployment rate is by far the highest in our country and the jobless rate among those who drop out of high school is about double that of those who graduate from high school.

Today's unemployed is a factory worker whose job has been wiped out forever by basic shifts in industry, major improvements in production techniques, profound changes in our type of economy. He is unskilled or semiskilled. He is concentrated in metalworking, mining, similar industries and in the non - durable apparel goods field. He well may be living in a one-industry, chronically depressed area.

The unemployment rate in steel, autos, apparel is far above the national average. Almost 40 per cent of all jobless now are unskilled or semiskilled workers. The percentage rise among those untrained, uneducated Americans has been the fastest of all and they represent the "hard core" of our unemployment problem.

Today's unemployed is an older worker, over 45 years of age, who has lost his job or business and who now finds that regardless of his education or qualifications the great barrier to his reemployment is his age.

Y.M.C.A. Ceremonies

This afternoon, beginning at 4 o'clock, Monroe and West Monroe citizens will have an opportunity to behold a dream come true. Open house for the newly constructed Twin Cities Young Men's Christian Association building, at 1809 Glenmar, marks the beginning of a new era in the history of the organization.

For more than 30 years there have been efforts to give the Twin Cities the kind of Y.M.C.A building they needed. During most of that time there has been some sort of Y.M.C.A. organization here. Now, however, the plans for a good building have been brought to realization.

The Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. was officially begun in April, 1954, although the real organization of the association grew out of several meetings of interested citizens from Monroe and West Monroe in the fall of 1953. The first board of directors was elected in February, 1954, and the local Y.M.C.A. received its charter in the Southern Area Council of the Y.M.C.A.'s meeting in Atlanta, Ga., in March, 1954.

The local Y.M.C.A. is part of a worldwide fellowship of millions of members in 80 countries—or men, boys, women and girls working together for a common purpose. The Y.M.C.A. is a worldwide fellowship of people united by common loyalty to Jesus Christ for the purpose of developing Christian personality and building a Christian society.

Both program-wise and budget-wise, the Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. has grown tremendously. In 1954 there was an attendance of 8,404 and in 1960 there was a total attendance of 54,569. The budget has grown from $15,575.01 in 1954 to an anticipated budget of $83,413 for 1961. The staff has grown from one full-time employe in April, 1954, to six full-time employes at present.

The new Y.M.C.A. building, with adequate physical facilities, lies between 18th and 19th streets. Facilities which have been needed for such a long time will serve the entire family.

These facilities consist of an indoor swimming pool, 30 by 75 feet; a large gymnasium; three locker rooms, one for women and girls; adequate office space, and an exercise room. While this building is not a complete Y.M.C.A. building and is only the first phase, it will surely enhance the program of the "Y" and will be beneficial to the entire community.

There are two cross-court basketball floors for junior high school age and under and one main floor. There are two volleyball courts and two badminton courts. Also located here is the gymnastic equipment, such as horizontal bars, parallel bars, side horses, spring boards, trampoline, swing rings, rope climbing, mats for tumbling, wrestling and judo and almost any other exercise to be found in the gymnasium. There will be reconditioning classes for "older men" and the program will develop as the members request it.

Incidentally, the opening of the new building here coincides with the beginning of the annual celebration of national Y.M.C.A. week. National Y.M.C.A. Sunday is set aside each year to emphasize the close relationship that exists between the Y.M.C.A. and churches of all faiths. The Y.M.C.A. serves as a secondary religious institution attempting to meet the practical Christian program needs of people whom the church cannot reach through lack of staffs, funds and facilities. The Y.M.C.A. is interdenominational and non-sectarian and its program is designed to help build Christian character and develop Christian personality in the lives of people around the world.

Officials of the Twin Cities Y.M.C.A. and those citizens of Monroe and West Monroe who have worked so diligently to provide this area with a suitable building deserve the highest praise. Accomplishment of this long-sought aim is a high tribute to their faith, energy and perseverence. To them and to everyone who has contributed anything toward the realization of this goal we can say:

"Well done."

Harvard On the Potomac

Observers of the Kennedy appointees all over the country are taking note of the great percentage of Harvard men. In fact, "the Harvard boys" is paralleling the old "brain trust" of the F. D. Roosevelt days.

Some humorists are referring to the old joke, "The way to succeed in politics is to go to Harvard and turn left." And some are not smiling when they repeat it.

The "crimson tide" in the Kennedy team starts with the Cabinet. Like the new President, younger brother Robert Kennedy, the new Attorney General, is a Harvard graduate. Douglas Dillon and Robert S. McNamara, secretaries of the treasury and defense respectively, were both Harvard men. The new Postmaster General, J. Edward Day, was graduated magna cum laude from the Harvard Law School.

Four men in the new Chief Executive's office have Harvard backgrounds although some other alma maters begin to enter the picture. The budget director, David E. Bell, was chief administrative officer at the business school. But McGeorge Bundy, special assistant for national security affairs was a Yale man. However, he later served as Dean of Arts and Sciences at Harvard.

James M. Landis, who recently made a report to Mr. Kennedy on federal commissions, is a Princeton graduate. Later he attended Harvard Law School and became its dean.

One of the President's principal advisers is Arthur M. Schlesinger Jr., Harvard summa cum laude and faculty member. Another is J. Kenneth Galbraith, Harvard professor of economics.

The list grows longer with Secretary of the Air Force Eugene M. Zuckert who studied at the Harvard Business School after graduation from Yale. Paul H. Nitze, assistant to the Secretary of Defense, and Robert C. Weaver, named to head the Housing and Home Finance Agency, both were graduated from Harvard College cum laude.

Undersecretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz was graduated from Harvard Law School, as were John J. McCloy, new disarmament administrator for the State Department, and Alanson W. Wilcox council of Health, Education and Welfare. Solicitor General Archibald Cox, who comes from the Law School faculty, was a Harvard undergraduate and law student.

These are only the Harvard men in official capacities. Many more will gain a footing in the new administraton whose names will never be publicized. If F. D. Roosevelt made use of a kitchen cabinet, certainly Mr. Kennedy may formulate policy with a "mortar board of directors."

The history of the country shows that Harvard has furnished more U. S. Presidents than any other college or university. Both Adames and both Roosevelts and now Mr. Kennedy.

This is centainly no poor reflection on the school. But the long list of appointees from Harvard made by the new President is an open admission that his vision is limited.

One-Sidedness Of Response

Readers From All Over Agree With Columnist That Biased Campaign Coverage Perils Confidence In Press

WASHINGTON, D. C. — Nobody so far, unless it's the postal carrier who is toting the extra fan mail, has taken any umbrage at a recent column in which I raised the point of biased reporting in last autumn's campaign.

The one-sidedness of the response is almost alarming. Readers from all over, with a sprinkling of editors and publishers, have said "Yes" to the question voiced here: Is there a danger that the American public will lose confidence in the American press? A few more counts have been added to the implied indictment. Nominations for the Two or Three Worse newspapers have been seconed and ringingly endorsed. A few examples may be given:

Item: "Whenever Nixon was in the South, his very brief statements —usually a sentence or two — on integration nearly always were played up by the press associations — and ALWAYS on television . . . The South must have gotten the impression . . . Nixon . . . was campaigning for integration and not for the presidency."

Item: "I have heard . . . that Washington, D. C., has no conservative or unbiased newspaper. If this is true, it is deplorable that we are not getting more straight news from the very seat of our government."

Item: "If you want another example of biased editing, I submit samples where the editorial scissors were used . . . The pen may be mightier than the sword, but the scissors can snip the point off the pen."

Item: "Every American (capable of thinking for himself) knows that our press is no longer a free, unbiased and untrammeled news medium. All worthwhile newspapers in our metropolitan areas are now owned or controlled (directly or indirectly) by ultra - liberal one worlders."

Item: "I was a write - in candidate . . . I didn't want the office and knew I couldn't win — I openly said so . . . But this is aside from the question I want to discuss; namely, our press coverage of the news . . . I put out 10,000 of the enclosed circulars in about 45 countries . . .Newspaper editors often complimented my stand . . . but to my knowledge no paper ever printed my direct charge against (the incumbent) Senator . . . They (the papers) took it and kept quiet."

There is more of the same, with several prominent papers mentioned by name, but this much will suffice to point to some conclusions.

Readers of American newspapers feel, as they should a partnership interest in the public press and they assert their right of criticism.

Readers, even when their handwriting and grammar are imperfect, are remarkably sophisticated in that they see through the dodges and trickery.

Only one of the several complaints against us is that we snip or slant the news. There is dissatisfaction because some of the big papers are allegedly in the hands of liberalissimos and globalissimos — and because some of the smaller papers are allegedly not interested in individualists, such as non - winning write - in candidates. And that large and small newspapers are allegedly intimidated by libel laws and other overhanging threats to frankness and rough - house reporting.

My own feeling is that readers set high and perhaps unobtainable ideals for the press. It is well that this is so. It gives us a splendid goal for which to strive. But there is a danger of being over - harsh toward our honored profession. Writers, editors and publishers have human prejudices (often defended in this column). Every newspaper is a business enterprise with the instinct for profit and survival.

The cure for our ills most certainly is not Federal licensing, or Federal competition, or any such nonsense as compulsory "equal time." The cure is within ourselves in the form of vigor, idealism and damm - the - torpedoes. The best tonic of all for newspaper anemia is competition — a pair or more of rivals in every town.

How Do You Stand, Sir?

By BARRY GOLDWATER

U. S. Senator from Arizona

The ladies of the National Press Club were kind enough to invite me to address their January meeting in Washington. Traditionally this affair is a gay and joyous occasion and consonant with the mood of the affair I was assigned to offer some suggestions to the liberals, who will hold forth in this session of Congress.

This may come as a shock to some of my critics, but even conservative Senators are not always somberly serious. And the first portion of my remarks that evening were intended to contribute to the fun of the occasion.

"When a conservative is invited to give advice to the liberals, he finds himself in approximately the same situation as a vegetarian missionary assigned to a tribe of cannibals. Without a quick conversion on two vital matters, the results will be personally painful. I think it is absolutely necessary that we conservatives counsel with our liberal friends to prevent the Daniel Boones of the New Frontier from leading us all down the wilderness trail to a completely collective estate.

"While I have been asked to be here tonight only in the capacity of an advisor, I cannot resist the temptation to comment on the recent election. The other day I came across a message that describes how I feel about the election so much better than I can hope to phrase it. I have taken the liberty of bringing it with me tonight. This was a telegram sent by the defeated Presidential candidate to his victorious opponent in a musical comedy some years ago.

"It reads and I quote 'Heartily congratulate you on your splendid victory and charge fraud in Indiana, Illinois, Nebraska, Montana, Washington, Ohio and Massachusetts.'

"But this is a session of good will and nonpartisanship. A nonpartisanship that I have every reason to believe will last until January 20th. It may even last longer and go all the way thru January 21st.

"During this happy period you will see the lions and the lambs frisking together in a joyous coexistence reminiscent of the peaceful days when Mr. Khrushchev was being entertained at Camp David, and those days in West Virginia when my friend Hubert was saying so many nice things about th President-elect.

"In the spirit of 'one for all, and all for one,' I want to compliment our President - elect on his choice of Mennen Williams to be in charge of African affairs. Although we kept it a close secret during the campaign, I think I can now safely reveal to you that Dick Nixon had intended to offer him the same post if the Republicans had won.

"I know that Governor Williams probably stayed up as late as the rest of us election night sweating out the returns. But he was the only politician in the country who really didn't have to worry how it came out. He was earmarked for Africa no matter who won. He will be safe there — Reuther can't lay a hand on him and it will be virtually impossible for him to distort the tax solvency of those countries.

"I am sure it was a sentimental gesture on the part of our President and Vice President - elect that caused them to purchase their clothes in London. Sentimental or not, at a time when we have our own depressed areas, I think it would be fitting if the leaders of our country would buy their clothes in America and support our economy. You will forgive my using the word 'economy', Mr. Kennedy, I know it wasn't in your platform.

"We all recognize that Joe Kennedy is the only member of the Kennedy family who did not take an active part in the campaign, and was therefore ineligible for a cabinet job.

"You make this perfectly clear, Jack, at the outset when you said you wouldn't appoint anyone, anyone mind you, just because they had made a substantial financial contribution to the Democrat party.

"The President - elect has been working with great diligence on his new cabinet. But as we have all recognized he has experienced difficulties in finding an adequate supply of men who are acquainted with PT boats, who graduated from Harvard, who have been ushers in one of the Kennedy weddings and who can play touch football. Harvard is being robbed to supply this administration with men. It might have been cheaper to move the capital to Boston. In fact, this will probably become known as the 'broad A' administration." How do you stand, sir?

Adams Thought V-P Office Insignificant

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Blunt John Adams, the first vice president this nation ever had, looked over his job and sourly defined it this way: "The most insignificant office that ever invention of man contrived."

During the last 170 years nearly everyone who has thought about it at all has agreed with Adams on the vice presidency.

Historians have deplored it, comedians have ridiculed it and until recently, leading politicians have shunned it.

And yet last Friday one of the most skillful politicians of this generation embarked on his first full week in this strange, almost make-believe job.

No questions kicking around Washington are more intriguing than these:

What will Lyndon B. Johnson, so aggressive, so restless, so ambitious, so used to authority, do to the vice presidency?

Or, what will the vice presidency do to him?

Nobody, not even the two men most concerned, President John F. Kennedy and Johnson, knows the answers.

Whether a vice president does a lot, or next to nothing, depends on the whim of the president. Right now, Kennedy's whim is to keep the energetic Johnson hopping. But no matter how noble the intentions, at the first sign of disagreement this relationship can abruptly cease.

It's true that Richard M. Nixon, in his eight years under Dwight D. Eisenhower, brought unusual vigor to the vice presidency.

But this could have been due to unusual circumstances that may never be repeated.

Eisenhower was well known, with his popularity unquestioned, while Nixon was young and eager to please. At no time could there be any worry about rivalry.

Fortunately for Nixon, Eisenhower had little interest in ceremonial duties, nor did he seem to care much about those sessions where party differences and strategy were threshed out.

PERFORMED

So Nixon performed these, and many other chores. And he worked at them so purposefully that when the time came for the Republicans to pick Eisenhower's successor, the only candidate they could see was Richard M. Nixon.

In 1953 Johnson was chosen leader of the Senate's Democrats. This made him, at 44, the youngest floor leader in the history of that leisurely old institution.

This reputation, he and his followers sincerely thought, would make him an ideal choice for the presidency.

But while Johnson prodded the Senate, Kennedy used his senatorial seat chiefly as a hunting license, and no hunter ever ranged so far or stalked his quarry so relentlessly.

In the end, Kennedy won, and won big, at the age of 43. And somehow he persuaded that great persuader, Lyndon Johnson, to accept second place.

All recent presidents have attempted to find work for their vice presidents. John Nance Garner, Henry A. Wallace, Alben Barkley and Nixon did a variety of odd jobs for their bosses.

Yet both Kennedy and Johnson are so ambitious it may be difficult to find a use for the Texan's talents that completely satisfies all concerned, especially after the novelty wears off.

Certainly the Constitution offers little help.

IT GIVES

It gives a vice president only three responsibilities:

1. To preside over the Senate, which is such a bore most vice presidents duck out as quickly as possible.

2. To vote in one of those rare instances when the Senate comes up with a tie.

3. To be ready in case something should happen to the president. Or, as a comic put it back in Grover Cleveland's time, when he saw Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson, grandfather of the new U. S. ambassador to the United Nations moseying down the street: "There goes the vice president of the United States with nothing on his mind except the health of the president."

Even while the Constitution was being drawn up, the vice presidency was a disappointment. Ben Franklin suggested that the vice president be called "his superfluous excellency."

But in the original setup good men became vice presidents because the runnerup in the Electoral College automatically got the job.

With the growth of political parties, the Constitution was amended so that electors voted for both a president and a vice president. And steadily the office slipped downhill.

It went to party hacks, often ancient and undistinguished sometimes in an effort to balance the ticket, sometimes because the convention delegates were tired and in a hurry to go home.

No man ever turned down the presidential nomination if it were offered him formally. But in 1844 Silar Wright of New York and in 1924 Frank Lowden of Illinois said, no, thanks, when asked to take a vice presidential nomination.

Those who did accept were frequently unhappy about it.

Teddy Roosevelt, nominated for the vice presidency, glumly wrote Gen. Leonard Wood: "By the time you receive this you will have learned from the daily press that I have been forced to take the veil."

Woodrow Wilson, an expert on government long before he turned politician, said of the vice presidency: "The chief embarrassment in discussing this office is, that in explaining how little there is to be said about it one has evidently said all there is to say."

But he didn't live up to his promise.

Marshall's own stories prove it. "There once were two brothers," Marshall said. "One ran away to sea, the other was elected vice president. Neither was heard of again."

Once, while visiting in Denver, Marshall noticed a policeman following him. Naturally he asked why. The policeman said he had been assigned to guard Marshall.

"Your labor is in vain," Marshall said. "Nobody ever was crazy enough to shoot at a vice president."

All of which is true. Yet in spite of this the stature of the job has grown.

Historian Clinton Rossiter believes Barkley was the most distinguished man to fill the office since John Calhoun took over in 1825.

And if Eisenhower reached far down in the party ranks to pick Nixon, as he did, Nixon at the end of eight years was able to convince 34 millions persons, the most who ever voted for a loser, that he should be president.

Johnson certainly ranks in the same classification with Barkley. And it's important not only to the Kennedy administration but to the country that his experiences are favorable, so favorable that in the future other first rate men will continue to seek the post. Or, at least, not turn it down.

For although our vice presidential candidates often appear to have been picked capriciously, seven of them—some good, some indifferent—have moved into the White House at the death of a president.

In less perilous times this may not have been too important, but political scientists emphasize that anyone who becomes president now should be considerably more than a party hack.

This is the third Johnson we have had for vice president. Richard Mentor Johnson served under Martin Van Buren, but he led such a scandalous private life—he set up housekeeping with a mulatto slave and had a couple of children by her—that his party didn't formally renominate him. It didn't matter much. Van Buren was licked anyway.

By JACK BELL

Not since Franklin D. Roosevelt's eager beavers took charge in 1933 with visions of remolding the American way of life has an incoming Cabinet promised such verve in the task of pointing the nation toward the new frontiers of which John F. Kennedy spoke glowingly in the presidential campaign.

It is a young Cabinet, befitting the coming to full political power of the generation which fought World War II in the ranks or in the lower echelons of officers.

It is a brainy Cabinet. It has three Phi Beta Kappa key holders in Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman. Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg holds membership in the Order of the Coif—made up of law graduates in the top 10 per cent of their class.

By and large, it is a Cabinet with a Harvard accent. Besides the new president himself, four members studied at Harvard either as undergraduates or in the graduate school. They are Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, Postmaster General J. Edward Day and McNamara.

There is business experience in the Cabinet, represented by McNamara, Dillon, Day, and Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges.

POLITICIANS

It has its practical politicians, too, in Robert Kennedy, Hodges, Freeman, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Abraham A. Ribicoff and Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall.

The one thing this Cabinet lacks which those of President Eisenhower and Roosevelt had before is a woman member. FDR had Miss Frances Perkins at the helm of the Labor Department. Eisenhower chose Oveta Culp Hobby as the first secretary of health, education and welfare when that department was set up.

Though its average age of 47.3 years compares with 56.6 years for Eisenhower's first Cabinet, the Kennedy Cabinet looks old beside that of George Washington. His five department heads averaged 39 years at the time of their appointment.

While Robert Kennedy is regarded as an extremely youthful attorney general at 34, Edmund Randolph was only two years older when Washington called him to service as the nation's chief legal officer.

In the same Cabinet, Secretary of the Treasury Alexander Hamilton was the youngest at 32 and Secretary of State Thomas Jefferson was the oldest at 46. Secretary of War Henry Knox was 39 and Postmaster General Samuel Osgood 42.

How the Kennedy Cabinet will operate remains to be seen. From all the signs it is not likely to conduct its business in the cacaphony of controversy that marked sessions of the Roosevelt Cabinet. Nor are members likely to enjoy the delegation of power Eisenhower gave to some of his top-ranking aides.

No member of the Kennedy Cabinet, for instance, seems in line to attain the national eminence in his field that the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and former Secretary of The Treasury George M. Humphrey gained in theirs.

Dulles was widely credited with making foreign policy, subject to his chief's approval. Humphrey just about called the turn of government financing, including defense spending, while he held office.

Kennedy just doesn't operate that way. He hasn't tackled as mammoth a task as the presidency, but he has kept personally on top of jobs he has filled as a member of the House and a member of the Senate.

While he trusts implicitly the men around him, Kennedy wants to know about as much about what they are doing as they do themselves. He never got high enough in the military ranks to become imbued with the staff system.

BE ABLE

He won't be able to keep in touch so closely as president. There aren't enough hours in a presidential day to learn everything going on in government. But the new president is a quick study. He plucks ideas swiftly. His communication with men who talk his language is lightning-like.

Kennedy has screened his Cabinet choices closely about their ideas. He has made it clear, for instance, that if he had thought he and Dillon didn't see-eye-to-eye on financial matters he would never have named the Republican undersecretary of state as his secretary of the Treasury.

This kind of screening seems to have been more thorough on Kennedy's part than any undertaken either by Roosevelt or Eisenhowr.

Roosevelt appeared to have picked some of his departmental heads out of a hat. Eisenhower took the recommendations of men who had helped him become president, naming businessmen for what was to be a businessman's government.

Kennedy said during the campaign his would "not be a businessman's administration but neither will it be a labor or farmers' administration."

In history there have been plenty of disagreements among presidential department heads. Hamilton and Jefferson started the nation off on that foot and the men around the president have been at it ever since.

The original Roosevelt cabinet was loaded for controversy almost from the start. It could hardly scape an almost continuous uproar with men like Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes and Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace sitting in its ranks.

Every Cabinet seems to turn up a whipping boy, a member toward whom the political opposition directs most of its blasts.

Under Roosevelt it was Wallace who kept the Republicans' teeth on edge. Under Eisenhower, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson absorbed more than his share of political poison darts from the Democrats and from some Republicans.

As attorney general, brother Bobby stands out as a shining target for the knives the Republicans are already beginning to sharpen.

The new president himself has said that Bobby "must lead the fight for law enforcement" and "administer our laws without favor and with matchless integrity." These laws, of course, include the controversial civil rights statutes about which much may be heard in the next four years.

A Naughty Life In A New Form

Casanova, as every college boy knows, was an 18th century lover, rake and adventurer without a peer.

What the undergraduate may not know is that aside from these memoirs, Casanova wrote various learned books, read Greek, spoke Latin and did most of his writing in French, although an Italian by birth. Making and squandering fortune after fortune, he disputed with Voltaire, talked to kings and was repentent in his old age only that he lacked strength for repeat performances of his early revels.

This is the sixth and final volume of the Machen translation first published in 1894. Since then, until the present edition, only 4,105 copies of this work had been struck off, if an appended bibliography is correct. Although based on a badly edited and incomplete French text, it's still the best available, pending publication abroad of Casanova's original.

The memoirs, produced when Casanova was about 70 years old and keeping black melancholy at bay by writing 10 or 12 hours a day, carry him only until 1773 when he was 48 and feeling the cold breath of age and waning fortune.

But during those 48 years he had made love to an almost unbelievable number of women, had accomplished one of the most famous jail breaks on record, and had made a million in France by setting up a state lottery. Moving in court circles, but also in the ranks of strolling players, blackguards and thieves, he had been a stool pigeon, confidence man, duelist. He had rescued damsels in distress, served and hobnobbed with cardinals, traveled from country to country like one possessed, and spent money like water, when he had it. He spent his last unhappy days as librarian to a nobleman in a lonely Bohemian castle.

Few will dispute Casanova's talent for making thoroughly readable copy out of a thoroughly naughty life. For those who doubt his veracity, savants give assurance that he invariably proves truthful on events that can be checked; the supposition, or hope, is that we are told the truth about that large and interesting share of his life spent behind locked doors.

Delightful Flashback To Spring

MEMOIR OF SPRING. By Elick Moll. Putnam. $3.

The iceman's horse Solly races Mike, the fruit man's; a boy grows too fond of a fighting rooster and also of a woman named Grace who is too popular with menfolks; wily Mrs. Plotnick deflates a three-year-old genius; a siren competes with fat Aunt Minnie for Uncle Maish the family dentist; Sussman sins but the neighborhood sins more; Uncle Ben buys the tux so the boy can go to the Opera Club dance with Mab—

This is a memoir not only of spring but of childhood and its tears and laughter seen richly and freshly through a boy's wide eyes.

The framework is a Hollywood scene: A successful film writer, preparing to move into a bigger and showier mansion, helps his wife, a Gentile, to discard unneeded articles and comes across a searing memento of his wonderful young Jewish years in Brooklyn. That sends him back where Mr. Hovick delivered ice and Uncle Phil poked fun at his saddle-backed nag; where ambitious Aunt Rose spotted genius in brother Leon; where the boys, plaguing half - witted Moey, are reminded that plaguing is much like the persecution their race has suffered; where beautiful Miriam, too old for our narrator but too young for Sussman, nevertheless yields insanely to her insane elderly suitor.

Moll's Seideman and Son" was a novel, and this is called one, too, however much the body of it suggests autobiography. Whichever it is, it's delightful. Moll talks rather than writes. This is Moll in bedroom slippers, slouched in an easy chair, relaxed, and you wish your visit wouldn't ever have to end.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

As soon as the holiday season is over each year, the publishers rush to release their new books. This past week there have been an unusually large number of fiction books, received at the Ouachita Parish Public Library. This is fine, because people are in the reading mood. Frank G. Slaughter is an expert in the field of medical fiction. His latest novel is called "Epidemic!" The publishers state that "This is Mr. Slaughter's most exciting novel—a tale of Hitchcock-like suspense about an ancient, monstrous destroyer that could strike again." This is the story of what happened to our largest city, when on a blistering hot August day in 1965, a ghostly exodus of flea-ridden rats from a tramp steamer moved into the streets of New York, bearing the germs of the black death, ghastly scourge of the middle ages. Read this book and shudder.

Stories of international intrigue are very popular with the readers who use the Ouachita Parish Public Library. Latest of this type is "The Mozart Leaves at Nine" a novel by Harris Greene. It has it's setting in Austria, in the second winter after the close of World War II. It is a well-written book and one which you will want to read and enjoy. An unusual and interesting book is "Men and Angels" written by Robin White. It is the story of the son of a missionary, who returned to India to find his father and in the search finds himself. The author has an Indian background and writes with clarity and inspiration. Winston Graham is a master of the novel of suspense and his latest book comes up to the standard of the others. It's title is "Marnie". It is the story of a girl who lived by lying, cheating and stealing and how life finally found her out.

Noel B. Gerson is the author of an exciting new novel, with a Biblical background. The title is "The Hittite". Books of this sort are always popular and Mr. Gerson writes well. "Summer of Pride" by Elizabeth Savage is a powerful and entertaining novel about a successful ranching family in present - day Idaho. It is a story of conflict between two strong characters and makes exciting reading.

The non - fiction added continues to add variety to the library collection. "The Analysis of Dreams" by Medard Boss is an interesting book, which will interest some readers. "Present Philosophical Tendencies" by Ralph Barton Perry is a discussion of some of the modern methods of philosophy. Thousands of people read Billy Graham's column every day and will be glad to know that the library now has much of this material in book form, called "My Answer."

"Spies for Democracy" by Kurt Singer is an interesting discussion of men and women, who have helped their country by serving as agents for the law enforcement bodies. Are you interested in the theater as a career? If so you will want to read "Your Career in the Theater" by Bruce Savan. It gives hints on how to get started and how to make a success of your profession. A book which will be most helpful to musicians is "Music at Your Fingertips" by Ruth Slenczyns. One of the most romantic spots in the world is Gibraltar. It has had a long and exciting history and Allen Andrews has written about it well in a book called "Gibraltar — Proud Fortress." Another interesting book is "The Strength to Move a Mountain" by W. S. Lee. This is the story of the building of the Panama Canal.

Biographies are always in demand and there are several new ones this week. "Miracle in the Morning" is the autobiography of Norman Bel Geddes, the designer. "Out of the Air" is the autobiography of Mary Margaret McBride.

The reference collection is the backbone of a library and the Ouachita Parish Public Library has a very fine reference collection, which is growing constantly. Three new titles were added this past week. One is the index of probate records of Morehouse Parish, La., 1870-1900. This was a gift from the Abram Morehouse Parish Chapter, N. D. D. A. R. Another valuable book is "Dictionary of Scientific Terms" by I. F. Henderson. This book is found at the Anna Meyer Branch. The third volume is "Current Biography Yearbook 1960" which includes a great deal of valuable information about living people.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Musical Comedy Atmosphere Set

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

Almost as soon as the last Christmas tree was de-iced and the New Year's noise makers were put away, signs of more serious musical - dramatic efforts appeared on the local scene.

The Northeast State art show featuring the paintings and ceremics of three seniors at the school attracted good attendance. This was the most complete display of its type seen to date at the college and was a definite credit to Charlotte Latham, Linda Landers and John Hogan whose works made up the show.

SOUTH PACIFIC

Next month will mark the third local production of a Rogers and Hammerstein musical here in as many years. According to George Brian, professor of speech at Northeast and director of "South Pacific" which is now in rehearsal, the target dates for performance have been set as February 16, 17 and 18. Other musicals from the two composers produced here were "Oklahoma!" and "The King and I."

The cast will include James Joiner as Henry; Palmer and Donna Jarrell as Emile de Beque and Nelly Forbush; Jimmie Greene as Bloody Mary; George Phillips as Stewpot; W.J. Haddad — Luther Billis; Jim Mulhearn — the professor; Mike George Patterson — Capt. George Brackett; Bill McIlvaine —Lt. Buzz Adams; Marilyn Burson — Liat, with Joiner doubling on the part of Commander William Herbison.

The sailors' song - and - dance group will include Windel Dyer, George Owens, Curtis Rape and Frank Parrino.

Murry Burford, Julia Wilhite, Sarah Womack, Mike Poulas, Carolyn Oliver, Karen Strozier, Kay McDonald, Alice Mullins and Beverly Blount will make up the girls' portion of the chorus and dance numbers. Pat Medaries will serve as assistant director.

The Neville High School band joined forces with the all - girl drum and bugle corps of Abbeville High School to represent Louisiana in Friday's presidential inaugural parade in Washington, D. C.

Such efforts on the part of local musical organizations are a credit to the band and its director. By accepting the invitation to march in the parade, Monroe stood out as one of fifty cities in the nation on that occasion since it represented the entire state.

On the subject of bands in general, attention has been called to the top musical quality displayed by the Northeast State Concert band which gave its mid - winter program about a month ago.

It will be recalled that this season opened with two appearances of the U.S. Marine Band in this area — at Ruston also at Ferriday. The season will also include a performance by the U. S. Air Force Band here on the Northeast Concerts series.

Styles and tastes vary over the years. The "concert in the park" by local bands throughout the country used to be a regular feature of the year's recreational round. Then, for reasons unknown, bands switched activities to the half - time at football games. Could it be that many now have re discovered they'd rather listen to the music rather than watch the footwork and complex figure - forming? If so, another era of concerts in the park as well as well - attended ones in the auditorium may be just around the corner.

Film producer Joe Pasternak has launched a campaign for people everywhere to open their ears. Says the former Hungarian, "If people would just listen, think how much better the world would be. It could be a wonderful world. But nobody listens any more.

"In our vocabulary there is a period at the end of a sentence. But who listens until anybody finishes the sentence? Nobody. We don't hear each other any more."

Failing as an actor when he first came to the United States, Pasternak pointed out he had received good advice and had listened to it. In 25 years, his 75 films have grossed a quarter of a billion dollars. "With that money, I could buy Hungary and bring it back to love, music and freedom," he said.

These are impressive earnings. But we never realized careful attention paid so well. That movie job Pasternak has on the side must have also had a hand in his profits.

My Brother Death, Tops

My Brother Death, by Cyrus Sulzberger (Harper)? This curious and fascinating volume is primarily a meditation on a phenomenon that has an infinite number of variations — death. Sulzberger, a veteran newspaper correspondent and world traveler, has seen death close - up in many places and ways — by war, famine and human savagery among others. He skims history to recount what famous philosophers, statesmen, generals and others have said about it. Then in several chamber - of - horrors chapters he recounts how humanity has met and inflicted death through the ages — individually and enmasse — through torture, famine, pestilence and just plain old age — and in the name of kings, religions, entertainment and what not. But in the summing up Sulzberger warms up to his subject and dwells almost poetically on sweet oblivion.

'Phedre' Translated

History Novel Is Tense, Thrilling

THE SHE-WOLF OF FRANCE. By Maurice Druon. Translated from French by Humphrey Hare. Scribners. $4.50

In 1323 Charles IV has just become King of France; his sister Isabella, the "she-wolf," is wife of Edward II, King of England — yet not technically wife because of the weak and depraved monarch's indecent fondness for Hugh Despenser; Roger Mortimer, his rebellion foiled, languishes in a dungeon in the Tower of London.

Mortimer's escapes, engineered by Bishop Orleton, gets Druon's newest addition to his series on the "accursed kings" off to an exciting start. Though the body of the longish novel doesn't quite live up to the promise of the opening chapters, there is no end of absorbing vignettes—the King with his favorite, the Queen with her lover, the ways of the money-lender, the besiegers and their sortie, the cross-Channel invaders. There is a sound amount of sound history, but for some stretches of this historical novel, history outweighs the novel. Yet the execution of Despenser and the murder of Edward form a climax so gruesome as to vie with the thrilling start.

Tempting The Patriot On Way To War

RESPITE. By Kimon Lolos. Harper. $3.50.

The place is the town of Banitsa on the ancient highway Egnatia way north of Athens, not far from the front. The time is winter 1940. Major, Captain, Lieutenant, Second Lieutenant, Little Duck and Stefania Popka are the principal characters. And the theme of this curiously exciting short first novel is the way love nags and nags everlastingly.

The Popkas are willing hosts to army men who, having started out for action with the enemy, are held up by inexplicable orders and required to cool off the martial ardor so painstakingly aroused by careful, rigid discipline. The Captain, Little Duck and some others take it in stride; since there's no war, they can drink, and visit the girls in town. But the Lieutenant, conscientious patriot, wants to come to grips with the hated foe and bemoans this enforced respite. It irks him to see the Second Lieutenant hover longingly around Stefania, pretty, peasant - like, dignified and worthy. He is irked still more by Little Duck's well meaning attempt to dissipate his gloom by showing him a good time on leave. Then with the orders to move at last received, the solemn and dedicated Lieutenant is left alone for a few crucial moments with the Stefania who had rejected the Second Lieutenant because, she realized, she could really love the Lieutenant.

Lolos puts his poor Lieutenant through the temptations of a Job, and his predicament is sad and also amusing; you sorrow for him, but you want to kid him. A fine fresh zesty life bubbles up in this story, and it's a treat to read it.

Adams Thought V-P Office Insignificant

By ARTHUR EDSON

WASHINGTON (AP) — Blunt John Adams, the first vice president this nation ever had, looked over his job and sourly defined it this way: "The most insignificant office that ever invention of man contrived."

During the last 170 years nearly everyone who has thought about it at all has agreed with Adams on the vice presidency.

Historians have deplored it, comedians have ridiculed it and until recently, leading politicians have shunned it.

And yet last Friday one of the most skillful politicians of this generation embarked on his first full week in this strange, almost make-believe job.

No questions kicking around Washington are more intriguing than these:

What will Lyndon B. Johnson, so aggressive, so restless, so ambitious, so used to authority, do to the vice presidency?

Or, what will the vice presidency do to him?

Nobody, not even the two men most concerned, President John F. Kennedy and Johnson, knows the answers.

Whether a vice president does a lot, or next to nothing, depends on the whim of the president. Right now, Kennedy's whim is to keep the energetic Johnson hopping. But no matter how noble the intentions, at the first sign of disagreement this relationship can abruptly cease.

It's true that Richard M. Nixon, in his eight years under Dwight D. Eisenhower, brought unusual vigor to the vice presidency.

But this could have been due to unusual circumstances that may never be repeated.

Eisenhower was well known, with his popularity unquestioned, while Nixon was young and eager to please. At no time could there be any worry about rivalry.

Fortunately for Nixon, Eisenhower had little interest in ceremonial duties, nor did he seem to care much about those sessions where party differences and strategy were threshed out.

PERFORMED

So Nixon performed these, and many other chores. And he worked at them so purposefully that when the time came for the Republicans to pick Eisenhower's successor, the only candidate they could see was Richard M. Nixon.

In 1953 Johnson was chosen leader of the Senate's Democrats. This made him, at 44, the youngest floor leader in the history of that leisurely old institution.

This reputation, he and his followers sincerely thought, would make him an ideal choice for the presidency.

But while Johnson prodded the Senate, Kennedy used his senatorial seat chiefly as a hunting license, and no hunter ever ranged so far or stalked his quarry so relentlessly.

In the end, Kennedy won, and won big, at the age of 43. And somehow he persuaded that great persuader, Lyndon Johnson, to accept second place.

All recent presidents have attempted to find work for their vice presidents. John Nance Garner, Henry A. Wallace, Alben Barkley and Nixon did a variety of odd jobs for their bosses.

Yet both Kennedy and Johnson are so ambitious it may be difficult to find a use for the Texan's talents that completely satisfies all concerned, especially after the novelty wears off.

Certainly the Constitution offers little help.

IT GIVES

It gives a vice president only three responsibilities:

1. To preside over the Senate, which is such a bore most vice presidents duck out as quickly as possible.

2. To vote in one of those rare instances when the Senate comes up with a tie.

3. To be ready in case something should happen to the president. Or, as a comic put it back in Grover Cleveland's time, when he saw Vice President Adlai E. Stevenson, grandfather of the new U. S. ambassador to the United Nations moseying down the street: "There goes the vice president of the United States with nothing on his mind except the health of the president."

Even while the Constitution was being drawn up, the vice presidency was a disappointment. Ben Franklin suggested that the vice president be called "his superfluous excellency."

But in the original setup good men became vice presidents because the runnerup in the Electoral College automatically got the job.

With the growth of political parties, the Constitution was amended so that electors voted for both a president and a vice president. And steadily the office slipped downhill.

It went to party hacks, often ancient and undistinguished sometimes in an effort to balance the ticket, sometimes because the convention delegates were tired and in a hurry to go home.

No man ever turned down the presidential nomination if it were offered him formally. But in 1844 Silar Wright of New York and in 1924 Frank Lowden of Illinois said, no, thanks, when asked to take a vice presidential nomination.

Those who did accept were frequently unhappy about it.

Teddy Roosevelt, nominated for the vice presidency, glumly wrote Gen. Leonard Wood: "By the time you receive this you will have learned from the daily press that I have been forced to take the veil."

Woodrow Wilson, an expert on government long before he turned politician, said of the vice presidency: "The chief embarrassment in discussing this office is, that in explaining how little there is to be said about it one has evidently said all there is to say."

But he didn't live up to his promise.

Marshall's own stories prove it. "There once were two brothers," Marshall said. "One ran away to sea, the other was elected vice president. Neither was heard of again."

Once, while visiting in Denver, Marshall noticed a policeman following him. Naturally he asked why. The policeman said he had been assigned to guard Marshall.

"Your labor is in vain," Marshall said. "Nobody ever was crazy enough to shoot at a vice president."

All of which is true. Yet in spite of this the stature of the job has grown.

Historian Clinton Rossiter believes Barkley was the most distinguished man to fill the office since John Calhoun took over in 1825.

And if Eisenhower reached far down in the party ranks to pick Nixon, as he did, Nixon at the end of eight years was able to convince 34 millions persons, the most who ever voted for a loser, that he should be president.

Johnson certainly ranks in the same classification with Barkley. And it's important not only to the Kennedy administration but to the country that his experiences are favorable, so favorable that in the future other first rate men will continue to seek the post. Or, at least, not turn it down.

For although our vice presidential candidates often appear to have been picked capriciously, seven of them—some good, some indifferent—have moved into the White House at the death of a president.

In less perilous times this may not have been too important, but political scientists emphasize that anyone who becomes president now should be considerably more than a party hack.

This is the third Johnson we have had for vice president. Richard Mentor Johnson served under Martin Van Buren, but he led such a scandalous private life—he set up housekeeping with a mulatto slave and had a couple of children by her—that his party didn't formally renominate him. It didn't matter much. Van Buren was licked anyway.

Young Cabinet, New Look To Rule The U. S.

By JACK BELL

Not since Franklin D. Roosevelt's eager beavers took charge in 1933 with visions of remolding the American way of life has an incoming Cabinet promised such verve in the task of pointing the nation toward the new frontiers of which John F. Kennedy spoke glowingly in the presidential campaign.

It is a young Cabinet, befitting the coming to full political power of the generation which fought World War II in the ranks or in the lower echelons of officers.

It is a brainy Cabinet. It has three Phi Beta Kappa key holders in Secretary of State Dean Rusk, Secretary of Defense Robert S. McNamara and Secretary of Agriculture Orville L. Freeman. Secretary of Labor Arthur Goldberg holds membership in the Order of the Coif—made up of law graduates in the top 10 per cent of their class.

By and large, it is a Cabinet with a Harvard accent. Besides the new president himself, four members studied at Harvard either as undergraduates or in the graduate school. They are Secretary of the Treasury Douglas Dillon, Atty. Gen. Robert F. Kennedy, Postmaster General J. Edward Day and McNamara.

There is business experience in the Cabinet, represented by McNamara, Dillon, Day, and Secretary of Commerce Luther H. Hodges.

POLITICIANS

It has its practical politicians, too, in Robert Kennedy, Hodges, Freeman, Secretary of Health, Education and Welfare Abraham A. Ribicoff and Secretary of Interior Stewart L. Udall.

The one thing this Cabinet lacks which those of President Eisenhower and Roosevelt had before is a woman member. FDR had Miss Frances Perkins at the helm of the Labor Department. Eisenhower chose Oveta Culp Hobby as the first secretary of health, education and welfare when that department was set up.

Although most of the members of the new Cabinet are young enough to join the Kennedy family in its favorite game of touch football, this is by no means the youngest set of presidential advisers.

Though its average age of 47.3 years compares with 56.6 years for Eisenhower's first Cabinet, the Kennedy Cabinet looks old beside that of George Washington. His five department heads averaged 39 years at the time of their appointment.

While Robert Kennedy is regarded as an extremely youthful attorney general at 34, Edmund Randolph was only two years older when Washington called him to service as the nation's chief legal officer.

In the same Cabinet, Secretary of the Treasury Alexander Hamilton was the youngest at 32 and Secretary of State Thomas Jefferson was the oldest at 46. Secretary of War Henry Knox was 39 and Postmaster General Samuel Osgood 42.

How the Kennedy Cabinet will operate remains to be seen. From all the signs it is not likely to conduct its business in the cacaphony of controversy that marked sessions of the Roosevelt Cabinet. Nor are members likely to enjoy the delegation of power Eisenhower gave to some of his top-ranking aides.

No member of the Kennedy Cabinet, for instance, seems in line to attain the national eminence in his field that the late Secretary of State John Foster Dulles and former Secretary of The Treasury George M. Humphrey gained in theirs.

Dulles was widely credited with making foreign policy, subject to his chief's approval. Humphrey just about called the turn of government financing, including defense spending, while he held office.

Kennedy just doesn't operate that way. He hasn't tackled as mammoth a task as the presidency, but he has kept personally on top of jobs he has filled as a member of the House and a member of the Senate.

While he trusts implicitly the men around him, Kennedy wants to know about as much about what they are doing as they do themselves. He never got high enough in the military ranks to become imbued with the staff system.

BE ABLE

He won't be able to keep in touch so closely as president. There aren't enough hours in a presidential day to learn everything going on in government. But the new president is a quick study. He plucks ideas swiftly. His communication with men who talk his language is lightning-like.

Kennedy has screened his Cabinet choices closely about their ideas. He has made it clear, for instance, that if he had thought he and Dillon didn't see-eye-to-eye on financial matters he would never have named the Republican undersecretary of state as his secretary of the Treasury.

This kind of screening seems to have been more thorough on Kennedy's part than any undertaken either by Roosevelt or Eisenhowr.

Roosevelt appeared to have picked some of his departmental heads out of a hat. Eisenhower took the recommendations of men who had helped him become president, naming businessmen for what was to be a businessman's government.

Kennedy said during the campaign his would "not be a businessman's administration but neither will it be a labor or farmers' administration."

In history there have been plenty of disagreements among presidential department heads. Hamilton and Jefferson started the nation off on that foot and the men around the president have been at it ever since.

The original Roosevelt cabinet was loaded for controversy almost from the start. It could hardly scape an almost continuous uproar with men like Secretary of Interior Harold L. Ickes and Secretary of Agriculture Henry A. Wallace sitting in its ranks.

Every Cabinet seems to turn up a whipping boy, a member toward whom the political opposition directs most of its blasts.

Under Roosevelt it was Wallace who kept the Republicans' teeth on edge. Under Eisenhower, Secretary of Agriculture Ezra Taft Benson absorbed more than his share of political poison darts from the Democrats and from some Republicans.

As attorney general, brother Bobby stands out as a shining target for the knives the Republicans are already beginning to sharpen.

The new president himself has said that Bobby "must lead the fight for law enforcement" and "administer our laws without favor and with matchless integrity." These laws, of course, include the controversial civil rights statutes about which much may be heard in the next four years.

A Naughty Life In A New Form

Casanova, as every college boy knows, was an 18th century lover, rake and adventurer without a peer.

What the undergraduate may not know is that aside from these memoirs, Casanova wrote various learned books, read Greek, spoke Latin and did most of his writing in French, although an Italian by birth. Making and squandering fortune after fortune, he disputed with Voltaire, talked to kings and was repentent in his old age only that he lacked strength for repeat performances of his early revels.

This is the sixth and final volume of the Machen translation first published in 1894. Since then, until the present edition, only 4,105 copies of this work had been struck off, if an appended bibliography is correct. Although based on a badly edited and incomplete French text, it's still the best available, pending publication abroad of Casanova's original.

The memoirs, produced when Casanova was about 70 years old and keeping black melancholy at bay by writing 10 or 12 hours a day, carry him only until 1773 when he was 48 and feeling the cold breath of age and waning fortune.

But during those 48 years he had made love to an almost unbelievable number of women, had accomplished one of the most famous jail breaks on record, and had made a million in France by setting up a state lottery. Moving in court circles, but also in the ranks of strolling players, blackguards and thieves, he had been a stool pigeon, confidence man, duelist. He had rescued damsels in distress, served and hobnobbed with cardinals, traveled from country to country like one possessed, and spent money like water, when he had it. He spent his last unhappy days as librarian to a nobleman in a lonely Bohemian castle.

Few will dispute Casanova's talent for making thoroughly readable copy out of a thoroughly naughty life. For those who doubt his veracity, savants give assurance that he invariably proves truthful on events that can be checked; the supposition, or hope, is that we are told the truth about that large and interesting share of his life spent behind locked doors.

Delightful Flashback To Spring

MEMOIR OF SPRING. By Elick Moll. Putnam. $3.

The iceman's horse Solly races Mike, the fruit man's; a boy grows too fond of a fighting rooster and also of a woman named Grace who is too popular with menfolks; wily Mrs. Plotnick deflates a three-year-old genius; a siren competes with fat Aunt Minnie for Uncle Maish the family dentist; Sussman sins but the neighborhood sins more; Uncle Ben buys the tux so the boy can go to the Opera Club dance with Mab—

This is a memoir not only of spring but of childhood and its tears and laughter seen richly and freshly through a boy's wide eyes.

The framework is a Hollywood scene: A successful film writer, preparing to move into a bigger and showier mansion, helps his wife, a Gentile, to discard unneeded articles and comes across a searing memento of his wonderful young Jewish years in Brooklyn. That sends him back where Mr. Hovick delivered ice and Uncle Phil poked fun at his saddle-backed nag; where ambitious Aunt Rose spotted genius in brother Leon; where the boys, plaguing half - witted Moey, are reminded that plaguing is much like the persecution their race has suffered; where beautiful Miriam, too old for our narrator but too young for Sussman, nevertheless yields insanely to her insane elderly suitor.

Moll's Seideman and Son" was a novel, and this is called one, too, however much the body of it suggests autobiography. Whichever it is, it's delightful. Moll talks rather than writes. This is Moll in bedroom slippers, slouched in an easy chair, relaxed, and you wish your visit wouldn't ever have to end.

Guide To Good Reading

By FRANCES FLANDERS
Ouachita Parish Librarian

As soon as the holiday season is over each year, the publishers rush to release their new books. This past week there have been an unusually large number of fiction books, received at the Ouachita Parish Public Library. This is fine, because people are in the reading mood. Frank G. Slaughter is an expert in the field of medical fiction. His latest novel is called "Epidemic!" The publishers state that "This is Mr. Slaughter's most exciting novel—a tale of Hitchcock-like suspense about an ancient, monstrous destroyer that could strike again." This is the story of what happened to our largest city, when on a blistering hot August day in 1966, a ghostly exodus of flea-ridden rats from a tramp steamer moved into the streets of New York, bearing the germs of the black death, ghastly scourge of the middle ages. Read this book and shudder.

Stories of international intrigue are very popular with the readers who use the Ouachita Parish Public Library. Latest of this type is "The Mozart Leaves at Nine" a novel by Harris Greene. It has it's setting in Austria, in the second winter after the close of World War II. It is a well-written book and one which you will want to read and enjoy. An unusual and interesting book is "Men and Angels" written by Robin White. It is the story of the son of a missionary, who returned to India to find his father and in the search finds himself. The author has an Indian background and writes with clarity and inspiration. Winston Graham is a master of the novel of suspense and his latest book comes up to the standard of the others. It's title is "Marnie". It is the story of a girl who lived by lying, cheating and stealing and how life finally found her out.

Noel B. Gerson is the author of an exciting new novel, with a Biblical background. The title is "The Hittite". Books of this sort are always popular and Mr. Gerson writes well. "Summer of Pride" by Elizabeth Savage is a powerful and entertaining novel about a successful ranching family in present - day Idaho. It is a story of conflict between two strong characters and makes exciting reading.

The non - fiction added continues to add variety to the library collection. "The Analysis of Dreams" by Medard Boss is an interesting book, which will interest some readers. "Present Philosophical Tendencies" by Ralph Barton Perry is a discussion of some of the modern methods of philosophy. Thousands of people read Billy Graham's column every day and will be glad to know that the library now has much of this material in book form, called "My Answer."

"Spies for Democracy" by Kurt Singer is an interesting discussion of men and women, who have helped their country by serving as agents for the law enforcement bodies. Are you interested in the theater as a career? If so you will want to read "Your Career in the Theater" by Bruce Savan. It gives hints on how to get started and how to make a success of your profession. A book which will be most helpful to musicians is "Music at Your Fingertips" by Ruth Slenczyns. One of the most romantic spots in the world is Gibraltar. It has had a long and exciting history and Allen Andrews has written about it well in a book called "Gibraltar — Proud Fortress." Another interesting book is "The Strength to Move a Mountain" by W. S. Lee. This is the story of the building of the Panama Canal.

Biographies are always in demand and there are several new ones this week. "Miracle in the Morning" is the autobiography of Norman Bel Geddes, the designer. "Out of the Air" is the autobiography of Mary Margaret McBride.

The reference collection is the backbone of a library and the Ouachita Parish Public Library has a very fine reference collection, which is growing constantly. Three new titles were added this past week. One is the index of probate records of Morehouse Parish, La., 1870-1900. This was a gift from the Abram Morehouse Parish Chapter, N. D. D. A. R. Another valuable book is "Dictionary of Scientific Terms" by I. F. Henderson. This book is found at the Anna Meyer Branch. The third volume is "Current Biography Yearbook 1960" which includes a great deal of valuable information about living people.

RUNNING THE SCALES

Musical Comedy Atmosphere Set

By JOHN CALE
Staff Writer

Almost as soon as the last Christmas tree was de-iced and the New Year's noise makers were put away, signs of more serious musical - dramatic efforts appeared on the local scene.

The Northeast State art show featuring the paintings and ceramics of three seniors at the school attracted good attendance. This was the most complete display of its type seen to date at the college and was a definite credit to Charlotte Latham, Linda Landers and John Hogan whose works made up the show.

SOUTH PACIFIC

Next month will mark the third local production of a Rogers and Hammerstein musical here in as many years. According to George Brian, professor of speech at Northeast and director of "South Pacific" which is now in rehearsal, the target dates for performance have been set as February 16, 17 and 18. Other musicals from the two composers produced here were "Oklahoma!" and "The King and I."

The cast will include James Joiner as Henry; Palmer and Donna Jarrell as Emile de Beque and Nelly Forbush; Jimmie Greene as Bloody Mary; George Phillips as Stewpot; W.J. Haddad — Luther Billis; Jim Mulhearn — the professor; Mike George Patterson — Capt. George Brackett; Bill McIlvaine —Lt. Buzz Adams; Marilyn Burson — Liat, with Joiner doubling on the part of Commander William Herbison.

The sailors' song - and - dance group will include Windel Dyer, George Owens, Curtis Rape and Frank Parrino.

Murry Burford, Julia Wilhite, Sarah Womack, Mike Poulas, Carolyn Oliver, Karen Strozier, Kay McDonald, Alice Mullins and Beverly Blount will make up the girls' portion of the chorus and dance numbers. Pat Medaries will serve as assistant director.

The Neville High School band joined forces with the all - girl drum and bugle corps of Abbeville High School to represent Louisiana in Friday's presidential inaugural parade in Washington, D. C.

Such efforts on the part of local musical organizations are a credit to the band and its director. By accepting the invitation to march in the parade, Monroe stood out as one of fifty cities in the nation on that occasion since it represented the entire state.

On the subject of bands in general, attention has been called to the top musical quality displayed by the Northeast State Concert band which gave its mid - winter program about a month ago.

It will be recalled that this season opened with two appearances of the U.S. Marine Band in this area — at Ruston also at Ferriday. The season will also include a performance by the U. S. Air Force Band here on the Northeast Concerts series.

Styles and tastes vary over the years. The "concert in the park" by local bands throughout the country used to be a regular feature of the year's recreational round. Then, for reasons unknown, bands switched activities to the half - time at football games. Could it be that many now have rediscovered they'd rather listen to the music rather than watch the footwork and complex figure - forming? If so, another era of concerts in the park as well as well - attended ones in the auditorium may be just around the corner.

Film producer Joe Pasternak has launched a campaign for people everywhere to open their ears. Says the former Hungarian, "If people would just listen, think how much better the world would be. It could be a wonderful world. But nobody listens any more.

"In our vocabulary there is a period at the end of a sentence. But who listens until anybody finishes the sentence? Nobody. We don't hear each other any more."

Failing as an actor when he first came to the United States, Pasternak pointed out he had received good advice and had listened to it. In 25 years, his 75 films have grossed a quarter of a billion dollars. "With that money, I could buy Hungary and bring it back to love, music and freedom," he said.

These are impressive earnings. But we never realized careful attention paid so well. That movie job Pasternak has on the side must have also had a hand in his profits.

My Brother Death, Tops

My Brother Death, by Cyrus Sulzberger (Harper)? This curious and fascinating volume is primarily a meditation on a phenomenon that has an infinite number of variations — death. Sulzberger, a veteran newspaper correspondent and world traveler, has seen death close - up in many places and ways — by war, famine and human savagery among others. He skims history to recount what famous philosophers, statesmen, generals and others have said about it. Then in several chamber - of - horrors chapters he recounts how humanity has met and inflicted death through the ages — individually and enmasse — through torture, famine, pestilence and just plain old age — and in the name of kings, religions, entertainment and what not. But in the summing up Sulzberger warms up to his subject and dwells almost poetically on sweet oblivion.

'Phedre' Translated

History Novel Is Tense, Thrilling

THE SHE-WOLF OF FRANCE. By Maurice Druon. Translated from French by Humphrey Hare. Scribners. $4.50

In 1323 Charles IV has just become King of France; his sister Isabella, the "she-wolf," is wife of Edward II, King of England — yet not technically wife because of the weak and depraved monarch's indecent fondness for Hugh Despenser; Roger Mortimer, his rebellion foiled, languishes in a dungeon in the Tower of London.

Mortimer's escapes, engineered by Bishop Orleton, gets Druon's newest addition to his series on the "accursed kings" off to an exciting start. Though the body of the longish novel doesn't quite live up to the promise of the opening chapters, there is no end of absorbing vignettes—the King with his favorite, the Queen with her lover, the ways of the money-lender, the besiegers and their sortie, the cross-Channel invaders. There is a sound amount of sound history, but for some stretches of this historical novel, history outweighs the novel. Yet the execution of Despenser and the murder of Edward form a climax so gruesome as to vie with the thrilling start.

Tempting The Patriot On Way To War

RESPITE. By Kimon Lolos. Harper. $3.50.

The place is the town of Banitsa on the ancient highway Egnatia way north of Athens, not far from the front. The time is winter 1940. Major, Captain, Lieutenant, Second Lieutenant, Little Duck and Stefania Popka are the principal characters. And the theme of this curiously exciting short first novel is the way love nags and nags everlastingly.

The Popkas are willing hosts to army men who, having started out for action with the enemy, are held up by inexplicable orders and required to cool off the martial ardor so painstakingly aroused by careful, rigid discipline. The Captain, Little Duck and some others take it in stride; since there's no war, they can drink, and visit the girls in town. But the Lieutenant, conscientious patriot, wants to come to grips with the hated foe and bemoans this enforced respite. It irks him to see the Second Lieutenant hover longingly around Stefania, pretty, peasant - like, dignified and worthy. He is irked still more by Little Duck's well meaning attempt to dissipate his gloom by showing him a good time on leave. Then with the orders to move at last received, the solemn and dedicated Lieutenant is left alone for a few crucial moments with the Stefania who had rejected the Second Lieutenant because, she realized, she could really love the Lieutenant.

Lolos puts his poor Lieutenant through the temptations of a Job, and his predicament is sad and also amusing; you sorrow for him, but you want to kid him. A fine fresh zesty life bubbles up in this story, and it's a treat to read it.

10-Inch Snow Covers Part Of Tennessee

By United Press International

A bone - chilling cold wave gripped Tennessee Saturday in the wake of a storm which dumped up to ten inches of snow in some sections of the state.

Temperatures hovered around the 20 degree mark at mid-day and the U. S. Weather Bureau predicted the mercury would plummet to zero in some sections of the mid-state area Saturday night.

Sprinklings of snow dusted accumulations of ten inches in the Great Smokies around Gatlinburg, four inches at Crossville, and two inches at Knoxville, Tri Cities and Nashville. For some sections, it was the biggest snow of the winter.

An additional two inches of snow was predicted for the Smokies and another inch or so along the Cumberland Ridges around Crossville. Further accumulations for the remainder of the state were expected to be slight.

Highway department maintenance crews attacked the snow with every available grader and snow plow. Most of the main roads were cleared by mid-morning but roads in many rural areas and some side roads in metropolitan areas remained treacherous.

Cab drivers in Knoxville did a booming business as many commuters chose to hail a cab rather than try to fight the icy highways on their own.

NEW BRIDGE on Breard Street is being constructed as part of the $506,000 southside portion of the city's huge drainage canal project. Coastal Contractors are building the bridge to have it ready when the canal comes through. Street is directly in the canal's route, and canal will tunnel under it. Monroe Reports On Street Work

Work on the $506,000 southside portion of the drainage canal has reached the bridge-building stage.

Street Commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez reported on the underpass progress Friday, while city engineer Tom Keller explained the connection between new bridges and the canal.

Bentz and Elmore contractors are in charge of the current work on Plum Street. Sanitary sewerage lines running under the center of the street are being relocated.

Next, the Utilities Commission will move in to re-route the water lines, and gas lines will be moved.

A Missouri - Pacific Railroad crew is due to start on the railroad's share of work in mid-February. Estimated railroad expense is about $100,000.

Monroe will pay $115,000 toward the underpass cost.

It is due for completion in late August.

The southside portion of the main drainage canal, begun in late 1960, is progressing from the city limits at Milhaven Road and Orange Street toward Louisville Avenue. Coastal contractors are doing the work.

Keller pointed out that work on the drainage canal must start at the lowest point of elevation and work upwards toward the northern part of the city.

About two - thirds of the canal will be located on the southside. A contract for the northern part is expected to be let this spring. Funds come from a 1958 bond issue.

Where the canal's route intersects streets, bridge structures are being built now, so that the bridges will be ready when the canal comes through.

Work also is underway to pave Breard from Louisville west to the Arkansas and Louisiana-Missouri railroad spur.

Rodriguez said that Gibson's wholesale and the railroad each are paying $3.61 per front foot, or $1407.90 each, for the entire cost of the street work.

10-Inch Snow Covers Part Of Tennessee

By United Press International

A bone - chilling cold wave gripped Tennessee Saturday in the wake of a storm which dumped up to ten inches of snow in some sections of the state.

Temperatures hovered around the 20 degree mark at mid-day and the U. S. Weather Bureau predicted the mercury would plummet to zero in some sections of the mid-state area Saturday night.

Sprinklings of snow dusted accumulations of ten inches in the Great Smokies around Gatlinburg, four inches at Crossville, and two inches at Knoxville, Tri Cities and Nashville. For some sections, it was the biggest snow of the winter.

An additional two inches of snow was predicted for the Smokies and another inch or so along the Cumberland Ridges around Crossville. Further accumulations for the remainder of the state were expected to be slight.

Highway department maintenance crews attacked the snow with every available grader and snow plow. Most of the main roads were cleared by mid-morning but roads in many rural areas and some side roads in metropolitan areas remained treacherous.

Cab drivers in Knoxville did a booming business as many commuters chose to hail a cab rather than try to fight the icy highways on their own.

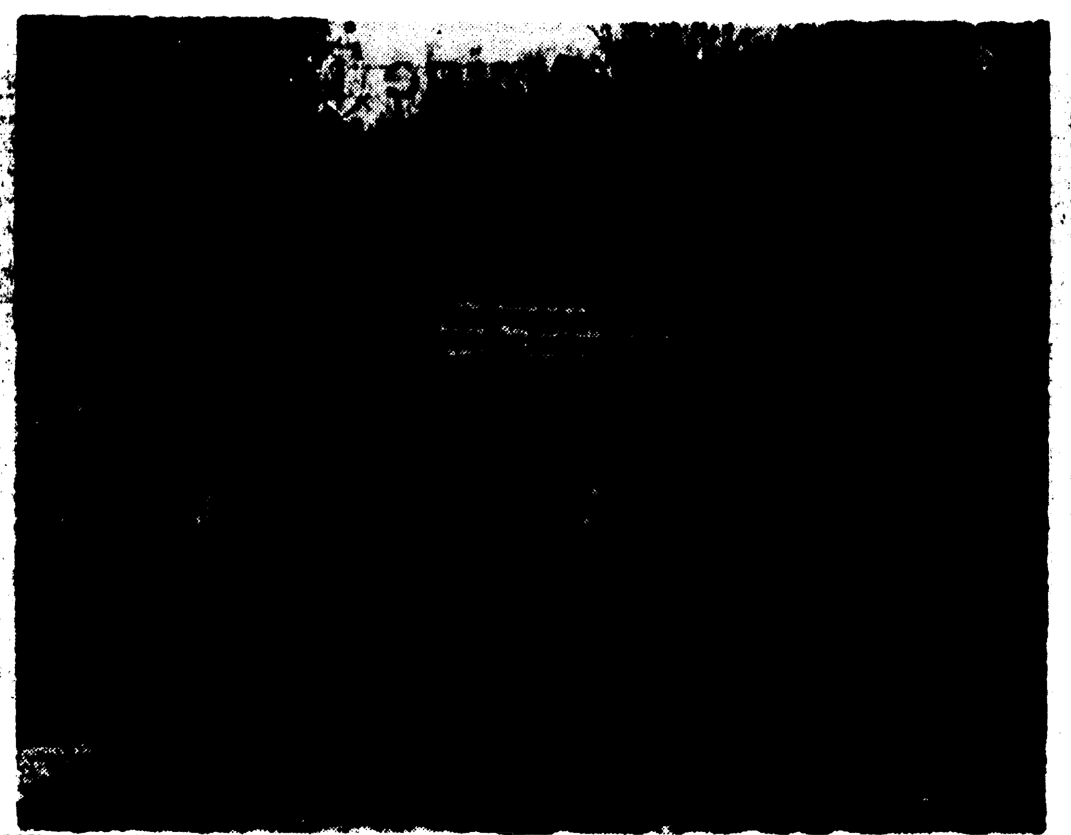
Mrs. Browning's Services Slated

Mrs. Ada Lee Browning, 78-year-old Swartz resident, died Saturday morning in a local hospital after a long illness.

Funeral services will be held at 2:30 p.m. Monday at the Loch Arbor Baptist Church near Swartz with the Rev. Roach officiating, assisted by the Rev. Wilburn. Burial will be in the Loch Arbor Cemetery under the direction of Hixson Brothers Funeral Home.

The body will lie in state at the funeral home until time for the services Monday.

She is survived by one son; V L. Nichols of Zion, Ill. and three grandchildren.



NEW BRIDGE on Breard Street is being constructed as part of the $506,000 southside portion of the city's huge drainage canal project. Coastal Contractors are building the bridge to have it ready when the canal comes through. Street is directly in the canal's route, and canal will tunnel under it. Another such bridge is being built on DeSiard Street, just east of 26th Street. (Staff Photo by Davis Roane)

Monroe Reports On Street Work

Work on the $506,000 southside portion of the drainage canal has reached the bridge-building stage.

Street Commissioner W. D. H. Rodriguez reported on the underpass progress Friday, while city engineer Tom Keller explained the connection between new bridges and the canal.

Bentz and Elmore contractors are in charge of the current work on Plum Street. Sanitary sewerage lines running under the center of the street are being relocated.

Next, the Utilities Commission will move in to re-route the water lines, and gas lines will be moved.

A Missouri - Pacific Railroad crew is due to start on the railroad's share of work in mid-February. Estimated railroad expense is about $100,000.

Monroe will pay $115,000 toward the underpass cost.

It is due for completion in late August.

The southside portion of the main drainage canal, begun in late 1960, is progressing from the city limits at Milhaven Road and Orange Street toward Louisville Avenue. Coastal contractors are doing the work.

Keller pointed out that work on the drainage canal must start at the lowest point of elevation and work upwards toward the northern part of the city.

About two - thirds of the canal will be located on the southside. A contract for the northern part is expected to be let this spring. Funds come from a 1958 bond issue.

Where the canal's route intersects streets, bridge structures are being built now, so that the bridges will be ready when the canal comes through.

Work also is underway to pave Breard from Louisville west to the Arkansas and Louisiana-Missouri railroad spur.

Rodriguez said that Gibson's wholesale and the railroad each are paying $3.61 per front foot, or $1407.90 each, for the entire cost of the street work.

Three Malta Stamps For New Issues

To commemorate the centenary of its first postage stamp, Malta has issued three new stamps, each of which features a facsimile of the first half-penny stamp bearing a profile portrait of Queen Victoria.

The new Maltese issues — 1½ pence green, 3 pence red and 6 pence blue — also depict a portrait of Queen Elizabeth II and the St. Edward's Crown. Each has the inscription "Centenary of First Malta Stamp 1st December 1860-1960." The stamps were released on Dec. 1, the anniversary date.

Also reported from the British Crown Agents is the news that the Federation of Malaya has issued the remaining denominations in its new definitive set. In this issue the portrait of His Highness Sultan Sir Ibrahim appears on each.

There are four stamps in this group. The designs show the East Coast Railway, fishing craft, government offices and a native wrestling match. There were seven previous issues in the set.

Belgium has issued three new stamps honoring the royal marriage of King Bauduoin to Dona Fabiola de Moray Aragon. The 40 centimes, 3 franc and 6 franc have the same design showing circular photographs of the new King and Queen.

The Tokyo Bureau of the Associated Press reports it has received word via Peiping radio that a set of 18 stamps each bearing the design of a chrysanthemum is being issued by Communist China. The radio broadcast said the first group of six stamps with face values from eight to 52 cents has already been issued. The chrysanthemum is one of the most popular flowers among the Chinese people.

The radio report noted that thousands of varieties of this particular flower have been cultivated by horticulturists since the Reds took over Mainland China.

Actor Hinges Role On Review

NEW YORK (AP) — Donald Davis is a cautious actor.

Cast for the leading role in the upcoming Broadway play, "Catstick," Davis was offered star billing by producer - director Elaine Perry. He said he would accept the distinction only if the reviews warrant.

"Catstick" is the third New York appearance for Davis. The Canadian-born actor previously performed in "Tamburlaine the Great" and "Krapp's Last Tape."

STARRING in "The Sundowners", a story of itinerant Australian sheep driver and his wife, are Deborah Kerr and Robert Mitchum. The picture opens today at the Paramount Theatre. It also stars Peter Ustinov, Glynis Johns and Dina Merrill and was directed by Fred Zinnemann.

AUSSIE 'OUTBACK'

'The Sundowners' Now At Paramount

"The Sundowners," opening today at the Paramount Theatre, is the creation of a new land, historically speaking. The Warner Bros. Technicolor production was conceived in Australia, and it was effected in Australia.

And if it is anything less than an honest story of the Australian "outback," it is through no fault of Fred Zinnemann, who would rather make no picture at all than make an artificial one.

The Warner Bros. troupe for "The Sundowners," handpicked by the director, turned out to be a sort of United Nations road company: Deborah Kerr, Robert Mitchum, Peter Ustinov, Glynis Johns, Dina Merrill.

Miss Kerr comes from England via Hollywood.

HOLLYWOODITE

Peter Ustinov — actor, playwright, director — holds a British passport, lives in Switzerland, is of Russian and French descent and works all over the world.

Glynis Johns is a fiery blonde Londoner who was a star at 14 and plays her first "character" role in "The Sundowners," a move she was loathe to make except under the persuasive influence of Zinnemann, who was determined to have her for his film.

"The Sundowners" is a sprightly, earthy story of Australia and the family of an itinerant, hard-living sheep drover. It was filmed in Australia and London.

BRISKLY TOLD

Briskly told, excitingly dramatized and animated with performers of exceptional gifts and personal appeal, "The Sundowners" is the first Hollywood motion picture to present an authentic view of life in the Australian "outback" — where kangaroo outnumber people; where the untamed civilization is remindful of America's pioneer West, and where the landscape varies from the lush greenness of the Snowy River Mountains in New South Wales to the torrid aridity of the salt and clay pans of Australia.

The company of 125 Americans, British and Australians operated in many locations thousands of miles apart — in the bush towns of Cooma, Nimmitabel and Jindabyne of New South Wales; in the desert towns of Port Augusta, Whyalla, Quorn, Iron Knob, Hawker and Carriewerloo of South Australia, and 12,500 miles away, in the civilized sound stages of Elstree Studios, London.

Cuba Is Locale For New Version Of Julius Castro

NEW YORK (AP) — Present-day Cuba is the locale used by Will Fowler for a new version of Shakespeare's "Julius Caesar."

The script is under consideration for Broadway production. It was suggested by a friend who wrote down "Julius Castro" as the title, then asked Fowler how long he would take to write the drama.

Fowler, a screen writer and son of late author Gene Fowler, finished the job in six weeks.

GULLIVER, played by Kerwin Mathews, towers over the little Lilliputians in "The Worlds of Gulliver" filmed in Superdynamation and color, which opens Thursday at the Paramount Theatre.

Curtain Call

By BB STRON

The cast of "The Mousetrap" is rehearsing nightly. The scene is laid in the great hall at Monkwell Manor. For the play we will need some "very English" properties. It takes place in the wintertime, and director, Richard Clark, will need some skis and ski sticks. He will also need some lightweight ski pants, size 32. Among the other properties needed for the play are: English magazines, any year or month; leather luggage, any color or size (quite a few pieces are needed); leather bound bookstyle writing pad, and plus fours. If you have any of these items or know where we can "borrow, beg or steal them," will you please give Richard a buzz at FAirfax 5-8710.

Among our traveling Little Theatre members and patrons was Bob Evans, who was in New York. While there he was privileged to see "Camelot," the new musical on Broadway, and "Becket" with Sir Lawrence Olivier, both of which he enjoyed immensely.

TO NEW ORLEANS

Traveling to New Orleans this weekend to see "The Music Man" were Mattie Lou Lester, Gerry Lester, and V. P. Dalrymple.

Also in New Orleans for a luncheon meeting of the Colonial Dames were Frances McHenry, Lessie Garrett, Ethel Boardman and Mary Wilton McHenry.

We had quite a few visitors to the set this week, and among them were Sharon Britt, Gerry Lester, Diane Mathews, Buddy Moore, and Joan Bodenheimer.

During the run of the last play, someone left a man's brown hat at the theatre. Anyone wishing to claim this hat, please call Richard Clark at FAirfax 5-8710 and make arrangements to pick it up.

"The Mousetrap" will be the last play presented at the Selman Field Playhouse. We hope to be in the new Strauss Playhouse in April for the opening of our musical "Damn Yankees." If you have not seen the Playhouse lately, drive by Lamy Lane and see the progress being made. They are putting the roof on the lobby this week, and things seem to be running along smoothly and on schedule.

Be sure to call Richard, if you can supply any of the properties listed for the current play.

Military Tatoo Fourth Festival To Be Largest

VANCOUVER, B.C. (AP)—The largest military tattoo pageant of all is being prepared for Vancouver's fourth International Festival next summer.

Preparations are being handled by Brigadier Alasdair Maclean, who previously has staged 20 of the displays, including the annual Edinburgh Tattoo and those in Copenhagen, Lisbon, New York and Bermuda.

Maclean says more than a thousand members of Canada's military forces will participate, plus units from other nations.

'The Grass Is Greener' Due At The Jim

The third time, according to legend, is the charm. Which means that producer - director Stanley Donen's "The Grass Is Greener" should be an all time screen charmer. The happy third time combination crops up no less than five times in the new Technicolor - Technirama comedy success coming to the Jim Theatre soon.

"The Grass Is Greener," which Donen made under the Grandon Production banner for Universal-International release, stars Cary Grant, Deborah Kerr, Robert Mitchum and Jean Simmons. It marks the third association of Grant and Donen (from whose names the corporate title Grandon Productions is taken), an association that previously embraced "Kiss Them for Me" and "Indiscreet."

THIRD TIME

Hollywood observers also note that picture marks the third time Grant has appeared with Miss Kerr, the third time Miss Kerr has appeared with Mitchum and the third time she has co - starred with Jean Simmons and the third time for Miss Simmons and Mitchum. Miss Kerr and Mitchum, in fact, began work on "The Grass Is Greener" only two weeks after they had finished their second film together, "The Sundowners."

This lucky combination, Donen explains, was not the result of any superstition. "It's just that these four stars represent an ideal combination," he points out. "In 'The Grass Is Greener' they all work together in variations of the third time around."

New Oil Field Is Possible In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Ada Oil Co. - Gammil and Smith ran production tests in a Pike County wildcat this week in a potential new oil field find four miles south of Magnolia.

The well reported swabbed an unestimated amount of oil and water.

In the Traxler area of Smith County, Triad Oil and Gas Co. and Jett Drilling Co. neared completion of a wildcat, the Dukes-Central No. 1, sec. 36-3n-6e, as a new lower cretaceous oil field discovery.

The well also logged good oil shows in the Paluxy formation at 10,008-32 feet, but the shows have not been tested for commercial worth.

The new discovery is located between the Raleigh oil field of Smith County and the Puckett field of Rankin County.

In the Puckett field, Larco Drilling Co. ran production casing at the McIntyre et al No. 1, sec. 13-3n-5e, to evaluate commercial worth of a number of oil sands logged in the lower cretaceous.

The well was drilled to 10,000 feet and electrical logs indicated several zones of possible commercial worth.

In the recently found southeast McComb field of Pike County, Humble Oil and Refining Co. cleared location for the unit No. 1, sec. 19-3n-8e, a 11,300 foot test. The southeast McComb field has one producer.

Two new tests in the Smithdale oil field of Amite were scheduled soon. Larco Drilling Co. was rigging up at the Ratcliff No. 1, sec. 21-4n-6e, and N. V. Kinsey Jr., had location stakes for the Burris No. 1, sec. 17-4n-6e.

Both ventures were scheduled to 11,200 feet.

In Walthall County, Jett Drilling Co. was below 7,300 feet in a wildcat, the Hauberg No. 1, sec. 10-4n-10e. Triad Oil and Gas Co. set surface casing in another wildcat, the Fernwood Lumber Co. No. 1, sec. 29-4n-10e.

Both were scheduled to 10,800 feet.

Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Co. has erected a building derrick at the Allen No. 1, sec. 9-5n-2w, in Hinds County.

Field drilling the past week brought four new oilers.

Larco Drilling Co. completed the Alex Walters No. 1, sec. 33-5n-8e, which flowed 175 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 10,802-10 feet. This well is at Little Creek Field on the Lincoln County side.

On the Pike County side of Little Creek, Constantin and Knight completed the Hartwell - Wallace No. 1, sec. 10-4n-8e, which flowed 300 barrels of oil per day from a Tuscaloosa sand at 10,757-66 feet.

In the Reedy Creek Field of Jones County, Larco Drilling Co. completed the Newell heirs unit No. 1, sec. 10-9n-1w, which pumped 20 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 7,303-10 feet.

Land Or Water Vehicles Being Developed Now

DETROIT (UPI)—Detroit engineers are talking about two new types of land-and-water vehicles.

One is a truck that swims and the other is a ground effect machine that skims along over land and sea on a bubble of air.

Both were mentioned prominently at the recent first international congress and exposition of automotive engineering in Detroit.

T. J. Bischoff of the ordnance tank-automotive command and T. R. Gondert of Stevens Institute of Technology describe the truck as a 2-ton Army cargo truck designed to increase mobility in tactical vehicles.

Fuels Policy Study Planned In Nation

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — One little item was missing this week as several oil industry spokesmen pledged cooperation with a national fuels policy study.

None of the pledges included any hint oilmen are willing to join the coal industry in asking Congress or the new Kennedy administration to make such a study.

Oil spokesmen, for the most part, still feel there is no need for a study but most of the new statements omitted earlier criticism of the coal industry. Several of the statements made no reference to coal.

EXCEPTION

Frank Porter, president of the American Petroleum Institute (API), was an exception. Porter pledged support of an impartial and objctive investigation but said the study proposals result from hopes of the coal industry to gain advantage over its competitors.

Unsuccessful concurrent resolutions proposing that Congress order such a study last year were accompanied by charges that coal interests were asking the government to establish "end use" controls that would prevent consumers from selecting the type of energy preferred.

The National Coal Policy Conference Inc. denied the charges and published newspaper advertisements saying a policy study was needed because a world glut of oil was threatening the domestic oil, gas and coal industries.

This year the National Coal Association has taken the study request directly to President John F. Kennedy. Included in the coal request was an appeal for curtailed heavy fuel oil imports.

This development offers the possibility of two fuels policy studies — one by Congress and another by the executive branch.

Maneuvering for 1961 action on the study proposal began last summer with the adoption of national platforms by the Democratic and Republican parties.

The Republicans pledged support to "long range minerals and fuels planning and programming, including increased coal research."

Foreign Stock Trading Being Made Easier

NEW YORK (AP)—Americans with an urge to buy and sell Japanese stocks can soon use a short cut that has speeded up such deals in European shares — American Depository Receipts.

These make trading in foreign securities faster and easier by doing it all right here through a linkup of American and foreign banks handling specific issues. The ADR gained in popularity early last year when European stock markets were booming while the American variety was alternately skidding or idling.

The ADR is a certificate issued by an American bank on a particular corporate share held by a foreign bank as correspondent. The ADR can be bought and sold here, eliminating the transfer of the securities overseas, and thus giving the buyer prompt ownership without actual physical possession.

The device also sidesteps for an in-and-out trader whatever limitations a foreign land still keeps on transfer of recovered investments after a sale, and eases any remaining difficulties on currency exchange.

In Japan, for example, Americans buying Japanese shares directly can repatriate one-third of their investment and earnings only after holding them two years, a second third after three years, and the remainder after four years.

An ADR will simplify that for trading within this country.

Total American investment in Japanese shares has been relatively small, but interest has perked up of late because prices on Japanese stock markets last year increased by about 50 per cent on average. And the advent of the ADR is expected to aid a drive for further American investment in the islands.

But would-be investors should remember that just because an American bank issues an ADR on a foreign stock of whatever origin, there's no guarantee that the stock involved won't go down in price.

Just what happened to many in European markets in the final months of 1960 because the business boom was slowing down in some lands and because some traders feared that U.S. spending abroad would be cut further to defend the strength of the dollar. Such fears have been expressed of late in Tokyo.

The Japanese Finance Ministry has just approved plans for four U.S. banks to issue among them ADRs on shares of 16 big Japanese companies, subject to approval of the U.S. Securities & Exchange Commission. Ten Japanese banks will act as depositories for the shares.

The New York banks involved are: First National City, Morgan Guaranty, Chemical Bank New York Trust, and Irving Trust. The Japanese companies are in the fields of electronics, metals, oil, shipbuilding, chemicals, machinery, insurance, trading and utilities.

The Japanese will retain the time limitations on repatriating direct investments in the corporations and also their ban on foreigners owning more than 15 per cent of any Japanese company. This may hold down the total of American investment in Japan as compared with other nations without such restrictions.

Some 150 ADRs of foreign corporations are now traded actively in New York. The banks issuing them usually handle collection of dividends and take care of dollar exchange formalities.

Direct trading in foreign securities also has been active in the last 18 months on overseas stock exchanges through American brokerage houses with foreign connections. And shares of a number of prominent foreign corporations, especically Canadian, are listed on stock exchanges in this country.

West Monroyan Shot Accidentally

Lynn Whitman of West Monroe, was admitted to St. Francis Hospital Friday night after being injured in a gun accident.

It was reported that he was shot in the thigh while cleaning a .22 caliber rifle in West Monroe.

Economic Problems Foreseen

NEW YORK (AP) — Business decisions and most business barometers pointed toward a further industrial slowdown this week, pointing up immediate economic problems for the new Kennedy administration.

Production cutbacks were ordered in such basic industries as automobiles, oil and copper. The steel industry sharply curtailed plans to spend money for new plants and equipment in 1961.

These moves are expected to become downward lines on future charts, paralleling similar declines disclosed for industrial production, personal income and housing starts in December.

Arthur Goldberg, the incoming labor secretary, estimated the current number of unemployed at 5.5 million, up a million from the reported mid-December total.

NO PROPOSALS

President Kennedy made no economic proposals in his inaugural address, confining himself to international matters, but his economic task forces previously had urged swift new spending programs to combat the business slump.

Outgoing President Eisenhower, in his final budget and again in his last economic report to the nation, warned against big increases in government spending. He said the economy was in good shape despite declines in production and employment, which he attributed to liquidation of an over-accumulation of inventories.

Auto inventories of over a million units at last report were one factor behind a 10 per cent reduction planned in auto production this week. Sales contests for dealers and salesmen, an old industry tactic, were whipped up to pep up demand and avoid a repetition of the disastrous 1958 selling pattern.

In similar fashion, Texas authorites reduced permissible oil production next month to an eight-day producing pattern, one day less than in January. Copper producers trimmed their price and also cut output 10 to 15 per cent in a twin effort to get the red metal moving.

The American iron and steel institute said steelmakers plan to spend $1.2 billion on new facilities this year, down 19 per cent from 1960's $1.48 billion. Last year's spending was 7.5 per cent under the 1960 goal.

FALL SEEN

The Federal Reserve Board said industrial production in December fell two percentage points to 103 per cent of the 1958 average, the lowest level in more then a year. Principal villians: Weakness in steel and auto output.

Particularly chilling to economists was $2.3 billion drop in personal income reported by the Commerce Department for December, bringing the seasonlly adjusted annual rate to $406.7 billion. Continued heavy spending by consumers has been cited time and again in recent months as a bulwark of the economy.

Consumers apparently were undaunted by the figures, however. Department store sales last week were reported by the Federal Reserve Board to be 7 per cent higher than in the similar 1960 week.

Private housing starts in December fell to the lowest level in two years, the Census Bureau reported. It figured the seasonally adjusted annual rate at 999,000 units, down 18 per cent from November and 32 per cent from December, 1959.

Briefly over the business scene — Two New York banks, Manufacturers Trust Co. and the Hanover Bank, announced plans to merge into the city's third largest bank and the country's fourth largest. . . . Glen Alden Corp., which had offered on Jan. 3 to buy Endicott-Johnson Corp. stock, shifted signals and announced it would sell all stock tendered, plus a sizable block previously received in a stockswap, to the Endicott-Johnson pension fund. . . . The National Board of Fire Underwriters estimated 1960 fire losses in the United States at $1,107,824,000, a record. . . . A. M. Sonnabend, who resigned as a Studebaker-Packard Corp. director when he didn't get the president's jo, was named chairman of the Seagrave Corp. . . . The Federal Communications commision tentatively approved a major test of pay-tv at Hartford, Conn. . . . Peter Hoguet, president of Econometrics Institute Ins., predicted a 41 per cent gain in U.S. industrial production in the next decade.

ALUMINUM AND PLASTICS

New Materials In Autos

DETROIT (AP)—From the days of the tin Lizzie to the streamlined models of 1961 automobiles have been built mostly of iron and steel.

For almost that long materials such as aluminum have been trying to get a piece of the business. The big push has come in the last decade as new technology made aluminum, plastics and some of the other metals more competitive.

An increased challenge to tradition arose when manufacturers decided on drastic cuts in size and weight of American cars.

This opened the door. Engineers began listening to those who claimed their materials could be substituted for iron or steel or zinc with savings not only in weight but in cost and often in efficiency.

BREAKTHROUGH

"First there has to be a 'breakthrough'," one plastics man said. "You have to get somebody to use your stuff as it should be used. Then his competitors see it and they have to have it, too. So the process snowballs."

The most determined campaigns are being waged by aluminum, plastics and magnesium. One aluminum company estimates the use of this light metal has jumped from 12 pounds per car in the 1948 model year to 62 pounds per car average now.

The Society of the Plastics Industry, Inc., claims the volume of plastics in an average car has doubled—from 11 pounds to 22 pounds—in the last seven years.

Magnesium, half again as light weight as aluminum, trails both it and plastics in acceptance. But Dow Chemical Co., producer of more than 90 per cent of the domestic magnesium, predicts a jump from the present pound per car to 10 to 15 pounds by 1965.

With aluminum and the plastics also predicting great things for the almost immediate future, iron, steel and most recently zinc have begun to fight back.

John L. Kimberley, executive vice president of the American Zinc Institute, says zinc usage is up 14½ pounds per car in the last two years.

Last year and again two months ago representatives of United States steel made elaborate presentations to Detroit's automakers, showing new and different uses for steel.

JOINED

Stainless steel producers have joined the fight and just recently scored a victory with the adoption by Ford of a new muffler made for the 1961 Thunderbird. Trade sources suggest it should last at least four years in normal use.

Most cars come equipped with aluminum-coated mufflers. American Motors this year introduced the first ceramic-coated exhaust system.

Aluminum has made notable gains. The Corvair appeared with a mostly aluminum engine. Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac offer this year for the first time an aluminum V8 engine. Rambler and Chrysler have new six-cylinder engines with aluminum cylinder blocks.

Plastics have taken dead aim on the dashboards and body hardware of modern cars, emphasizing weight and cost savings. Magnesium exponents claim their metal may well be more suitable than aluminum in some applications such as transmission housings.

The four GM divisions and American Motors which are using aluminum engines in volume express pleasure with their performance but all have had some production problems.

NEARLY 1½ MILLION customers were added to the nation's fast-growing natural gas network during 1960 when transmission systems were extended by nearly 10,000 miles. Natural gas customers have more than doubled since 1950, and the number of customers using all types of gas, including LP "bottled gas," now totals more than 42 million.

New Oil Field Is Possible In Mississippi

JACKSON, Miss. (AP)—Ada Oil Co. - Gammill and Smith ran production tests in a Pike County wildcat this week in a potential new oil field find four miles south of Magnolia.

The well reported swabbed an unestimated amount of oil and water.

In the Traxler area of Smith County, Triad Oil and Gas Co. and Jett Drilling Co. neared completion of a wildcat, the Dukes-Central No. 1, sec. 36-3n-6e, as a new lower cretaceous oil field discovery.

The well also logged good oil shows in the Paluxy formation at 10,008-32 feet, but the shows have not been tested for commercial worth.

The new discovery is located between the Raleigh oil field of Smith County and the Puckett field of Rankin County.

In the Puckett field, Larco Drilling Co. ran production casing at the McIntyre et al No. 1, sec. 13-3n-5e, to evaluate commercial worth of a number of oil sands logged in the lower cretaceous.

The well was drilled to 10,000 feet and electrical logs indicated several zones of possible commercial worth.

In the recently found southeast McComb field of Pike County, Humble Oil and Refining Co. cleared location for the unit No. 1, sec. 19-3n-6e, a 11,300 foot test. The southeast McComb field has one producer.

Two new tests in the Smithdale oil field of Amite were scheduled soon. Larco Drilling Co. was rigging up at the Ratcliff No. 1, sec. 21-4n-6e, and N. V. Kinsey Jr., had location stakes for the Burris No. 1, sec. 17-4n-6e.

Both ventures were scheduled to 11,200 feet.

In Walthall County, Jett Drilling Co. was below 7,300 feet in a wildcat, the Hauberg No. 1, sec. 10-4n-10e. Triad Oil and Gas Co. set surface casing in another wildcat, the Fernwood Lumber Co. No. 1, sec. 29-4n-10e.

Both were scheduled to 10,800 feet.

Texas Pacific Coal and Oil Co. has erected a building derrick at the Allen No. 1, sec. 9-5n-2w, in Hinds County.

Field drilling the past week brought four new oilers.

Larco Drilling Co. completed the Alex Walters No. 1, sec. 33-5n-8e, which flowed 175 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 10,802-10 feet. This well is at Little Creek Field on the Lincoln County side.

On the Pike County side of Little Creek, Constantin and Knight completed the Hartwell - Wallace No. 1, sec. 10-4n-8e, which flowed 300 barrels of oil per day from a Tuscaloosa sand at 10,757-66 feet.

In the Reedy Creek Field of Jones County, Larco Drilling Co. completed the Newell heirs unit No. 1, sec. 10-9n-1w, which pumped 20 barrels of oil per day from a sand at 7,303-10 feet.

Foreign Stock Trading Being Made Easier

NEW YORK (AP)—Americans with an urge to buy and sell Japanese stocks can soon use a short cut that has speeded up such deals in European shares — American Depository Receipts.

These make trading in foreign securities faster and easier by doing it all right here through a linkup of American and foreign banks handling specific issues. The ADR gained in popularity early last year when European stock markets were booming while the American variety was alternately skidding or idling.

The ADR is a certificate issued by an American bank on a particular corporate share held by a foreign bank as correspondent. The ADR can be bought and sold here, eliminating the transfer of the securities overseas, and thus giving the buyer prompt ownership without actual physical possession.

The device also sidesteps for an in-and-out trader whatever limitations a foreign land still keeps on transfer of recovered investments after a sale, and eases any remaining difficulties on currency exchange.

In Japan, for example, Americans buying Japanese shares directly can repatriate one-third of their investment and earnings only after holding them two years, a second third after three years, and the remainder after four years.

An ADR will simplify that for trading within this country.

Total American investment in Japanese shares has been relatively small, but interest has perked up of late because prices on Japanese stock markets last year increased by about 50 per cent on average. And the advent of the ADR is expected to aid a drive for further American investment in the islands.

But would-be investors should remember that just because an American bank issues an ADR on a foreign stock of whatever origin, there's no guarantee that the stock involved won't go down in price.

Just what happened to many in European markets in the final months of 1960 because the business boom was slowing down in some lands and because some traders feared that U.S. spending abroad would be cut further to defend the strength of the dollar. Such fears have been expressed of late in Tokyo.

The Japanese Finance Ministry has just approved plans for four U.S. banks to issue among them ADRs on shares of 16 big Japanese companies, subject to approval of the U.S. Securities & Exchange Commission. Ten Japanese banks will act as depositories for the shares.

The New York banks involved are: First National City, Morgan Guaranty, Chemical Bank New York Trust, and Irving Trust. The Japanese companies are in the fields of electronics, metals, oil, shipbuilding, chemicals, machinery, insurance, trading and utilities.

The Japanese will retain the time limitations on repatriating direct investments in the corporations and also their ban on foreigners owning more than 15 per cent of any Japanese company. This may hold down the total of American investment in Japan as compared with other nations without such restrictions.

Some 150 ADRs of foreign corporations are now traded actively in New York. The banks issuing them usually handle collection of dividends and take care of dollar exchange formalities.

Direct trading in foreign securities also has been active in the last 18 months on overseas stock exchanges through American brokerage houses with foreign connections. And shares of a number of prominent foreign corporations, especically Canadian, are listed on stock exchanges in this country.

Economic Problems Foreseen

NEW YORK (AP) — Business decisions and most business barometers pointed toward a further industrial slowdown this week, pointing up immediate economic problems for the new Kennedy administration.

Production cutbacks were ordered in such basic industries as automobiles, oil and copper. The steel industry sharply curtailed plans to spend money for new plants and equipment in 1961.

These moves are expected to become downward lines on future charts, paralleling similar declines disclosed for industrial production, personal income and housing starts in December.

Arthur Goldberg, the incoming labor secretary, estimated the current number of unemployed at 5.5 million, up a million from the reported mid-December total.

NO PROPOSALS

President Kennedy made no economic proposals in his inaugural address, confining himself to international matters, but his economic task forces previously had urged swift new spending programs to combat the business slump.

Outgoing President Eisenhower, in his final budget and again in his last economic report to the nation, warned against big increases in government spending. He said the economy was in good shape despite declines in production and employment, which he attributed to liquidation of an over-accumulation of inventories.

Auto inventories of over a million units at last report were one factor behind a 10 per cent reduction planned in auto production this week. Sales contests for dealers and salesmen, an old industry tactic, were whipped up to pep up demand and avoid a repetition of the disastrous 1958 selling pattern.

In similar fashion, Texas authorites reduced permissible oil production next month to an eight-day producing pattern, one day less than in January. Copper producers trimmed their price and also cut output 10 to 15 per cent in a twin effort to get the red metal moving.

The American iron and steel institute said steelmakers plan to spend $1.2 billion on new facilities this year, down 19 per cent from 1960's $1.48 billion. Last year's spending was 7.5 per cent under the 1960 goal.

FALL SEEN

The Federal Reserve Board said industrial production in December fell two percentage points to 103 per cent of the 1958 average, the lowest level in more then a year. Principal villians: Weakness in steel and auto output.

Particularly chilling to economists was $2.3 billion drop in personal income reported by the Commerce Department for December, bringing the seasonlly adjusted annual rate to $406.7 billion. Continued heavy spending by consumers has been cited time and again in recent months as a bulwark of the economy.

Consumers apparently were undaunted by the figures, however. Department store sales last week were reported by the Federal Reserve Board to be 7 per cent higher than in the similar 1960 week.

Private housing starts in December fell to the lowest level in two years, the Census Bureau reported. It figured the seasonally adjusted annual rate at 999,000 units, down 18 per cent from November and 32 per cent from December, 1959.

Briefly over the business scene — Two New York banks, Manufacturers Trust Co. and the Hanover Bank, announced plans to merge into the city's third largest bank and the country's fourth largest. . . . Glen Alden Corp., which had offered on Jan. 3 to buy Endicott-Johnson Corp. stock, shifted signals and announced it would sell all stock tendered, plus a sizable block previously received in a stockswap, to the Endicott-Johnson pension fund. . . . The National Board of Fire Underwriters estimated 1960 fire losses in the United States at $1,107,824,000, a record. . . . A. M. Sonnabend, who resigned as a Studebaker-Packard Corp. director when he didn't get the president's job, was named chairman of the Seagrave Corp. . . . The Federal Communications commision tentatively approved a major test of pay-tv at Hartford, Conn. . . . Peter Hoguet, president of Econometrics Institute Ins., predicted a 41 per cent gain in U.S. industrial production in the next decade.

BY OILMEN

Fuels Policy Study Planned In Nation

HOUSTON, Tex. (AP) — One little item was missing this week as several oil industry spokesmen pledged cooperation with a national fuels policy study.

None of the pledges included any hint oilmen are willing to join the coal industry in asking Congress or the new Kennedy administration to make such a study.

Oil spokesmen, for the most part, still feel there is no need for a study but most of the new statements omitted earlier criticism of the coal industry. Several of the statements made no reference to coal.

EXCEPTION

Frank Porter, president of the American Petroleum Institute (API), was an exception. Porter pledged support of an impartial and objctive investigation but said the study proposals result from hopes of the coal industry to gain advantage over its competitors.

Unsuccessful concurrent resolutions proposing that Congress order such a study last year were accompanied by charges that coal interests were asking the government to establish "end use" controls that would prevent consumers from selecting the type of energy preferred.

The National Coal Policy Conference Inc. denied the charges and published newspaper advertisements saying a policy study was needed because a world glut of oil was threatening the domestic oil, gas and coal industries.

This year the National Coal Association has taken the study request directly to President John F. Kennedy. Included in the coal request was an appeal for curtailed heavy fuel oil imports.

This development offers the possibility of two fuels policy studies — one by Congress and another by the executive branch.

Maneuvering for 1961 action on the study proposal began last summer with the adoption of national platforms by the Democratic and Republican parties.

The Republicans pledged support to "long range minerals and fuels planning and programming, including increased coal research."

The Democratic platform was even stronger.

Land Or Water Vehicles Being Developed Now

DETROIT (UPI)—Detroit engineers are talking about two new types of land-and-water vehicles.

One is a truck that swims and the other is a ground effect machine that skims along over land and sea on a bubble of air.

Both were mentioned prominently at the recent first international congress and exposition of automotive engineering in Detroit.

T. J. Bischoff of the ordnance tank-automotive command and T. R. Gondert of Stevens Institute of Technology describe the truck as a 2-ton Army cargo truck designed to increase mobility in tactical vehicles.

ALUMINUM AND PLASTICS

New Materials In Autos

DETROIT (AP)—From the days of the tin Lizzie to the streamlined models of 1961 automobiles have been built mostly of iron and steel.

For almost that long materials such as aluminum have been trying to get a piece of the business. The big push has come in the last decade as new technology made aluminum, plastics and some of the other metals more competitive.

An increased challenge to tradition arose when manufacturers decided on drastic cuts in size and weight of American cars.

This opened the door. Engineers began listening to those who claimed their materials could be substituted for iron or steel or zinc with savings not only in weight but in cost and often in efficiency.

BREAKTHROUGH

"First there has to be a 'breakthrough'," one plastics man said. "You have to get somebody to use your stuff as it should be used. Then his competitors see it and they have to have it, too. So the process snowballs."

The most determined campaigns are being waged by aluminum, plastics and magnesium. One aluminum company estimates the use of this light metal has jumped from 13 pounds per car in the 1948 model year to 62 pounds per car average now.

The Society of the Plastics Industry, Inc., claims the volume of plastics in an average car has doubled—from 11 pounds to 22 pounds—in the last seven years.

Magnesium, half again as light weight as aluminum, trails both it and plastics in acceptance. But Dow Chemical Co., producer of more than 90 per cent of the domestic magnesium, predicts a jump from the present pound per car to 10 to 15 pounds by 1965.

With aluminum and the plastics also predicting great things for the almost immediate future, iron, steel and most recently zinc have begun to fight back.

John L. Kimberley, executive vice president of the American Zinc Institute, says zinc usage is up 14½ pounds per car in the last two years.

Last year and again two months ago representatives of United States steel made elaborate presentations to Detroit's automakers, showing new and different uses for steel.

JOINED

Stainless steel producers have joined the fight and just recently scored a victory with the adoption by Ford of a new muffler made for the 1961 Thunderbird. Trade sources suggest it should last at least four years in normal use.

Most cars come equipped with aluminum-coated mufflers. American Motors this year introduced the first ceramic-coated exhaust system.

Aluminum has made notable gains. The Corvair appeared with a mostly aluminum engine. Buick, Oldsmobile and Pontiac offer this year for the first time an aluminum V8 engine. Rambler and Chrysler have new six-cylinder engines with aluminum cylinder blocks.

Plastics have taken dead aim on the dashboards and body hardware of modern cars, emphasizing weight and cost savings. Magnesium exponents claim their metal may well be more suitable than aluminum in some applications such as transmission housings.

The four GM divisions and American Motors which are using aluminum engines in volume express pleasure with their performance but all have had some production problems.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Tragedy And Heroism In Driving

Skin - diving less than two years, a former Monroe athlete now living in Tampa, Fla., dared what more experienced men wouldn't perform, plunged into the tricky curents of sea-bottom caves of the coast of Florida to recover the body of a hobby diver.

That's the story we've received about Donald Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bell, 1900 College Avenue, who played football for the Fighting Irish when Jay Broussard was coach at St. Matthew's High here.

Now 25 years old, Bell, whose father is field engineer for the utilities commission of Monroe, is in a Tampa partnership with Ray Odon in operation of a sporting goods business and the Tampa Skin-Diving Club.

During the year-end holidays a trio of Purdue University students, one of them Tyler Leinbach, 22, son of a prominent St. Petersburgh, Fla., physician, Dr. I. S. Leinbach, were exploring the deeps of coastal waters when they ran into trouble with strong currents at an underground spring.

Sensing dangers of the currents, two divers returned to the surface after failing in an effort to get their friend to come up with them. The friend, Tyler Leinbach, elected to explore a little longer. He never came up alive.

Members of three diving clubs tried unsuccessfully to bring up Leinbach's body. A man-and-wife professional team passed up the job, the man because of an ear infection and the wife because her husband wouldn't let her go down alone.

"If anybody can make the dive, Donald Bell can," was the word that got to the ears of the tragedy victim. So off to Tampa, 60 miles south of the scene, went the appeal for Bell's help.

Down into the kind of undertows and currents about which the TV diving programs build so much tension went Bell while his partner, Odon, handled the surface operations. Bell found the diving victim in 50-feet of water and about 40 feet back in a submarine cave, and brought out the tragedy victim.

Bell passed credit for the rescue to the man in the boat: "I couldn't have done it without a man like him (Odon) handling the lines."

Odon called the Leinbach case an accident that shouldn't have happened. "He went down without a safety line. He had a flashlight, but it went out on him. If he had had a safety line he would never have drowned."

Dissolution Of The SIAA

The Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association (SIAA), its members drained away by such as the Southeastern, Southern, Atlantic, and Gulf States, among others, over the growing span of years, closed shop in a meeting at Mobile, Ala., January 6 and 7, with Athletic Director Jack Rowan and faculty representative Ed Whatley of Northeast Louisiana State attending.

Whatley, last president of the conference that was created December 22, 1894, at Atlanta, Ga., said it was the opinion of the surviving members that the SIAA had served its purpose, that the few remaining schools were wide spread, in no further SIAA competition, and the schools could do better forming other conferences closer knit. It is Northeast's opinion that it is now better served as a member of the GSC.

The scattered SIAA membership, once claiming all schools of the south, in recent years has claimed only Erskine, Newberry, Presbyterian, Stetson, Livingston State, Spring Hill, Troy State, U. of Louisville, Delta State, and six Louisiana schools — Northeast, Louisiana Tech, Louisiana College, McNeese, Southeastern, and Southwestern.

DESPITE $1 MILLION SUIT

Rozelle Holds To Decision Involving Lipscomb, ABL

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League said Saturday he will not reconsider his decision barring tackle Gene Big Daddy) Lipscomb of the Baltimore Colts from playing in the Eastern Basketball League.

Rozelle's comment came in the wake of the EBL threats to file suit against the NFL commissioner for $1 million on Monday.

er for $1 million on Monday.

"We feel our decision is sound," Rozelle said Saturday. "We feel we can make an adequate and sound defense of that decision. There is no chance we will reconsider."

Lipscomb, 6-6, 280-pound defense ace of the Colts, had signed, with Colts' approval, to play with the Baltimore Bullets of the EBL. In refusing Lipscomb approval, Rozelle said Friday it would not be in the best interests of the NFL for one of its star players to compete in the EBL because there are men playing in the league who were identified with gambling while playing for college and professional teams.

Four current EBL players were convicted of point shaving while playing for New York colleges in the early 1950s. They are Sherman White, former Long Island U. star now with the Bullets; Ed Warner and Floyd Layne, both with Wilkes-Barre, and Ed Roman, player - coach at Williamsport. Warner, Layne and Roman played for the City College of New York team that won both the NCAA and NIT championships in 1950.

In addition, former Kentucky star Bill Spivey of the Bullets was tried on a perjury charge in connection with the college scandals. He was not convicted.

Harry Rudolph, EBL president, had called on Rozelle to reconsider Friday while ordering the EBL attorney to file suit against the NFL commissioner in U.S. District Court in New York Monday. It would charge that the Lipscomb ruling defames the morals and standards of the basketball league. Rudolph pointed out that EBL has sent 11 players up to the NBA in recent years and the NBA "evidently felt they were not contaminated."

Rozelle said in a statement Saturday:

"My action in prohibiting Gene Lipscomb from competing for the Baltimore Fullets of the EBL is prompted by my best judgement as to what is in keeping with the best interests of the National Football League.

"There are players presently playing in the EBL who have been banned from playing in the National Basketball Association because of their past public identification with gambling activities in games in which they were participants.

"A recent court judgment (dismissal of Molinas' $3 million suit for HBA re-instatement) supported the NBA's position in this matter. The court's view, publicly stated, was that a league has the right to impose and enforce rules and policies to preserve the public confidence in the integrity of its sport.

"My decision in the Lipscomb case is nothing more than an application of the same reasoning, which my office feels to be sound."

He said he had not consulted the NBA in reaching his decision.

Marcoons Defeat Ole Miss, 63-40

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP) —Mississippi State, led by sophomore W. D. Stroud's 23-point effort, took a firmer grip on first place in the Southeastern Conference with a 63-40 basketball victory over archrival Mississippi Saturday night.

The Maroons poured in 26 points in the final six minutes to break a nip-and-tuck game which saw the lead change hands several times.

Stroud, hitting his high for the season, was tied for scoring honors by Ole Miss' Sterling Ainsworth, who accounted for more than half of his team's total points.

Leland Mitchell, another Maroon sophomore, poured in 18 points. He and teammate Jerry Graves, who had 10, were the only other Maroons to score in double figures.

Both teams employed a stall at various intervals during the game which kept the scoring low until the final Maroons splurge.

Embanato Sinks Winning Points

By BOB ANDERSON
World Sports Editor

St. Matthew's brought Ringgold crashing down to its second defeat of the season, 66-64, in a pulsing battle of prep basketball powers here Saturday night.

Buddy Embanato coolly bucketed two free throws with 15 seconds remaining to provide the winning margin as the state class A champion Fighting Irish won their 29th game in 32 starts and avenged a 63-47 setback at Ringgold early this season.

Ringgold, class B titlist, is now 34-2 for the campaign. Bob Corley's Redskins lost their other game last Saturday night in Ruston by one point.

St. Matthew's led throughout most of the game before the Redskins came on with a rush in the final period to first tie the score and then go ahead.

The Irish went into the final stanza with an eight-point lead, 51-43. Ringgold cut it to nithing in less than a minute and a half.

Lanky Barry Haynie hit a fielder with 10 seconds gone in the fourth to make it 51-45. Then Donnie Todd bucketed a free throw at 7:25 before Irishman Frankie Accardo hit a charity toss at 7:15. All-stater Billy Ray, who tied with St. Matthew's John Varino for scoring honors with 29 points, got a fielder at 7:05 to cut the Irish lead to four points.

Then Haynie got another bucket from the field to cut the St. M thew's lead to two points, 52-50, at 6:46. Then Ray tied it up with two free throws at 6:33.

Ray hit a fielder 33 seconds later to put Ringgold ahead, 54-52. Then Varino tied it up with a fielder at 5:47 but Haynie converted one of two free throws at 5:31 and Ray sank two charity tosses seconds later to push Ringgold into a three-point advantage.

But Varino sent two free throws arching high into the basket at 4:40 to make it 57-56 and then dr a foul from Ronald Hickman, one of Ringgold's top scorers with 14 points, that sent the Ringgold guard out of the game with five at 4:15.

Varino missed his free throw but three seconds later got a fielder to put the Irish back on top, 58-57.

Ray hit again for the Redskins at 3:54, but charged Embanato in the process and the Irish guard bucketed both charity tosses.

Haynie hit another fielder at 2:42, drawing Frankie Accardo's fifth personal, and made the free throw to make Ringgold a 62-60 leader.

Varino made one of two free throws at 2:07, then got a fielder at 1:25 to put St. Matthew's on top, 63-62. Ray, however, scored from the field again at 1:10 to put Ringgold back in front, 64-63.

Then, with a minute left, Varino tied it up with the first foul shot on a one-and-one. He missed the second but the ball went out of bounds off a Redskin and the Irish had the ball with the score tied.

Jim Mahoney's St. Matthew's club played for the final shot and Embanato drew a foul at :15. Shooting one-and-one, he made both.

Ringgold moved the ball quickly downcourt and got it to big (6-5) Haynie under the basket but the all-stater blew the shot, St. Matthew's got the ball and Donnie Elias drew a foul with three seconds left.

Elias missed his free throw and Ringgold took the rebound. But Charley Biggar intercepted a pass and drew a foul just as the buzzer sounded. Biggar never did get his free throw as fans poured out onto the floor.

St. Matthew's jumped into the lead in the early moments after Hickman got Ringgold off to a 2-0 start. Varino hit a fielder to tie it up at 7:31 and Embanato got a free throw to put the Irish ahead at 7:10, 3-2. St. Matthew's stayed infront, running its lead as high as nine points, until the fourth.

Varino, watched by LSU Coach Jay McCreary, turned in a magnificent game. He tied with Ray for scoring honors with 29 points and pulled down 20 rebounds. Embanato collected 13 points and Accardo 11. Bouncing Biggar got only four points bur was second to Varino with six.

PAUL MARTIN LOOKS 'EM OVER

Tragedy And Heroism In Driving

Skin - diving less than two years, a former Monroe athlete now living in Tampa, Fla., dared what more experienced men wouldn't perform, plunged into the tricky curents of sea-bottom caves of the coast of Florida to recover the body of a hobby diver.

That's the story we've received about Donald Bell, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. M. Bell, 1900 College Avenue, who played football for the Fighting Irish when Jay Broussard was coach at St. Matthew's High here.

Now 25 years old, Bell, whose father is field engineer for the utilities commission of Monroe, is in a Tampa partnership with Ray Odon in operation of a sporting goods business and the Tampa Skin-Diving Club.

During the year-end holidays a trio of Purdue University students, one of them Tyler Leinbach, 22, son of a prominent St. Petersburgh, Fla., physician, Dr. I. S. Leinbach, were exploring the deeps of coastal waters when they ran into trouble with strong currents at an underground spring.

Sensing dangers of the currents, two divers returned to the surface after failing in an effort to get their friend to come up with them. The friend, Tyler Leinbach, elected to explore a little longer. He never came up alive.

Members of three diving clubs tried unsuccessfully to bring up Leinbach's body. A man-and-wife professional team passed up the job, the man because of an ear infection and the wife because her husband wouldn't let her go down alone.

"If anybody can make the dive, Donald Bell can," was the word that got to the ears of the tragedy victim. So off to Tampa, 60 miles south of the scene, went the appeal for Bell's help.

Down into the kind of undertows and currents about which the TV diving programs build so much tension went Bell while his partner, Odon, handled the surface operations. Bell found the diving victim in 30-feet of water and about 40 feet back in a submarine cave, and brought out the tragedy victim.

Bell passed credit for the rescue to the man in the boat: "I couldn't have done it without a man like him (Odon) handling the lines."

Odon called the Leinbach case an accident that shouldn't have happened. "He went down without a safety line. He had a flashlight, but it went out on him. If he had had a safety line he would never have drowned."

Dissolution Of The SIAA

The Southern Intercollegiate Athletic Association (SIAA), its members drained away by such as the Southeastern, Southern, Atlantic, and Gulf States, among others, over the growing span of years, closed shop in a meeting at Mobile, Ala., January 6 and 7, with Athletic Director Jack Rowan and faculty representative Ed Whatley of Northeast Louisiana State attending.

Whatley, last president of the conference that was created December 22, 1894, at Atlanta, Ga., said it was the opinion of the surviving members that the SIAA had served its purpose, that the few remaining schools were wide spread, in no further SIAA competition, and the schools could do better forming other conferences closer knit. It is Northeast's opinion that it is now better served as a member of the GSC.

The scattered SIAA membership, once claiming all schools of the south, in recent years has claimed only Erskine, Newberry, Presbyterian, Stetson, Livingston State, Spring Hill, Troy State, U. of Louisville, Delta State, and six Louisiana schools — Northeast, Louisiana Tech, Louisiana College, McNeese, Southeastern, and Southwestern.

DESPITE $1 MILLION SUIT

Rozelle Holds To Decision Involving Lipscomb, ABL

NEW YORK (AP) — Commissioner Pete Rozelle of the National Football League said Saturday he will not reconsider his decision barring tackle Gene Big Daddy) Lipscomb of the Baltimore Colts from playing in the Eastern Basketball League.

Rozelle's comment came in the wake of the EBL threats to file sui' against the NFL commissioner for $1 million on Monday.

er for $1 million on Monday.

"We feel our decision is sound," Rozelle said Saturday. "We feel we can make an adequate and sound defense of that decision. There is no chance we will reconsider."

Lipscomb, 6-6, 280-pound defense ace of the Colts, had signed, with Colts' approval, to play with the Baltimore Bullets of the EBL. In refusing Lipscomb approval, Rozelle said Friday it would not be in the best interests of the NFL for one of its star players to compete in the EBL because there are men playing in the league who were identified with gambling while playing for college and professional teams.

Four current EBL players were convicted of point shaving while playing for New York colleges in the early 1950s. They are Sherman White, former Long Island U. star now with the Bullets; Ed Warner and Floyd Layne, both with Wilkes-Barre, and Ed Roman, player - coach at Williamsport. Warner, Layne and Roman played for the City College of New York team that won both the NCAA and NIT championships in 1950.

In addition, former Kentucky star Bill Spivey of the Bullets was tried on a perjury charge in connection with the college scandals. He was not convicted.

Harry Rudolph, EBL president, had called on Rozelle to reconsider Friday while ordering the EBL attorney to file suit against the NFL commissioner in U.S. District Court in New York Monday. It would charge that the Lipscomb ruling defames the morals and standards of the basketball league. Rudolph pointed out that EBL has sent 11 players up to the NBA in recent years and the NBA "evidently felt they were not contaminated."

Rozelle said in a statement Saturday:

"My action in prohibiting Gene Lipscomb from competing for the Baltimore Fullets of the EBL is prompted by my best judgement as to what is in keeping with the best interests of the National Football League.

"There are players presently playing in the EBL who have been banned from playing in the National Basketball Association because of their past public identification with gambling activities in games in which they were participants.

"A recent court judgment (dismissal of Molinas' $3 million suit for HBA re-irstatement) supported the NBA's position in this matter. The court's view, publicly stated, was that a league has the right to impose and enforce rules and policies to preserve the public confidence in the integrity of its sport.

"My decision in the Lipscomb case is nothing more than an application of the same reasoning, which my office feels to be sound."

He said he had not consulted the NBA in reaching his decision.

Marcons Defeat Ole Miss, 63-40

STATE COLLEGE, Miss. (AP) —Mississippi State, led by sophomore W. D. Stroud's 23-point effort, took a firmer grip on first place in the Southeastern Conference with a 63-40 basketball victory over archrival Mississippi Saturday night.

The Maroons poured in 28 points in the final six minutes to break a nip-and-tuck game which saw the lead change hands several times.

Stroud, hitting his high for the season, was tied for scoring honors by Ole Miss' Sterling Ainsworth, who accounted for more than half of his team's total points.

Leland Mitchell, another Maroon sophomore, poured in 18 points. He and teammate Jerry Graves, who had 10, were the only other Maroons to score in double figures.

Both teams employed a stall at various intervals during the game which kept the scoring low until the final Maroons splurge.

Embanato Sinks Winning Points

By BOB ANDERSON
World Sports Editor

St. Matthew's brought Ringgold crashing down to its second defeat of the season, 66-64, in a pulsing battle of prep basketball powers here Saturday night.

Buddy Embanato coolly bucketed two free throws with 15 seconds remaining to provide the winning margin as the state class A champion Fighting Irish won their 29th game in 32 starts and avenged a 63-47 setback at Ringgold early this season.

Ringgold, class B titlist, is now 24-2 for the campaign. Bob Corley's Redskins lost their other game last Saturday night in Ruston by one point.

St. Matthew's led throughout most of the game before the Redskins came on with a rush in the final period to first tie the score and then go ahead.

The Irish went into the final stanza with an eight-point lead, 51-43. Ringgold cut it to nithing in less than a minute and a half.

Lanky Barry Haynie hit a fielder with 10 seconds gone in the fourth to make it 51-45. Then Donnie Todd bucketed a free throw at 7:25 before Irishman Frankie Accardo hit a charity toss at 7:15. All-stater Billy Ray, who tied with St. Matthew's John Varino for scoring honors with 29 points, got a fielder at 7:05 to cut the Irish lead to four points.

Then Haynie got another bucket from the field to cut the St. Mthew's lead to two points, 52-50, at 6:46. Then Ray tied it up with two free throws at 6:33.

Ray hit a fielder 38 seconds later to put Ringgold ahead, 54-52. Then Varino tied it up with a fielder at 5:47 but Haynie converted one of two free throws at 5:31 and Ray sank two charity tosses seconds later to push Ringgold into a three-point advantage.

But Varino sent two free throws arching high into the basket at 4:40 to make it 57-56 and then dr a foul from Ronald Hickman, one of Ringgold's top scorers with 14 points, that sent the Ringgold guard out of the game with five at 4:15.

Varino missed his free throw but three seconds later got a fielder to put the Irish back on top, 58-57.

Ray hit again for the Redskins at 3:54, but charged Embanato in the process and the Irish guard bucketed both charity tosses.

Haynie hit another fielder at 2:42, drawing Frankie Accardo's fifth personal, and made the free throw to make Ringgold a 62-60 leader.

Varino made one of two free throws at 2:07, then got a fielder at 1:25 to put St. Matthew's on top, 63-62. Ray, however, scored from the field again at 1:10 to put Ringgold back in front, 64-63.

Then, with a minute left, Varino tied it up with the first foul shot on a one-and-one. He missed the second but the ball went out of bounds off a Redskin and the Irish had the ball with the score tied.

Jim Mahoney's St. Matthew's club played for the final shot and Embanato drew a foul at :16. Shooting one-and-one, he made both.

Ringgold moved the ball quickly downcourt and got it to big (6-5) Haynie under the basket but the all-stater blew the shot, St. Matthew's got the ball and Donnie Elias drew a foul with three seconds left.

Elias missed his free throw and Ringgold took the rebound. But Charley Biggar intercepted a pass and drew a foul just as the buzzer sounded. Biggar never did get his free throw as fans poured out onto the floor.

St. Matthew's jumped into the lead in the early moments after Hickman got Ringgold off to a 2-0 start. Varino hit a fielder to tie it up at 7:31 and Embanato got a free throw to put the Irish ahead at 7:10, 3-2. St. Matthew's stayed infront, running its lead as high as nine points, until the fourth.

Varino, watched by LSU Coach Jay McCreary, turned in a magnificent game. He tied with Ray for scoring honors with 29 points and pulled down 20 rebounds. Embanato collected 13 points and Accardo 11. Bouncing Biggar got only four points bur was second to Varino with six.

Both teams snot 44 per cent from the field with Ringgold having the edge in field goals, 25 to 21. St. Matthew's continued its deadly accuracy at the foul line, bucketing 24 of 31 chances at the charity line.

Ringgold, using a close man-to-man defense, drew 23 fouls to 15 for St. Matthew's, which used a zone defense. Haynie drew four fouls early in the game and collected only 12 points, 10 below his season average.

St. Matthew's girls narrowly missed their first victory of the season in the initial contest of the night, losing in overtime to Huttig, Ark., 36-33.

Hawk Coach Low On Chamberlain

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Coach Paul Seymour of the St. Louis Hawks says 7-foot Wilt (The Stile) Chamberlain of the Philadelphia Warriors "has nothing going for him but his height."

"And furthermore," the former National Basketball Association star declared in an interview Saturday, "all he can do is dunk the ball and once in a while hit a jumper."

"He can rebound, of course, with the best, but that's also only because of his height. He can't pass off as a team man and he can't hit free throws. That's why I hate to lose to him."

The Hawks lost a 129-127 squeker to Wilt and the Warriors in Philadelphia this week. Chamberlain connected for 16 baskets; only three of them jump shots. The others came on dunks or errant balls he guided through the hoop.

"He may have been the most valuable player last year," Seymour continued, "but he was a far cry from being the most talented.

"I'm not just bitter about Thursday night's loss. Look at the All-Star Game. They (the East) have the two big guys in there, Bill Russell and Chamberlain, and we (the West) still romped over them. Wilt got 12 points and only two baskets and played a poor game compared with Russell.

Leaving the locker room after Saturday's game with Los Angeles at Philadelphia, in which he scored 56 points and grabbed 45 rebounds, he addressed Coach Neil Johnston and owner Eddie Gottlieb:

"Coach, you and Mr. Gottlieb talk."

Gottlieb said to remind Seymour that Chamberlain last year was voted the most valuable player in the league by the players.

"They are the ones qualified to comment on Chamberlain's ability since they are playing against him, not Seymour," he said.

"And Seymour and other coaches thinking of legislating against Wilt ought to think twice before they attempt to hurt attendance and endanger their own jobs. Chamberlain is the greatest drawing card in the history of basketball."

Johnston, referring to last year's All-Star Game in which Chamberlain was named the most valuable player, said, "Seymour has an awful short memory. Let him go back to the first All-Star Game Wilt was in."

Golden Gloves Tourney Set In Lafayette

LAFAYETTE (Special) — The call went out today to amateur boxers throughout the state who wish to compete in the 1961 Louisiana State Golden Gloves boxing tournament February 2-3-4 at Blackham Coliseum, Lafayette.

The three - day event, sponsored by the Hub City Kiwanis Club, is expected to draw 160 of the top amateur fighters throughout the state.

More than half of the open division fighters will compete for teams. The announcement this week that former Gloves state champion Sherman Roberts, now a professional, will train and manage a full team representing Winnfield brings to 10 the number of full teams entered in the tourney.

Other teams entered are the Lafayette Boxing Club, the New Orleans Athletic Club and the New Orleans CYO, the Lafayette Recreation Club, Shreveport Athletic Club, Westwego Boxing Club, Baton Rouge, Lake Charles, and the New Iberia Sheriff's boxing club.

Sixteen championships will be at stake, eight in each of the open and novice divisions. Open division champions will receive expense - paid trips to the Mid-South Golden Gloves tournament in Memphis, Tenn., and the Mid-South winners receive expense-paid trips to the nationals in Chicago, Ill., early in March.

Flyweight, 112 lbs.; bantamweight, 118 lbs.; featherweight, 126 lbs.; lightweight, 135 lbs.; welterweight, 147 lbs.; middleweight, 160 lbs.; light heavyweight, 175 lbs.; and heavyweight, over 175 lbs.

Novice division is for boys who have not reached their 18th birthday and are not too experienced. Write Box 2387, Lafayette for details.

Rudolph Takes Skating Lead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ed Rudolph, a member of the U.S. Olympic skating team last year, took a lead in the senior men's division the first day of the Great Lakes speed ice skating meet Saturday with a first, second and a third, good for 10 points.

Another Olympic skater, Floyd Bedbury of St. Paul, Minn., was in second place with eight points. The meet winds up Sunday.

Rudolph won the three-quarter mile race, was second in the 220 and third in the mile. Bedbury won the mile and Bill Carow of Madison, another Olympic skater, the 220-yard sprint.

Mary Novak of Chicago won two women's races, with only one other entry in the field. She won both the 220 and 440-yard events.

Defending Golf Champ Manages Semifinal Win

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Marlene Streit, gunning for her third straight Doherty Women's Amateur title, lost only one hole Saturday in a 6 and 5 semifinal victory over Marge Burns.

The Toronto housewife will meet Phyllis Preuss of Pompano Beach, Fla., in the 36-hole final round Sunday.

Miss Preuss, who had never advanced beyond the second round in five previous cracks at this tough tournament, went into the final with a 4 and 2 victory over Curtis Cup veteran Ann Casey Johnstone of Mason City, Iowa.

Mrs. Streit got a quick jump on Miss Burns, the North Carolina champion from Greensboro, by grabbing the first three holes with two birdies and a par. She was 5-up at the ninth.

Miss Burns won only the 10th hole, with a birdie. Then Mrs. Streit who was 1-under-par for the day, won the 11th and 12th with pars and the match ended when they halved the 13th.

A fast start also helped Miss Preuss. She won two of the first three holes and was 4 up with four holes to go.

Mrs. Johnston birdied the 11th with a 28-foot putt but trapped her tee shot at the 16th and couldn't match Miss Preuss' par.

Silver Gloves Bouts Slated At Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) — Sixteen amateur boxing champions in all shapes and sizes — several of them fresh up from the novice ranks — will gather at Municipal Auditorium Monday night (Jan. 23) for the second-annual version of the Tri-States Silver Gloves Boxing Tournament. nament.

The tournament, introduced last July in Bossier City, will be a one-night affair and will catch Ark-La-Tex boxers just prior to regional Golden Gloves tournaments which are scheduled to begin next month. Unlike Golden Gloves competition, however, the Silver Gloves swingfest will be confined to open division battlers with considerable experience.

Whether the 16 assorted area titleholders can continue their trophy collections against a cast of dozens from at least seven cities is subject to debate. Tournament director Gladden Harrison, regional Southern AAU commissioner, will have four Tri-States open division champions back in competition along with three novice titlists who are expected to step into the open brackets.

Back from last summer's inaugural will be light heavyweight Pat Harrington, expected to go after the heavyweight crown; welterweight Oalus Connors of Winnfield; featherweight Conley Adams, also of Winnfield; and flyweight Gene Cortinez of Shreveport. Novice champions returning include middleweight Mills McCawley, Bossier; lightweight Hurshiell Stegall, Shreveport; and flyweight Donald Austin, Winnfield.

McCawley is definitely stepping up into the open class as a light heavy but the future of Stegall and Austin in the Monday tournament remains to be seen.

Seven clubs will go after the Tri - States team title — the Shreveport YMCA, Bossier Boxing Club, Winnfield, Mansfield, Twin - Cities YMCA of Monroe, Longview, Tex. and Tyler, Tex. Only one individual entry, 230 - pound heavyweight Ed Bean of Henderson, Tex., will be competing unattached.

Winnfield, coached by Sherman Roberts and a perrenial powerhouse in the pugilistic field, has four crackerjacks in Adams and Connors, Weldon Gordon and Don Austin. Adams, holder of a 25-4-1 record and 1959 - 60 area lightweight champion, has beaten the best including Baton Rouge's classy Zeke Nola and Lafayette's Earl Hernandez.

Gordon, 1959 regional Golden Gloves and SAAU feathers king and 1960 GG champion, staged three brilliant brawls against Blount last year, winning two. Other Winn warriors include welters Jeff Austin and J. T. Hanson, lightweight Jimmy Hanson and bantam Donald Austin.

Mansfield, coached by Eddie Lynch, has come up with two open class competitors in welter Harvey Ramsey, 1960 SAAU novice light welter champ, and lightweight Ron Chism. Monroe's YMCA entry, directed by John Holliday, will be led by lightweights Beck Love and Billy Bryant and light heavyweight Will Regan.

Green Wave Second Best At Foul Line

NEW ORLEANS, La. (Special) — Latest national statistics find Jim Kerwin and Jack Ardon of Tulane ranking high in three individual categories and the Greenies' free throw shooting being the second best in the nation.

Kerwin, hot - shooting Long Branch, N. J., sophomore, ranks 11th in free throw percentage. He has scored on 58 of 67 attempts for a robust .866 average. Kerwin also ranks 42nd in the nation for individual scoring, with a 20.5 average on 266 points in 13 games.

Lanky Ardon, 6-9 junior pivotman, is eighth in the nation among rebound percentage leaders. Ardon has pulled in 230 rebounds for a 17.7 per game average and a .172 percentage of all rebounds taken.

As a team, the Greenies have dropped in 291 free throws of 375 shots taken for a fine .776 average. Only Ohio State the nation's No. 1 ranking team, has a better rank. The Buckeyes have hit 239 of 303 for a .789 mark.

At their present pace, Kerwin could easily break the season scoring record of 483 points set by Calvin Grosscup back during the 1956-57 season, and Ardon could eclipse the season rebound record of 426, set by Mel Payton in the 1950-51 season.

Kerwin will have to average 19.7 scoring in the remaining 11 Green Wave games, while Ardon will need to pull in an average of 17 rebounds per game to set new marks.

Tulane's team scoring pace of 77.9 also is breaking the existing record of 75.5 set by the 1955-56 squad, but the Wave has some tough defensive teams left on the schedule and will have a hard time maintaining its aver-

ALABAMA AIDE

Jerry Clairborne Named Coach At Virginia Tech

He succeeds Frank Moseley, who stepped down as coach to devote full time to the job of athletic director. Moseley had held the dual position for 10 years.

The salary terms of Claiborne's contract were not disclosed.

Says Alabama Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant:

"Jerry is one of the smartest players who ever played for me. And not only does he have a fine football mind, he'll work."

That statement was made a few years after Bryant had Claiborne as player at Kentucky.

Now, as he sees Claiborne departing for a head coaching job, Bryant said:

"In my opinion he is one of the top football men in America."

Bryant long ago pegged Claiborne as a glittering prospect for a head coaching job. When Bryant took over at Alabama in 1958, he was asked which of the boys who had played for him looked like the best head coaching prospects.

He thought a moment, then said: "Fellow by the name of Claiborne, up at Missouri with Frank Broyles."

A short time later Bryant brought Claiborne from the assistant coaching job at Missouri to the chief assistant job at Alabama.

Except for two years, the stocky Claiborne has been with Bryant as player and assistant ever since he showed up at Kentucky as a 17-year-old in 1946.

At his home town of Hopkinsville, Ky., Claiborne had been an all-state end on the football team and what he describes as "a fair basketball player."

At Kentucky—Bryant's first four years there, 1946-49 — Claiborne was an end and safety man, playing in the Orange Bowl and Sugar Bowl with the Wildcats at the finish of the last two seasons.

After graduation, he coached one year at Augusta Military Academy at Fort Defiance, Va., then returned to Kentucky as an assistant. He went with Bryant to Texas A&M in 1954, and left in 1957 for one year as assistant at Missouri before re-joining Bryant at Alabama.

Claiborne is married to the former Anna Faye Hooks of Hopkinsville, Ky. They have three children—David, 7, Jonathan, 5, and Katie, 3.

Tucker Pads Bowling Lead Over Johnson

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP)—Bill Tucker, a slender cinderella boy, marched relentlessly toward a $10,000 first prize in the National All-Star Bowling Tournament Saturday night.

Tucker, 34, of Rockhill, Mo., competing in his second All-Star tournament, won 11 of his 12 games preceding the final round.

The 5-foot-10, 145-pound Missourian had a whopping 10-66 Petersen point lead over Dick Weber of St. Louis as they prepared to meet in the 16th and final four-game round before a nationwide television audience.

Tucker had amassed 300-22 points through 15 rounds. He blanked Ray Bluth of St. Louis in four games in the 13th round with a 945 series, beat John Powell, Jr. of Toledo, Ohio, 3-1 in the 14th with a 970 series and shut out Don Bickford of Oakland, Calif., in the 15th with an 899 series.

Phyllis Notaro of Brant, N.Y., moved into the women's lead in the fifth round, defeating Joy Abel of Chicago in two straight games, 418-411.

Miss Notaro's point total was 135-22. She was to meet Shirley Garms of Chicago in the final round for the $5,000 women's title.

Jean Eder of Westfield, N.J., tumbled from first to third place after losing two straight games to Katie Gianetti of Fresno, Calif., in the 15th round. Mrs. Garms jumped from third to second place with 133-47 points after splitting her 15th round duel with Pat Sacks of Houston, Tex. Mrs. Garms outscored Mrs. Sacks 422-368.

Under the Petersen point system, a bowler gets one point for each game he wins and one point for every 50 pins he knocks down. Bowlers who outscore an opponent while losing a majority of games are awarded an extra half point.

Former Pitcher Finishes Fast In Golf Meet

BELLEAIR, Fla. (AP)—Jack Russell, a 55-year-old former major league pitcher from Clearwater, rallied late in the match Saturday to defeat George Haggarty, a Detroit attorney, and win the 27th annual American Seniors Golf Championship.

Haggarty held a one-hole edge throughout most of the match play, but Russell surged back on the 16th to even the match, won the 17th to go ahead and halved the 18th for the victory.

Russell is the only co-medalist in the history of the tournament to win the championship. Haggarty, seniors left-handed champion, was heavily favored throughout the last stages of the tournament.

Russell shot a 33-44—77 on the 6,367-yard Belleview Biltmore Course near Clearwater. Par is 35-36—71.

Damp fairways, soggy greens and windy weather hampered the two finalists. Haggarty shot 38-42—80.

Turley Signs

Turley won nine games and lost three last season, compiling an earned run average of 3.28. Turley won the Cy Young Award as the majors' outstanding pitcher in 1958. He posted a 21-7 record that year, but slumped to 8-11 in 1959.

IN DUAL STATE TOURNEY

Pelican, Porker States To Meet

JUNCTION CITY, Ark. (Special) — With the potential of being the toughest meet in the history of the tourney, the 1961 edition of the Dual State dribbles off here, Monday afternoon, January 23, with Homer, La., boys meeting Huttig, Ark., the faculty has announced.

Forty - four teams from the two - state area will cast their round - ball lots on the shining hardwood floor . . . the Razorback versus the Pelican . . and data obtained by the tournament officials seem to give Spearsville La., winner of last years' meet, and currently ranked number 10 in the state of Louisiana, and Athens, La., ranked number five, the favorite spots.

However, a saw - maned - foam - flecked dark nag from Provencal, La., comes snarling out of the Bayou country in a stuttering, leaping burst, threatening to flatten everything in front of it; therefore, nothing is certain except "officials with tin whistles," and the horn that angrily blasts out the end of the game.

Other top - ranked boys teams are: Summerfield, La.; Bernice, La.; Marion, La , and Lisbon La. But at the Dual State anything can happen . . . everything usually does sometimes between Monday afternoon and Saturday night.

Of the Lassie round - ballers entered, defending champion, Waldo, Ark., and second place winner of last year's meet, Norphlet, Ark., seem to hold the favorite spots, with Lisbon, La. Junction City, Ark., and Marion, La., close at their heels. Other sextets with good records are: Spearsville, La., Hermitage, Ark., and Taylor, Ark. Winner of two meets this season, Winnfield, La., is cast in the role as the dark filly.

Schools entering teams from Arkansas are as follows: Tinsman, Stephens, Waldo Emerson, McNeil, Willisville, Taylor, Parkers Chapel, Huttig, Norphlet, Ark., Strong, Hermitage, Village, and Mt. Holly.

Vikings Pose Top Problem At NFL Meet

"We have to decide on a formula to stock the new entry, the Minnesota Vikings," said Commissioner Pete Rozelle. "But we really don't expect to have any trouble."

The vikings will get three players from each of 12 other teams in the league. Dallas a newcomer last season, is expected.

Once that is settled, the Eastern and Western conferences will decide where to place Dallas and Minnesota.

"Right now," said Rozelle, "I'd say the sentiment is in favor of Dallas going into the Eastern Conference and Minnesota the Western."

Rozelle also will talk over the possibility of scheduling 14 instead of 12 games for each club. The idea would be to have a home-and-home series within each conference, plus two out-of-conference games.

"That's worked very well," said Rozelle, "and we'd like to keep it if we can."

The rest of the four-day meeting will be taken up with routine matters—discussion of television, proposals for a Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, (home of pro football), minor rules changes, reports on the Pro Bowl and Playoff Bowl and discussion of the player pension plan.

Unbeaten Nag Wins By Neck In N.O. Event

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mrs. Joe Brown's undefeated Mary's Potential, given a stout test by a 17-1 shot, streaked to a neck victory in the $12,750 Pelleteri Handicap at the Fair Grounds Saturday.

Her clocking was the best of the meeting.

The four-year-old colt ridden by jockey Clarence Meaux, was timed in 1:11 and 2-5, only 4-5ths of a second off the Fair Grounds' record for the six-furlong distance.

Mary's Potential, backed into the 6-5 favorite's role by the 13,064 fans, returned $4.40, $3.40 and $2.80. Gleeman, one of the race's longshots, paid $11.60 and $5.20. Road House returned $3.40.

Meaux shot Mary's Potential out of the gate in front but Gleeman matched the Brown color-bearer stride for stride until the nine-horse field hit the head of the stretch. Both Meaux and jockey Roland Vincifore aboard Gleeman pushed their mounts to top efforts. But Gleeman was unable to catch the flying Mary's Potential.

The victory was the fifth straight for Mary's Potential and was worth $9,250.

Hawk Coach Low On Chamberlain

ST. LOUIS (AP)—Coach Paul Seymour of the St. Louis Hawks says 7-foot Wilt (The Stile) Chamberlain of the Philadelphia Warriors "has nothing going for him but his height."

"And furthermore," the former National Basketball Association star declared in an interview Saturday, "all he can do is dunk the ball and once in a while hit a jumper.

"He can rebound, of course, with the best, but that's also only because of his height. He can't pass off as a team man and he can't hit free throws. That's why I hate to lose to him."

The Hawks lost a 129-127 squeker to Wilt and the Warriors in Philadelphia this week. Chamberlain connected for 16 baskets; only three of them jump shots. The others came on dunks or errant balls he guided through the hoop.

"He may have been the most valuable player last year," Seymour continued, "but he was a far cry from being the most talented.

"I'm not just bitter about Thursday night's loss. Look at the All-Star Game. They (the East) have the two big guys in there, Bill Russell and Chamberlain, and we (the West) still romped over them. Wilt got 12 points and only two baskets and played a poor game compared with Russell.

Leaving the locker room after Saturday's game with Los Angeles at Philadelphia, in which he scored 56 points and grabbed 45 rebounds, he addressed Coach Neil Johnston and owner Eddie Gottlieb:

"Coach, you and Mr. Gottlieb talk."

Gottlieb said to remind Seymour that Chamberlain last year was voted the most valuable player in the league by the players.

"They are the ones qualified to comment on Chamberlain's ability since they are playing against him, not Seymour," he said.

"And Seymour and other coaches thinking of legislating against Wilt ought to think twice before they attempt to hurt attendance and endanger their own jobs. Chamberlain is the greatest drawing card in the history of basketball."

Johnston, referring to last year's All-Star Game in which Chamberlain was named the most valuable player, said, "Seymour has an awful short memory. Let him go back to the first All-Star Game Wilt was in."

Golden Gloves Tourney Set In Lafayette

LAFAYETTE (Special) — The call went out today to amateur boxers throughout the state who wish to compete in the 1961 Louisiana State Golden Gloves boxing tournament February 2-3-4 at Blackham Coliseum, Lafayette.

The three - day event, sponsored by the Hub City Kiwanis Club, is expected to draw 160 of the top amateur fighters throughout the state.

More than half of the open division fighters will compete for teams. The announcement this week that former Gloves state champion Sherman Roberts, now a professional, will train and manage a full team representing Winnfield brings to 10 the number of full teams entered in the tourney.

Other teams entered are the Lafayette Boxing Club, the New Orleans Athletic Club and the New Orleans CYO, the Lafayette Recreation Club, Shreveport Athletic Club, Westwego Boxing Club, Baton Rouge, Lake Charles, and the New Iberia Sheriff's boxing club.

Sixteen championships will be at stake, eight in each of the open and novice divisions. Open division champions will receive expense - paid trips to the Mid-South Golden Gloves tournament in Memphis, Tenn., and the Mid-South winners receive expense-paid trips to the nationals in Chicago, Ill., early in March.

Flyweight, 112 lbs.; bantamweight, 118 lbs.; featherweight, 126 lbs.; lightweight, 135 lbs.; welterweight, 147 lbs.; middleweight, 160 lbs.; light heavyweight, 175 lbs.; and heavyweight, over 175 lbs.

Novice division is for boys who have not reached their 18th birthday and are not too experienced. Write Box 2387, Lafayette for details.

Rudolph Takes Skating Lead

MILWAUKEE (AP) — Ed Rudolph, a member of the U.S. Olympic skating team last year, took a lead in the senior men's division the first day of the Great Lakes speed ice skating meet Saturday with a first, second and a third, good for 10 points.

Another Olympic skater, Floyd Bedbury of St. Paul, Minn., was in second place with eight points. The meet winds up Sunday.

Rudolph won the three-quarter mile race, was second in the 220 and third in the mile. Bedbury won the mile and Bill Carow of Madison, another Olympic skater, the 220-yard sprint.

Mary Novak of Chicago won two women's races, with only one other entry in the field. She won both the 220 and 440-yard events.

Defending Golf Champ Manages Semifinal Win

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP)—Marlene Streit, gunning for her third straight Doherty Women's Amateur title, lost only one hole Saturday in a 6 and 5 semifinal victory over Marge Burns.

The Toronto housewife will meet Phyllis Preuss of Pompano Beach, Fla., in the 36-hole final round Sunday.

Miss Preuss, who had never advanced beyond the second round in five previous cracks at this tough tournament, went into the final with a 4 and 2 victory over Curtis Cup veteran Ann Casey Johnstone of Mason City, Iowa.

Mrs. Streit got a quick jump on Miss Burns, the North Carolina champion from Greensboro, by grabbing the first three holes with two birdies and a par. She was 5-up at the ninth.

Miss Burns won only the 10th hole, with a birdie. Then Mrs. Streit who was 1-under-par for the day, won the 11th and 12th with pars and the match ended when they halved the 13th.

A fast start also helped Miss Preuss. She won two of the first three holes, and was 4 up with four holes to go.

Mrs. Johnston birdied the 11th with a 20-foot putt but trapped her tee shot at the 18th and couldn't match Miss Preuss' par.

Gangling Jack Ardon, 6-9 Tulane basketball center, is originally from Estonia in Germany. He moved to America in 1952.

Silver Gloves Bouts Slated At Shreveport

SHREVEPORT, La. (Special) — Sixteen amateur boxing champions in all shapes and sizes — several of them fresh up from the novice ranks — will gather at Municipal Auditorium Monday night (Jan. 23) for the second-annual version of the Tri-States Silver Gloves Boxing Tournament.

The tournament, introduced last July in Bossier City, will be a one-night affair and will catch Ark-La-Tex boxers just prior to regional Golden Gloves tournaments which are scheduled to begin next month. Unlike Golden Gloves competition, however, the Silver Gloves swingfest will be confined to open division battlers with considerable experience.

Whether the 16 assorted area titleholders can continue their trophy collections against a cast of dozens from at least seven cities is subject to debate. Tournament director Gladden Harrison, regional Southern AAU commissioner, will have four Tri-States open division champions back in competition along with three novice titlists who are expected to step into the open brackets.

Back from last summer's inaugural will be light heavyweight Pat Harrington, expected to go after the heavyweight crown; welterweight Oalus Connors of Winnfield; featherweight Conley Adams, also of Winnfield; and flyweight Gene Cortinez of Shreveport. Novice champions returning include middleweight Mills McCawley, Bossier; lightweight Hurshiell Stegall, Shreveport; and flyweight Donald Austin, Winnfield.

McCawley is definitely stepping up into the open class as a light heavy but the future of Stegall and Austin in the Monday tournament remains to be seen.

Seven clubs will go after the Tri - States team title — the Shreveport YMCA, Bossier Boxing Club, Winnfield, Mansfield, Twin - Cities YMCA of Monroe, Longview, Tex. and Tyler, Tex. Only one individual entry, 230 - pound heavyweight Ed Bean of Henderson, Tex., will be competing unattached.

Winnfield, coached by Sherman Roberts and a perrenial powerhouse in the pugilistic field, has four crackerjacks in Adams and Connors, Weldon Gordon and Don Austin. Adams, holder of a 25-4-1 record and 1959 - 60 area lightweight champion, has beaten the best including Baton Rouge's classy Zeke Nola and Lafayette's Earl Hernandez.

Gordon, 1959 regional Golden Gloves and SAAU feathers king and 1960 GG champion, staged three brilliant brawls against Blount last year, winning two. Other Winn warriors include welters Jeff Austin and J. T. Hanson, lightweight Jimmy Hanson and bantam Donald Austin.

Mansfield, coached by Eddie Lynch, has come up with two open class competitors in welter Harvey Ramsey, 1960 SAAU novice light welter champ, and lightweight Ron Chism. Monroe's YMCA entry, directed by John Holliday, will be led by lightweights Beck Love and Billy Bryant and light heavyweight Will Regan.

Green Wave Second Best At Foul Line

NEW ORLEANS, La. (Special) — Latest national statistics find Jim Kerwin and Jack Ardon of Tulane ranking high in three individual categories and the Greenies' free throw shooting being the second best in the nation.

Kerwin, hot - shooting Long Branch, N. J., sophomore, ranks 11th in free throw percentage. He has scored on 58 of 67 attempts for a robust .866 average. Kerwin also ranks 42nd in the nation for individual scoring, with a 20.5 average on 266 points in 13 games.

Lanky Ardon, 6-9 junior pivotman, is eighth in the nation among rebound percentage leaders. Ardon has pulled in 230 rebounds for a 17.7 per game average and a .172 percentage of all rebounds taken.

As a team, the Greenies have dropped in 291 free throws of 375 shots taken for a fine .776 average. Only Ohio State the nation's No. 1 ranking team, has a better rank. The Buckeyes have hit 230 of 303 for a .780 mark.

At their present pace, Kerwin could easily break the season scoring record of 463 points set by Calvin Grosscup back during the 1956-57 season, and Ardon could eclipse the season rebound record of 426, set by Mel Payton in the 1950-51 season.

Kerwin will have to average 19.7 scoring in the remaining 11 Green Wave games, while Ardon will need to pull in an average of 17 rebounds per game to set new marks.

Tulane's team scoring pace of 77.9 also is breaking the existing record of 75.5 set by the 1955-56 squad, but the Wave has some tough defensive teams left on the schedule and will have a hard time maintaining its average.

ALABAMA AIDE

Jerry Clairborne Named Coach At Virginia Tech

He succeeds Frank Moseley, who stepped down as coach to devote full time to the job of athletic director. Moseley had held the dual position for 10 years.

The salary terms of Claiborne's contract were not disclosed.

Says Alabama Coach Paul (Bear) Bryant:

"Jerry is one of the smartest players who ever played for me. And not only does he have a fine football mind, he'll work."

That statement was made a few years after Bryant had Claiborne as player at Kentucky.

Now, as he sees Claiborne departing for a head coaching job, Bryant said:

"In my opinion he is one of the top football men in America."

Bryant long ago pegged Claiborne as a glittering prospect for a head coaching job. When Bryant took over at Alabama in 1958, he was asked which of the boys who had played for him looked like the best head coaching prospects.

He thought a moment, then said: "Fellow by the name of Claiborne, up at Missouri with Frank Broyles."

A short time later Bryant brought Claiborne from the assistant coaching job at Missouri to the chief assistant job at Alabama.

Except for two years, the stocky Claiborne has been with Bryant as player and assistant ever since he showed up at Kentucky as a 17-year-old in 1946.

At his home town of Hopkinsville, Ky., Claiborne had been an all-state end on the football team and what he describes as "a fair basketball player."

At Kentucky—Bryant's first four years there, 1946-49 — Claiborne was an end and safety man, playing in the Orange Bowl and Sugar Bowl with the Wildcats at the finish of the last two seasons.

After graduation, he coached one year at Augusta Military Academy at Fort Defiance, Va., then returned to Kentucky as an assistant. He went with Bryant to Texas A&M in 1954, and left in 1957 for one year as assistant at Missouri before re-joining Bryant at Alabama.

Claiborne is married to the former Anna Faye Hooks of Hopkinsville, Ky. They have three children—David, 7, Jonathan, 5, and Katie, 3.

Tucker Pads Bowling Lead Over Johnson

SAN BERNARDINO, Calif. (AP)—Bill Tucker, a slender cinderella boy, marched relentlessly toward a $10,000 first prize in the National All-Star Bowling Tournament Saturday night.

Tucker, 34, of Rockhill, Mo., competing in his second All-Star tournament, won 11 of his 12 games preceding the final round.

The 5-foot-10, 145-pound Missourian had a whopping 10-66 Petersen point lead over Dick Weber of St. Louis as they prepared to meet in the 16th and final four-game round before a nationwide television audience.

Tucker had amassed 300-22 points through 15 rounds. He blanked Ray Bluth of St. Louis in four games in the 13th round with a 945 series, beat John Powell, Jr. of Toledo, Ohio, 3-1 in the 14th with a 970 series and shut out Don Bickford of Oakland, Calif., in the 15th with an 899 series.

Phyllis Notaro of Brant, N.Y., moved into the women's lead in the fifth round, defeating Joy Abel of Chicago in two straight games, 418-411.

Miss Notaro's point total was 135-22. She was to meet Shirley Garms of Chicago in the final round for the $5,000 women's title.

Jean Eder of Westfield, N.J., tumbled from first to third place after losing two straight games to Katie Gianetti of Fresno, Calif., in the 15th round. Mrs. Garms jumped from third to second place with 133-47 points after splitting her 15th round duel with Pat Sacks of Houston, Tex. Mrs. Garms outscored Mrs. Sacks 422-368.

Under the Petersen point system, a bowler gets one point for each game he wins and one point for every 50 pins he knocks down. Bowlers who outscore an opponent while losing a majority of games are awarded an extra half point.

Former Pitcher Finishes Fast In Golf Meet

BELLEAIR, Fla. (AP)—Jack Russell, a 56-year-old former major league pitcher from Clearwater, rallied late in the match Saturday to defeat George Haggarty, a Detroit attorney, and win the 27th annual American Seniors Golf Championship.

Haggarty held a one-hole edge throughout most of the match play, but Russell surged back on the 16th to even the match, won the 17th to go ahead and halved the 18th for the victory.

Russell is the only co-medalist in the history of the tournament to win the championship. Haggarty, seniors left-handed champion, was heavily favored throughout the last stages of the tournament.

Russell shot a 33-44—77 on the 6,367-yard Belleview Biltmore Course near Clearwater. Par is 35-36—71.

Damp fairways, soggy greens and windy weather hampered the two finalists. Haggarty shot 38-42—80.

Turley Signs

Turley won nine games and lost three last season, compiling an earned run average of 3.28. Turley won the Cy Young Award as the majors' outstanding pitcher in 1958. He posted a 21-7 record that year, but slumped to 8-11 in 1959.

IN DUAL STATE TOURNEY

Pelican, Porker States To Meet

JUNCTION CITY, Ark. (Special) — With the potential of being the toughest meet in the history of the tourney, the 1961 edition of the Dual State dribbles off here, Monday afternoon, January 23, with Homer, La., boys meeting Huttig, Ark., the faculty has announced.

Forty - four teams from the two - state area will cast their round - ball lots on the shining hardwood floor . . . the Razorback versus the Pelican . . . and data obtained by the tournament officials seem to give Spearsville La., winner of last years' meet, and currently ranked number 10 in the state of Louisiana, and Athens, La., ranked number five, the favorite spots.

However, a saw - maned - foam - flecked dark nag from Provencal, La., comes snarling out of the Bayou country in a stuttering, leaping burst, threatening to flatten everything in front of it; therefore, nothing is certain except "officials with tin whistles," and the horn that angrily blasts out the end of the game.

Other top - ranked boys teams are: Summerfield, La.; Bernice, La.; Marion, La and Lisbon La. But at the Dual State anything can happen . . . everything usually does sometimes between Monday afternoon and Saturday night.

Of the Lassie round - ballers entered, defending champion, Waldo, Ark., and second place winner of last year's meet, Norphlet, Ark., seem to hold the favorite spots, with Lisbon, La. Junction City, Ark., and Marion, La., close at their heels. Other sextets with good records are: Spearsville, La., Hermitage, Ark., and Taylor, Ark. Winner of two meets this season, Winnfield, La., is cast in the role as the dark filly.

Schools entering teams from Arkansas are as follows: Tinsman, Stephens, Waldo Emerson, McNeil, Willisville, Taylor, Parkers Chapel, Huttig, Norphlet, Ark., Strong, Hermitage, Village, and Mt. Holly.

Vikings Pose Top Problem At NFL Meet

"We have to decide on a formula to stock the new entry, the Minnesota Vikings," said Commissioner Pete Rozelle. "But we really don't expect to have any trouble."

The vikings will get three players from each of 12 other teams in the league. Dallas a newcomer last season, is expected.

Once that is settled, the Eastern and Western conferences will decide where to place Dallas and Minnesota.

"Right now," said Rozelle, "I'd say the sentiment is in favor of Dallas going into the Eastern Conference and Minnesota the Western."

Rozelle also will talk over the possibility of scheduling 14 instead of 12 games for each club. The idea would be to have a home-and-home series within each conference, plus two out-of-conference games.

"That's worked very well," said Rozelle, "and we'd like to keep it if we can."

The rest of the four-day meeting will be taken up with routine matters—discussion of television, proposals for a Hall of Fame in Canton, Ohio, (home of pro football), minor rules changes, reports on the Pro Bowl and Playoff Bowl and discussion of the player pension plan.

Unbeaten Nag Wins By Neck In N.O. Event

By ED TUNSTALL

NEW ORLEANS (AP) — Mrs. Joe Brown's undefeated Mary's Potential, given a stout test by a 17-1 shot, streaked to a neck victory in the $12,750 Pelleteri Handicap at the Fair Grounds Saturday.

Her clocking was the best of the meeting.

The four-year-old colt ridden by jockey Clarence Meaux, was timed in 1:11 and 2-5, only 4-5ths of a second off the Fair Grounds' record for the six-furlong distance.

W. Hal Bishops' Gleeman, who pushed the brown colt to a top effort, took the runner-up spot while Road House, owned by Roger Wilson and Earl Allen, was third.

Mary's Potential, backed into the 6-5 favorite's role by the 13,064 fans, returned $4.40, $3.40 and $2.80. Gleeman, one of the race's longshots, paid $11.60 and $5.20. Road House returned $3.40.

Meaux shot Mary's Potential out of the gate in front but Gleeman matched the Brown color-bearer stride for stride until the nine-horse field hit the head of the stretch. Both Meaux and jockey Roland Vincifore aboard Gleeman pushed their mounts to top efforts. But Gleeman was unable to catch the flying Mary's' Potential.

The victory was the fifth straight for Mary's Potential and was worth $9,250.

THURSDAY MEETING

Three By-Laws On SEC Slate

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Bernie Moore, Southeastern Conference commissioner, says three proposed by-laws changes will be considered at the annual conference meeting opening in Orlando, Fla., next Thursday.

Moore said the proposals would:

1. Junk the limit of 140 scholarships for football and basketball athletes at each institution, and substitute a rule allowing each member to give 45 new football and six new basketball grants-in-aid each year.

2. Increase the SEC round-robin basketball schedule from 14 to 16 conference games each year. The proposal was recommended by conference basketball coaches at their 1960 meeting.

3. Set some standard of conference scholastic requirements for athletic grant-in-aid scholarships. Most of the 12 conference members now specify only that the student be a graduate of an accredited high school.

Each of the proposals would need a simple majority to pass. The president, or his representative, casts the vote for each member school.

Moore said he anticipated no controversial issues at the meeting.

Along with the regular conference meeting, several allied organizations are scheduled to hold sessions. These include athletic directors, head football coaches, athletic business managers, and ticket managers.

The athletic directors will set the date and site for their May meeting, at which they will work over 1965 and 1966 football schedules.

Election of conference officers also is on the agenda, but if tradition holds true it will be little more than a formality. Customarily, all officers are re-elected to a second term. Those ending their first one-year terms are: Dr. Frank G. Dickey of Kentucky, president; Dr. J. Wayne Reitz of Florida, vice president; Dr. T. A. Bickerstaff of Mississippi, secretary; and Dickey, Reitz, Bickerstaff; Dr. Edwin Harrison of Georgia Tech and Dr. C. T. Sharpton of Alabama, members of the executive committee.

Postpone Date For Moore's Title Defense

NEW YORK (AP) — Archie Moore's defense of his light heavyweight boxing title against Germany's Eric Schoeppner Saturday was postponed until May 27. It'll be held in Madison Square Garden.

Humbert (Jack) Fugazy, executive director of Feature Sports Inc., announced the new date saying that Moore wants more time to reduce his weight and Schoeppner has been stalling over the terms.

When the fight was announced earlier in the week by Melvin L. Krulewitch, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, the date was announced as either March 20 or 21.

Under the announced terms, Moore was to receive 50 per cent of the gate, 67½ per cent of the ancillary rights (radio and television) and all of the motion picture revenue in America and 10 per cent in Germany. Schoeppner's share was to be 20 per cent of the gate, 15 per cent of the ancillary rights and 90 per cent of the motion picture income in Germany.

When Krulewitch was queried about the new date, he said that Fugazy had told him the uncertainty of the closed-circuit television had been the prime factor in shifting the date from March to May.

Andy Neiderriter, Schoeppner's American representative, is flying to Germany Sunday to present the contract to the German light heavyweight champion. Moore already has agreed to the terms.

Strananah Sees Odd Golf Day

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)—Dick Strananah of San Leandro, Calif., ran into difficulties of a strange sort Saturday in the Bing Crosby Golf Tournament, but Dick's wife, Bee, saved the day.

"I feel so embarrassed. I don't know why I did it," she said in making a hasty exit.

Dick dropped the ball at the point where he had hit it and continued his round, scoring a birdie on the hole and finishing with a 74 and 212 total for 54 holes.

PGA officials said the young pro would not have been penalized even if he hadn't been able to recover the ball.

Pacific Baseball Loop Sees Rule For Bat Power

SEATTLE (AP)—A weak-hitting pitcher would sit on the bench while another baseball player took hurler's turns at bat under a plan proposed Saturday by the Pacific Coast League.

Directors of the circuit authoized Dewey Soriano, president, to present the idea to baseball's national rules committee.

If not approved for all of organized ball, the Pacific Coast League will give the idea a trial this year if the committee permits.

"We would like it made optional with the manager before each game as to whether his pitcher takes his turn at bat," Soriano said. "If not, some other player would be named to hit for the pitcher, becoming a regular member of the lineup.

"This would be the first major change in baseball in 60 years," Sorino said. "We believe it would be good for the game."

Also to be suggested to the rules committee is elimination of pitching when a man is to be intentionally walked. The defensive manager merely would signal for the walk and the batter would go to first base immediately.

Calhoun Beats Downsville Independents

CALHOUN, La. (Special) — Led by Hugh Calhoun's 24 points, Calhoun independents easily bested Downsville independents, 74-41, here last night.

Stanley Weems contributed 14 points to the Calhoun attack while Patterson was high for Downsville with 11 points.

Calhoun and St. Paschal's of West Monroe divided a pair of junior high games, Calhoun girls winning by a 18-13 count and St. Paschal's boys taking a 31-26 decision in overtime.

Charlotte Brownlee got 9 points for Calhoun and Parker 6 for the losers in the girls game. Ray led St. Paschal's boys with 13 and Higginbottom hit 9 for Calhoun.

Home Streak

Coach Cliff Wells' Tulane basketball team has won nine straight games at home, including seven this season and two from last year.

IN THIRD ROUND

Ted Kroll Moves Ahead In Crosby Golf Tourney

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Stocky veteran Ted Kroll fired a 4-under-par 68 at Pebble Beach Saturday and exploded into a fourstroke lead at 203 after the third round of Bing Crosby's $50,000 golf tournament.

Kroll, who hasn't won a tournament since 1956 but is always high on the money lists, is 13 strokes under par for 54 holes. He opened with a 69 at Cypress Point and followed with a 66 at Monterrey Peninsula.

The 41-year-old from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., one of the late finishers, moved ahead of 23-year-old Dave Hill of Denver, who carded a 70 at Cypress Point for a 207. Hill went over par on three of the final four holes as a blustery mid-afternoon wind caught up with him.

That didn't seem to bother Kroll as the purple heart World War II veteran carded a 35-33 over the 6,701-yard course with its par 36-36.

Mexico City's Roberto de Vincenzo moved into the third spot at 208. He shot a 70 at Pebble Beach.

Best round of the day went to Bill Casper as the 1959 National Open champion from Apple Valley, Calif., established a competitive course record for Pebble Beach with a 30-35—65. He remained back in the field with a 216 total after opening rounds of 78-73.

Four golfers deadlocked at 209 included 1960 Golfer of the Year Arnold Palmer; Dave Ragan; Bill Collins, who shared the midway lead with Kroll but shot 74 Saturday, and Marty Furgol.

After the round each golfer in the field had toured Monterrey Peninsula, Cypress Point and Pebble Beach. Sunday the field is cut to the low 60 pros and 40 pro-amateur teams for the nationally televised (ABC) finals at Pebble Beach.

The balding Kroll shot a bogey 5 on the first hole when he took three putts but didn't go over par again.

"I got some good breaks and made some fine shots," Kroll told newsmen, "particularly on the 11th and 12th holes."

On the 11th he ran down a 30-foot putt and on 12 he chipped in a 35-footer on his second shot. He nearly ran into trouble on the 400-birdie. His tee shot landed a foot from a water hazard and he had to take a No. 5 iron shot from under a tree. Ted faded the ball it stopped two feet from the cup for an easy putt.

Hill, a product of Jackson, Mich., but now a pro in Denver, fired a 4-under-par 33 on the first nine at Cypress Point and was 5-under through 10. Then came the bogeys at 15, 16 and 17.

A crowd of about 20,000 thronged the course. Palmer complained amateur cameramen were "clicking on my backswing on almost every shot I made."

Kroll won the $100,000 tournament at Tam O'Shanter in Chicago in 1956, but hasn't won since. But he has averaged a $1,000 prize for every tournament he's played. The top prize here is $5,300 for the winning pro,

It took an individual pro score of 220 or better and a pro-amateur team score of 198 to qualify for the final.

Leading in the pro - amateur chase were Wes Ellis and San Francisco attorney Frank Tatum Jr. with a best-ball of 60 and a 185 total. In second place were Dow Finsterwald and amateur Fred Kammer of Grosse Point, Mich., a former Walker Cup player. The pro on the winning team collects a $3,000 paycheck.

For the boys in the semifinals Smith hit 27 points for Winnfield, Salley collected 27 for Pleasant Hill, Bates got 8 for Calvin and Penny hit 27 for Coushatta.

Stilt Scores 56 Points As Warriors Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain led the Philadelphia Warriors to a 136-111 National Basketball Association victory over the Los Angeles Lakers Saturday by scoring 56 points and grabbing 45 rebounds.

It was the third game this month the 7-foot-1 Chamberlain scored 56 points — his season's high. Chamberlain, who once tallied 58, dropped in 56 against New York and Syracuse the first week of January.

The Warriors broke open a tight game in the third period when they struck for eight points while limiting the Lakers to one in a 90-second streak. That made it 74-68, and the Lakers never recovered.

Chamberlain scored 14 points in the third quarter in which the Warriors outscored LA 41-28. It was 97-85 at the end of three quarters.

Elgin Baylor led the Lakers with 27, while teammate Rudy LaRusso scored 22.

Three By-Laws On SEC Slate

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (AP) — Bernie Moore, Southeastern Conference commissioner, says three proposed by-laws changes will be considered at the annual conference meeting opening in Orlando, Fla., next Thursday.

Moore said the proposals would:

1. Junk the limit of 140 scholarships for football and basketball athletes at each institution, and substitute a rule allowing each member to give 45 new football and six new basketball grants-in-aid each year.

2. Increase the SEC round-robin basketball schedule from 14 to 16 conference games each year. The proposal was recommended by conference basketball coaches at their 1960 meeting.

3. Set some standard of conference scholastic requirements for athletic grant-in-aid scholarships. Most of the 12 conference members now specify only that the student be a graduate of an accredited high school.

Each of the proposals would need a simple majority to pass. The president, or his representative, casts the vote for each member school.

Moore said he anticipated no controversial issues at the meeting.

Along with the regular conference meeting, several allied organizations are scheduled to hold sessions. These include athletic directors, head football coaches, athletic business managers, and ticket managers.

The athletic directors will set the date and site for their May meeting, at which they will work over 1965 and 1966 football schedules.

Election of conference officers also is on the agenda, but if tradition holds true it will be little more than a formality. Customarily, all officers are re-elected to a second term. Those ending their first one-year terms are: Dr. Frank G. Dickey of Kentucky, president; Dr. J. Wayne Reitz of Florida, vice president; Dr. T. A. Bickerstaff of Mississippi, secretary; and Dickey, Reitz, Bickerstaff; Dr. Edwin Harrison of Georgia Tech and Dr. C. T. Sharpton of Alabama, members of the executive committee.

Postpone Date For Moore's Title Defense

NEW YORK (AP) — Archie Moore's defense of his light heavyweight boxing title against Germany's Eric Schoeppner Saturday was postponed until May 27. It'll be held in Madison Square Garden.

Humbert (Jack) Fugazy, executive director of Feature Sports Inc., announced the new date saying that Moore wants more time to reduce his weight and Schoeppner has been stalling over the terms.

When the fight was announced earlier in the week by Melvin L. Krulewitch, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, the date was announced as either March 20 or 21.

Under the announced terms, Moore was to receive 50 per cent of the gate, 67½ per cent of the ancillary rights (radio and television) and all of the motion picture revenue in America and 10 per cent in Germany. Schoeppner's share was to be 20 per cent of the gate, 15 per cent of the ancillary rights and 90 per cent of the motion picture income in Germany.

When Krulewitch was queried about the new date, he said that Fugazy had told him the uncertainty of the closed-circuit television had been the prime factor in shifting the date from March to May.

Andy Neiderriter, Schoeppner's American representative, is flying to Germany Sunday to present the contract to the German light heavyweight champion. Moore already has agreed to the terms.

Stranahan Sees Odd Golf Day

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP)— Dick Strananah of San Leandro, Calif., ran into difficulties of a strange sort Saturday in the Bing Crosby Golf Tournament, but Dick's wife, Bee, saved the day.

"I feel so embarrassed. I don't know why I did it," she said in making a hasty exit.

Dick dropped the ball at the point where he had hit it and continued his round, scoring a birdie on the hole and finishing with a 74 and 212 total for 54 holes.

PGA officials said the young pro would not have been penalized even if he hadn't been able to recover the ball.

Pacific Baseball Loop Sees Rule For Bat Power

SEATTLE (AP)—A weak-hitting pitcher would sit on the bench while another baseball player took hurler's turns at bat under a plan proposed Saturday by the Pacific Coast League.

Directors of the circuit authoized Dewey Soriano, president, to present the idea to baseball's national rules committee.

If not approved for all of organized ball, the Pacific Coast League will give the idea a trial this year if the committee permits.

"We would like it made optional with the manager before each game as to whether his pitcher takes his turn at bat," Soriano said. "If not, some other player would be named to hit for the pitcher, becoming a regular member of the lineup.

"This would be the first major change in baseball in 60 years," Sorino said. "We believe it would be good for the game."

Also to be suggested to the rules committee is elimination of pitching when a man is to be intentionally walked. The defensive the walk and the batter would go manager merely would signal for to first base immediately.

IN THIRD ROUND

Ted Kroll Moves Ahead In Crosby Golf Tourney

PEBBLE BEACH, Calif. (AP) — Stocky veteran Ted Kroll fired a 4-under-par 68 at Pebble Beach Saturday and exploded into a fourstroke lead at 203 after the third round of Bing Crosby's $50,000 golf tournament.

Kroll, who hasn't won a tournament since 1956 but is always high on the money lists, is 13 strokes under par for 54 holes. He opened with a 69 at Cypress Point and followed with a 66 at Monterrey Peninsula.

The 41-year-old from Ft. Lauderdale, Fla., one of the late finishers, moved ahead of 23-year-old Dave Hill of Denver, who carded a 70 at Cypress Point for a 207. Hill went over par on three of the final four holes as a blustery mid-afternoon wind caught up with him.

That didn't seem to bother Kroll as the purple heart World War II veteran carded a 35-33 over the 6,701-yard course with its par 36-36.

Mexico City's Roberto de Vincenzo moved into the third spot at 208. He shot a 70 at Pebble Beach.

Best round of the day went to Bill Casper as the 1959 National Open champion from Apple Valley, Calif., established a competitive course record for Pebble Beach with a 30-35—65. He remained back in the field with a 216 total after opening rounds of 78-73.

Four golfers deadlocked at 209 included 1960 Golfer of the Year Arnold Palmer; Dave Ragan; Bill Collins, who shared the midway lead with Kroll but shot 74 Saturday, and Marty Furgol.

After the round each golfer in the field had toured Monterrey Peninsula, Cypress Point and Pebble Beach. Sunday the field is cut to the low 60 pros and 40 pro-amateur teams for the nationally televised (ABC) finals at Pebble Beach.

The balding Kroll shot a bogey 5 on the first hole when he took three putts but didn't go over par again.

"I got some good breaks and made some fine shots," Kroll told newsmen, "particularly on the 11th and 12th holes."

On the 11th he ran down a 30-foot putt and on 12 he chipped in a 35-footer on his second shot. He nearly ran into trouble on the 400-birdie. His tee shot landed a foot from a water hazard and he had to take a No. 5 iron shot from under a tree. Ted faded the ball it stopped two feet from the cup for an easy putt.

Hill, a product of Jackson, Mich., but now a pro in Denver, fired a 4-under-par 33 on the first nine at Cypress Point and was 5-under through 10. Then came the bogeys at 15, 16 and 17.

A crowd of about 20,000 thronged the course. Palmer complained amateur cameramen were "clicking on my backswing on almost every shot I made."

Kroll won the $100,000 tournament at Tam O'Shanter in Chicago in 1956, but hasn't won since. But he has averaged a $1,000 prize for every tournament he's played. The top prize here is $5,300 for the winning pro,

It took an individual pro score of 220 or better and a pro-amateur team score of 196 to qualify for the final.

Leading in the pro - amateur chase were Wes Ellis and San Francisco attorney Frank Tatum Jr. with a best-ball of 60 and a 185 total. In second place were Dow Finsterwald and amateur Fred Kammer of Grosse Point, Mich., a former Walker Cup player. The pro on the winning team collects a $3,000 paycheck.

Stilt Scores 56 Points As Warriors Win

PHILADELPHIA (AP) — Wilt Chamberlain led the Philadelphia Warriors to a 136-111 National Basketball Association victory over the Los Angeles Lakers Saturday by scoring 56 points and grabbing 45 rebounds.

It was the third game this month the 7-foot-1 Chamberlain scored 56 points — his season's high. Chamberlain, who once tallied 58, dropped in 56 against New York and Syracuse the first week of January.

The Warriors broke open a tight game in the third period when they struck for eight points while limiting the Lakers to one in a 90-second streak. That made it 74-68, and the Lakers never recovered.

Chamberlain scored 14 points in the third quarter in which the Warriors outscored LA 41-28. It was 97-85 at the end of three quarters.

Elgin Baylor led the Lakers with 27, while teammate Rudy LaRusso scored 22.

ON TWO BIG ISSUES

State Awaiting Kennedy's Stand

BATON ROUGE (AP)—Louisiana had two main interests in John F. Kennedy, who won an easy victory in this state, as the new President got started Saturday.

A great interest was in what Kennedy would do in face of the state's fight against federal court orders to integrate public schools.

And the state wasn't exactly disinterested in what the Kennedy administration would do about proposed federal legislation to give Louisiana and two other gulf coast states 10½ miles of the mineral-rich tidelands. Some $300 million is at stake.

Louisiana political leaders who helped Kennedy win the state with 50.3 per cent of the vote last November still hadn't returned from the inaugural. It could not be determined about either topic.

Since the Democratic victory in Louisiana, some leaders have predicted Kennedy's administration may look with favor on the state's two big causes.

"The South is rising again," Kennedy told enthusiastic supporters in his October, 1959, campaign swing through Louisiana. "The South is moving ahead. And here in Louisiana there are Americans looking forward with hope."

The presidential candidate at the time didn't refer to white or Negro Americans as such. He was speaking in a state in which the voters are 86 per cent white persons.

Kennedy made several major speeches around Louisiana during his campaign tour. And he said in one of them he disagreed with Paul Butler, then Democratic national chairman, that the South was expendable in the election.

"The South is the strength of the Democratic party," he said at Baton Rouge, "and I hope it stays in the party in 1960." Much of the South did stay and Kennedy won.

At the same Baton Rouge appearance, Kennedy was asked how he stood on segregation.

Kennedy answered he had about the "same views as anybody" since he had just been made an honorary citizen of Baton Rouge.

"But," he added, "whether you like the Supreme Court decision or not, you must support the law. You don't support only laws you like."

The high court decision that separate but equal school facilities were unconstitutional, he said, was being implemented state by state and in U.S. district courts "as judges in these districts feel it should be done."

Integration, the future president said, "is not just a southern problem, it is a national problem.

Paris Styles Have Loose Waistlines

PARIS (AP) — Paris promises "a new type of woman" when the spring and summer 1961 fashion collections open Monday.

Whatever surprises the dressmakers have up their sleeves, the "new woman" seems fated to be short-skirted and loose-waisted.

She will be dressed in vaporously light materials, both in tender pastel shades and violently bright colors. Drapes, pleats and panels will be part of the picture.

A lion's share of attention will go to Marc Bohan, 34, who will be making his debut Thursday as Dior's top designer. He has already come out for short skirts (which will just miss showing the knee, probably), and has dropped a large hint that waistlines may be loose. He says his clothes will be casual and easy to wear. A trademark of his collection will be sports suits, carried over for formal wear in dressy materials. The gray flannel suit will be an important item in his daytime creations.

Nina Ricci's Jules Crahay is less outspoken about his line, which he describes as "mysterious and a bit opulent." But he does reveal that waistlines won't be pinched, that the bosom will be flattened, but only in daytime clcothes, and that "exclamation point" necklines will provide generous decolletage.

There will be both loose and fitted waists at Lanvin, where the collection is designed by Castillo. Skirts will be very short, but covering the knee. The general line will be straight.

Castillo promises "modest decolletage—but plus a surprise." His "blue skies and spring fruit" colors will include strawberry, peach and cherry. There will be all kinds of materials, he says, particularly silk, lace and embroideries. The designer has inspired himself at the Prado for a Spanish-influenced show whose accent will be on femininity.

Pierre Cardin will show his most feminine collection yet. He says "There will be no constraints on the figure. The line will be fluid—the 'Water Reed' look—with drapery details and pleats giving some volume. The waist will not be accentuated or even important." 'Fabrics will be light, but colors strong, for Cardin has borrowed Gauguin's palette for inspiration. He still believes in audacity.

Even more fun than building a new house can be remodeling one in which one has lived long enough to discover what it lacks. The WAYNE WOODS have completed a really major overhaul of their home at 1004 Speed avenue, enlarging and adding rooms.

An off-the-street parking area and sheltered entry present a hospitable welcome to visitors. An unusual floor of marble chips imbedded in concrete is used in the entrance hall, with its Regency commode topped by a gold-framed mirror flanked by sconces. Doors open from the hall into living room at the right, dining room straight ahead, and kitchen to the left.

The marble and concrete floor continues into the dining room, with its white walls and Regency furniture. Draperies are sheer white silk printed in shades of beige and gold. Silver storage is provided in a closet of shelves and drawers lined with Pacific cloth.

The den is beyond the dining room. Walnut panels the walls, and floors are of hardwood strips laid in blocks. A green area rug and brown furniture are placed before the large fireplace of sandstone. In a corner formed by two walls of glass are table and chairs for cards.

A passage area which doubles for storage space connects with the children's playroom, which also has its own outside entrances and opens into the kitchen. Blackboards, television set, and child-size toy furniture make this room ideal for little girls.

The kitchen was enlarged, almost doubling its size. Wallpaper printed in shades of blue and turquoise is used above cabinets and counters of turquoise. Appliances are built into the cabinets.

The bedroom shared by daughters Sharon and Shawn has gaily-painted yellow furniture. Draperies, headboard and dust ruffles of the beds are covered with a tiny print in shades of green and yellow . . . Eyecatching on the dresser-top is the toy Noah's Ark with pairs of animals . . . Stacey's room has blue walls and carpet with material printed with blue flowers. . . . In the girls' bath, grey walls accent the wallpaper, in a smart combination of these colors with blue.

Gold and white are colors used in the master bedroom, which features gold carpeting and white draperies with gold border. Draperies on the canopied Regency bed pull closed. A white and gold sofa and two gold chairs face the open fireplace which centers the wall overlooking the patio. Two walls of the room are lined with ten closets, including one which houses a miniature kitchen for snakes and late breakfast is housed in a gym off the bedroom.

In the bath-dressing room are two more closets, engineered for hats, shoes, purses, and such odd-size accessories. The gold carpet continues into the bath, which has white tile walls and a luminous ceiling. Fixtures are housed in separate little compartments, such as Susan's fabulous sunken bathtub of gold tile with faucets shaped like golden swans, and Wayne's stall shower with thirteen shower heads offering an all-over spray.

PAT and HARRELL LARY are in New Orleans for the weekend. They went down for the Osiris Ball last night, will be home today.

When CAMILLE and ROBERT WOOD built their home on Deborah Drive some three years ago, living room, dining room, and master suite were left unfinished. They have recently completed the second step, the master bedroom. An area about forty by eighteen feet was enclosed for this in the original structure. The new work includes closets and dressing room on each side of a hallway leading to the bedroom, some eighteen by twenty-five feet.

Facing the door, the end wall is centered by a wood-burning fireplace faced with green marble. Restful shades of blue and willow green are used in the coverlet and dust-ruffle of the sleigh bed, in the chair upholstery a gateleg table and a marble-topped commode are used as bedside tables. The dresser is another marble-topped antique.

Walls and high-pitched ceiling are white, with carpeting of a shade called Cloudy Jade. Windows are covered with white shutters, as is the door which gives onto the patio. A large out-of season storage closet at the end of the room also serves as outside entrance for hunting equipment and such.

Here is a poem we have used before, but now repeat for the benefit of those of our readers who have passed this dangerous birthday in the last three years: Ogden Nash's "A Lady Thinks She is Thirty:"

Unwillingly Miranda wakes,
Feels the sun with terror,
One unwilling step she takes,
Shuddering to the mirror.
Miranda in Miranda's sight
Is old and gray and dirty;
Twenty-nine she was last night;
This morning she is thirty.
Silly girl, silver girl,
Draw the mirror toward you;
Time who makes the years to whirl
Adorned as he adored you.
Time is timelessness for you;
Calendars for the human;
What's a year, or thirty, to
Loveliness made woman?
Oh, night will not see thirty again,
Yet soft her wing, Miranda;
Pick up your glass and tell me, then—
How old is Spring, Miranda?

Mrs. Sam Lasuzzo, organist and Mrs. Waymond Etier, soloist, presented a program of nuptial music.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of Chantilly lace and tulle in chapel length. Iridescent sequins and pearls outlined the scooped petal neckline and the lace bodice with tunic effect extended in four points on the overskirt, with wide tulle ruffles beneath. The long sleeves tapered to lily points over her wrists and her fingertip veil of illusion cascaded from a double crown of pearls and iridescent sequins. Atop a white pearl Missal, the bride carried a single yellow - throated white orchid, showered with fleur d'armour.

Miss Lucille Cernigliaro attended the bride as maid of honor. She wore a frock of champagne crystal satin, styled with a draped neckline, fitted bodice and full circle skirt. A cummerbund in gold satin which encircled the waist, was accented with a large bow, forming panels in back. Miss Jan Scalia, niece of the bride, served as flower girl and wore a petite facsimile of the dresses worn by the other attendants. Her brother, Raymond John Scalia, was ring bearer.

Serving as best man was V. J. Cascio. Groomsmen were Charley McCook and Robert Fontana and the ushers were S. E. "Bill" Reppond and J. C. Scalia.

Mrs. Reppond, mother of the bridegroom, was wearing a pale green wool jersey jacket dress with deep green accents, an iridescent green satin hat and green luster calf shoes and bag. A fur stole and an orchid corsage completed her costume.

Immediately following the ceremony a reception was held at the Paragon Supper Club. The tiered wedding cake, encircled with white flowers was served by Mrs. Mary Long and Mrs. Arnold Tucker. Two punch bowls were placed at opposite ends of the refreshment table, which was centered with a mound of white stock. Presiding at the punch bowls were Mrs. Charley Miller and Mrs. Maurice Oliver. Miss Hays Becomes Bride Of William P. Lane Jr.

In a candlelight ceremony performed at 6 o'clock Saturday evening in the Eudora Presbyterian church, Miss Beryl Kirk Hays of Eudora became the bride of William Patrick Lane Jr., of Delhi. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dan Lott of Tallulah, former pastor of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodson Hays of Eudora, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Patrick Lane Sr., of Delhi.

Seven - branched candelabra holding tall white tapers, interspersed with arrangements of greenery and pompons, flanked with spiral candelabra formed the altar setting for the exchange of vows. A white satin prie dieu centered the altar and plumosa fern and pompons were arranged along the chancel rail which was garlanded with smilax. The center aisle was lighted with tall white tapers in wrought iron holders, entwined with smilax and pompons.

David Tschabold, organist, Lake Providence, provided a program of nuptial selections and accompanied Mrs. Robert O'Conner of Monroe, who sang "O Perfect Love," and "The Story of Ruth."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk taffeta, fashioned with princess point waistline, Sabrina neckline etched with lace, three-quarter sleeves and a gathered circle skirt. A scalloped band of Chantilly lace encircled the skirt and was caught up with rosettes of taffeta. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a crown of orange blossoms and seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of butterfly roses and valley lily centered with a white orchid.

Miss Judy Whitaker of Eudora, was maid of honor and wore a frock of mint green silk organza over taffeta. Taffeta rosettes accented the empire styling of the scoop neck bodice, with tiny satin bows at the back waistline. Her headdress was fashioned of net with a satin bow and pompons and she wore matching slippers and white gloves. Her bouquet was fashioned of heart - shaped white velvet tubing to which was attached a cluster of yellow pompons.

Bridesmaids were Miss Bright Hays, sister of the bride, of Eudora; Miss Virginia Moore, Birmingham, Ala., cousin of the bride and Miss Linda Lane, Delhi, sister of the bridegroom. They were dressed in identical frocks as the maid of honor, with matching shoes and white gloves. Their headpieces featured lily of the valley and they also carried heart - shaped bouquets.

Michael Lane, Delhi, brother of the bridegroom, was ring bearer.

Serving as best man was James Hallberg of Natchez, Miss., and groomsmen were Charles Hixon, cousin of the bridegroom and V. P. Dalrymple Jr., both of Delhi and Tom James, Monroe, cousin of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Hays chose for her daughter's wedding a street - length dress of green lace over taffeta bodice with satin skirt and cumberbund. Mrs. Lane, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of turquoise peau de soie and both wore corsages of cymbidium orchids. Mrs. R. C. Kirk of Mobile, Ala., maternal grandmother of the bride and Mrs. R. C. Hays, Eudora, paternal grandmother of the bride, were also present for the ceremony. Mrs. Kirk wore a dress of navy blue lace with pink hyacinth corsage and Mrs. Hays wore a blue frock with white feathered carnation corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the church with Mrs. Charles Hays, aunt of the bride, in charge. The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white pompons and plumosa fern in a silver bowl, flanked by two five-branch candelabra holding lighted silver candles. Smilax and plumosa fern garlanded the table.

After a wedding trip the couple will be at home in Delhi, where Mr. Lane is employed. For travel the bride wore a two-piece suit of powder blue with mink collar, gray accessories and feather hat with nose veil. The orchid from her bouquet was pinned to her shoulder.

Brides Can Now Furnish Wisely On Tiny Budget

According to the Home Furnishings Industry Council, winter brides with as little as a few hundred dollars ear-marked for furniture, can start their married life with all the basic furniture needed.

Rather than compete with the moths for the overstuffed suite in Mom's attic — she can, with careful shopping acquire all she needs in fine furniture to enjoy now, and add to later.

Two guiding rules to follow are: know what you want and don't buy anything else until you have it. The exquisite desk or beautifully designed lamp can come after the basics.

The cost of essential furniture covers a wide range, as upholstered sofas vary from $150 to over a thousand, and a chair may cost $70 or $370.

1-ROOM APARTMENT
Sofa Bed	$270
Drop-Leaf Table	80
Lounge Chair	70
2 Modular Storage Units	140
Corner Table	40
TOTAL	$600

With $1,000 put aside and a two or three room apartment to furnish — the following plan is most practical:

2 OR 3 ROOM APARTMENT
Sofa	$200
Two Arm Chairs	150
Corner Table	40
Living Room Storage Unit	70
Dining Table and Four Chairs	180
Bed Headboard and Frame	70
2 Dressers	170
2 Night Tables	70
TOTAL	$990

Whether the budget covers to $600 or $1,000 — today's newlyweds can acquire all they need in the way of basic furniture.

Morace-Chapman Nuptials Read In Home Scene

Miss Doris Chapman, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Franks of Enterprise, became the bride of Charles Neal Morace of Tyler Town, Miss., on January 7.

The ceremony was performed at 7:30 p.m. in the home of the bridegroom's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Morace at Eva. Rev. Phillip Collins of Jonesville, officiated.

Among those attending the wedding and reception which followed were Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Franks, Earl Shipley and Grant Aarons all of Enterprise.

Miss Hays Becomes Bride Of William P. Lane Jr.

In a candlelight ceremony [illegible] at 6 o'clock Saturday evening in the Eudora Presbyterian church, Miss Beryl Kirk Hays of Eudora became the bride of William Patrick Lane Jr., of [illegible]. The double ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Dan Lott of Tallulah, former pastor of the church.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Woodson Hays of Eudora, and the bridegroom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. William Patrick Lane Sr., of Delhi.

Seven - branched candelabra holding tall white tapers, interspersed with arrangements of greenery and pompons, flanked with spiral candelabra formed the altar setting for the exchange of vows. A white satin prie dieu centered the altar and plumosa fern and pompons were arranged along the chancel rail which was garlanded with smilax. The center aisle was lighted with tall white tapers in wrought iron holders, entwined with smilax and pompons.

David Tschabold, organist, Lake Providence, provided a program of nuptial selections and accompanied Mrs. Robert O'Conner of Monroe, who sang "O Perfect Love," and "The Story of Ruth."

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a gown of silk taffeta, fashioned with princess point waistline, Sabrina neckline etched with lace, three-quarter sleeves and a gathered circle skirt. A scalloped band of Chantilly lace encircled the skirt and was caught up with rosettes of taffeta. Her fingertip veil of illusion was attached to a crown of orange blossoms and seed pearls and she carried a cascade bouquet of butterfly roses and valley lily centered with a white orchid.

Miss Judy Whitaker of Eudora, was maid of honor and wore a frock of mint green silk organza over taffeta. Taffeta rosettes accented the empire styling of the scoop neck bodice, with tiny satin bows at the back waistline. Her headdress was fashioned of net with a satin bow and pompons and she wore matching slippers and white gloves. Her bouquet was fashioned of heart - shaped white velvet tubing to which was attached a cluster of yellow pompons.

Bridesmaids were Miss [illegible] Hays, sister of the bride, of Eudora; Miss Virginia Moore, Birmingham, Ala., cousin of the bride and Miss Linda Lane, Delhi, sister of the bridegroom. They were dressed in identical frocks as the maid of honor, with matching shoes and white gloves. Their headpieces featured lily of the valley and they also carried heart - shaped bouquets.

Serving as best man was James Hallberg of Natchez, Miss., and groomsmen were Charles Hixon, cousin of the bridegroom and V. P. Dalrymple Jr., both of Delhi and Tom James, Monroe, cousin of the bridegroom.

Mrs. Hays chose for her daughter's wedding a street - length dress of green lace over taffeta bodice with satin skirt and cumberbund. Mrs. Lane, mother of the bridegroom, wore a gown of turquoise peau de soie and both wore corsages of cymbidium orchids. Mrs. R. C. Kirk of Mobile, Ala., maternal grandmother of the bride and Mrs. R. C. Hays, Eudora, paternal grandmother of the bride, were also present for the ceremony. Mrs. Kirk wore a dress of navy blue lace with pink hyacinth corsage and Mrs. Hays wore a blue frock with white feathered carnation corsage.

Following the ceremony a reception was held at the church with Mrs. Charles Hays, aunt of the bride, in charge. The bride's table was centered with an arrangement of white pompons and plumosa fern in a silver bowl, flanked by two five-branch candelabra holding lighted silver candles. Smilax and plumosa fern garlanded the table.

After a wedding trip the couple will be at home in Delhi, where Mr. Lane is employed. For travel the bride wore a two-piece suit of powder blue with mink collar, gray accessories and feather hat with nose veil. The orchid from her bouquet was pinned to her shoulder.

Brides Can Now Furnish Wisely On Tiny Budget

According to the Home Furnishings Industry Council, winter brides with as little as a few hundred dollars ear-marked for furniture, can start their married life with all the basic furniture needed.

Rather than compete with the moths for the overstuffed suite in Mom's attic — she can, with careful shopping acquire all she needs in fine furniture to enjoy now, and add to later.

Two guiding rules to follow are: know what you want and don't buy anything else until you have it. The exquisite desk or beautifully designed lamp can come after the basics.

The cost of essential furniture covers a wide range, as upholstered sofas vary from $150 to over a thousand, and a chair may cost $70 or $[illegible].

Based on average needs, the Council has worked out the following budgets to cover two situations:

1-ROOM APARTMENT
Sofa Bed	[illegible]
Drop-Leaf Table	[illegible]
Lounge Chair	70
2 Modular Storage Units	140
Corner Table	[illegible]
TOTAL	$600

With $1,000 put aside and a two or three room apartment to furnish — the following plan is most practical:

2 OR 3 ROOM APARTMENT
Sofa	$200
Two Arm Chairs	150
Corner Table	40
Living Room Storage Unit	70
Dining Table and Four Chairs	[illegible]
Bed Headboard and Frame	[illegible]
2 Dressers	170
2 Night Tables	70
TOTAL	$990

Whether the budget covers to $600 or $1,000 — today's newlyweds can acquire all they need in the way of basic furniture.

Nurses Spend Little Time In Nursing Care

The report, published in Medical Tribune, a publication for doctors, shows that 28 per cent of the registered nurse's time is spent nursing.

Other finds:

—A third of the total working hours is taken up with such institutional services as cleaning patients' rooms, making unoccupied beds, serving meals, sorting and stacking linen, doing clerical work.

—More time is spent in laundry service than in observing signs, symptoms and reactions of patients.

—Twelve per cent of the time is spent for personnel services, time for meals and other personal needs, including timekeeping, payment activities and on the job training of auxiliary personnel.

Between two and three per cent of the time is spent on security activities. That is taking steps to assure safety and protection of persons and property. For example, checking and recording narcotics and locking and unlocking medicine cabinets.

Three per cent of the time is taken up by waiting. For example, waiting to give or receive reports, waiting to receive supplies, and waiting for elevators.

Immunization For Poison Ivy Should Start Now

By SOLANGE BERTRAND

It may seem odd to be talking about poison ivy during January, but the treatment for this and other vacation - time ills has to start well ahead of the season.

Nothing is more destroying to beauty and morale than to spend late spring and summer with a disfiguring case of dermatitis, or with a nose and eyes streaming from hay fever.

The two conditions are not unrelated. People who are allergy-prone generally are afflicted with hay fever, and are also susceptible to poison ivy beyond those who are allergy - free.

Both afflictions are caused by something carried in air so freely that avoidance is difficult. Hay fever is caused by the pollens of various plants and grasses. Poison ivy and poison oak secrete a substance called urushiol, which permeates the plant and can be carried in tiny droplets through the air. This is why poison ivy can be contracted even though the plants haven't actually been touched.

For some years the search for immunizing substances has been carried on, and most hay fever sufferers are familiar now with the injections which can immunize them partly or wholly against the allergy. The injections must begin well in advance of the hay fever season, as it takes two months or more to build up immunity.

For poison ivy, scientists developed an injectable liquid in which a controlled amount of urushiol itself was suspended in a saline solution. For some 10 years it has been possible to immunize persons susceptible to the poison or who were probably going to be exposed to the plants, by giving a series of injections over a period of two months or longer.

The U. S. Coast Guard, which must clear heavy brush each year along the ivy - infested banks of the Mississippi River, asked for an easier method of immunizing their men. The result was a tablet, made with the same material as the injections, which could be taken anywhere.

Anyone once exposed to poison ivy is thereafter more susceptible to it. Therefore, a program of building up immunity should begin well in advance of possible exposure, and be kept up during the summer. Taken as directed, the tablets will provide immunity up to 12 months.

$50 A Week Stretches To Feed Family Of 13

MONTROSE, S. D. (AP)—Skyrocketing prices are punching holes in family budgets. But it's still possible to feed 13 mouths on $50 a week.

It is being done here by W. S. (Skeet) Cone who earns that amount weekly as a service station attendant and mechanic.

Glancing up from the engine he was overhauling Cone said, "I don't really know how we do it—we just do. It means we have to watch our pennies."

Comments his wife: "We don't have a lot of money but we don't want very much. We eat, have a roof over our heads and that's it. Everyone seems to be content with what he has. Probably if we had more money we'd get the big head and wouldn't that be the berries?"

As nine healthy, noisy, neatly-dressed youngsters descend upon the five-room house when school is out, it is apparent they are happy and content.

COUNTING NOSES

Children in school are Mary Jo, 16; Gary, 14; Sandy, 13; Clinton, 12; Kenny, 11; Jeff, 10; twins Harold and Gerald, 9; and Bradley, 7. Janie, 4, and Cindy, 3, spend days at home with their mother. Ronald, 20, joined the Navy following his graduation from high school last year.

"If a person doesn't have a high school education he can't get a decent job," he says. "I want my kids to amount to something."

Cone, who learned the mechanic trade at a local garage in his home community of 430 persons, works from 7 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. six days a week, and a half day work on Sundays.

Twice in 20 years he has taken a week's vacation. Other years he has spent his week off driving gravel trucks, erecting steel grain bins or working at other jobs to supplement his income.

PANCAKES AGAIN

"When there are bills to be paid they come first before we buy a nickels' worth of groceries," says Mrs. Cone. "There are streaks when we eat a lot of pancakes, but the kids are real good about it and even say, 'Oh boy, pancakes again.' "

Help around the house isn't difficult to find. "If we are going to get company on short notice, you should see the kids pitch in and clean up," said this mother of a dozen.

Mother is the barber for all male members of the family. Sandy helps the local beauty operator in exchange for hair styling and Mary Jo and her mother take care of their own hair. Gary manages to find odd jobs and Mary Jo works as a baby sitter to help with their own spending money.

CHEAPER BY THE DOZEN

When it's time for shoes, six or seven pairs are bought at a time. Using 10 pounds of potatoes every meal, the Cones never purchase less than 100 pounds at a time. Quantity buying is less expensive, also a large garden helps hold down grocery bills.

Bread is baked at home. For 20 cents Mrs. Cone can bake six or seven batches with baker's yeast.

Even thread is bought several spools at a time to save pennies. There is use for it all because she sews for both boys and girls. Clothing isn't made from new materials —as one child outgrows something it is made over for a younger one. Mrs. Cone cuts her own pattern if she needs one.

"Someday," she said, "I would like to see what I could do with a pattern and new material."

Nails Demand Extra Care In Cold Weather

Like skin, nails need extra help in cold weather. Despite their hardness, nails are made of the same substance as skin. They grow drier in cold weather, become more brittle. Pealing and cracking are common.

For those who are plagued all year round with peeling or splitting, the only known treatment is to take gelatin. Plain white powdered gelatin, available in any grocery store, should be taken disolved in water, juices or milk two or three times a day.

There is also on the market gelatin in capsules, to be bought in drug stores, if drinking powdered gelatin doesn't appeal. But, regardless of form, gelatin has to be taken for a month or two before results in the nails become apparent. Incidentally, gelatin is high protein, low calorie food, so it is good for you and your figure as well. It will cut down appetite, making it easier to avoid fattening snacks.

Several external aids can help nails more immediately. Now on the market is a nail aid kit which includes a form of white iodine. Brushed on daily around the cuticles, white iodine seems to strengthen nails as they grow. White iodine is also incorporated in nail creams, to be worked in, on and around the nails.

If nails persist in breaking off, don't try to keep them long and pointed. File them to a short oval. Use colorless nail polish, brushing on a coat every day. The polish will fortify the nail.

A more permanent way to strengthen nails is to use one of the false nail kits that models employ. In the kit, which can be bought at drug and cosmetics counters, are too small bottles, one containing a powder, the other a liquid. They are to be mixed according to directions.

The resulting substance is brushed on the nails like nail polish. When it dries, a very hard coat is formed which is not removable. Models with peeling, cracking nails brush on the liquid in a thin coat over the whole nail, thus reinforcing it.

If a nail has broken off short, a new end can actually be built up with the substance.

The report, published in Medical Tribune, a publication for doctors, shows that 28 per cent of the registered nurse's time is spent nursing.

Other finds:

—A third of the total working hours is taken up with such institutional services as cleaning patients' rooms, making unoccupied beds, serving meals, sorting and stacking linen, doing clerical work.

—More time is spent in laundry service than in observing signs, symptoms and reactions of patients.

—Twelve per cent of the time is spent for personnel services, time for meals and other personal needs, including timekeeping, payment activities and on the job training of auxiliary personnel.

Between two and three per cent of the time is spent on security activities. That is taking steps to assure safety and protection of persons and property. For example, checking and recording narcotics and locking and unlocking medicine cabinets.

Three per cent of the time is taken up by waiting. For example, waiting to give or receive reports, waiting to receive supplies, and waiting for elevators.

Silver bugle beads shimmer between each pleat adding lustre to the night hours.

$50 A Week Stretches To Feed Family Of 13

MONTROSE, S. D. (AP)—Skyrocketing prices are punching holes in family budgets. But it's still possible to feed 13 mouths on $50 a week.

It is being done here by W. S. (Skeet) Cone who earns that amount weekly as a service station attendant and mechanic.

Glancing up from the engine he was overhauling Cone said, "I don't really know how we do it—we just do. It means we have to watch our pennies."

Comments his wife: "We don't have a lot of money but we don't want very much. We eat, have a roof over our heads and that's it. Everyone seems to be content with what he has. Probably if we had more money we'd get the big head and wouldn't that be the berries?"

As nine healthy, noisy, neatly-dressed youngsters descend upon the five-room house when school is out, it is apparent they are happy and content.

COUNTING NOSES

Children in school are Mary Jo, 16; Gary, 14; Sandy, 13; Clinton, 12; Kenny, 11; Jeff, 10; twins Harold and Gerald, 9; and Bradley, 7. Janie, 4, and Cindy, 3, spend days at home with their mother. Ronald, 20, joined the Navy following his graduation from high school last year.

"If a person doesn't have a high school education he can't get a decent job," he says. "I want my kids to amount to something."

Cone, who learned the mechanic trade at a local garage in his home community of 430 persons, works from 7 a.m. to 9:30 p.m. six days a week, and a half day work on Sundays.

Twice in 20 years he has taken a week's vacation. Other years he has spent his week off driving gravel trucks, erecting steel grain bins or working at other jobs to supplement his income.

PANCAKES AGAIN

"When there are bills to be paid they come first before we buy a nickels' worth of groceries," says Mrs. Cone. "There are streaks when we eat a lot of pancakes, but the kids are real good about it and even say, 'Oh boy, pancakes again.' "

Help around the house isn't difficult to find. "If we are going to get company on short notice, you should see the kids pitch in and clean up," said this mother of a dozen.

Mother is the barber for all male members of the family. Sandy helps the local beauty operator in exchange for hair styling and Mary Jo and her mother take care of their own hair. Gary manages to find odd jobs and Mary Jo works as a baby sitter to help with their own spending money.

CHEAPER BY THE DOZEN

When it's time for shoes, six or seven pairs are bought at a time. Using 10 pounds of potatoes every meal, the Cones never purchase less than 100 pounds at a time. Quantity buying is less expensive, also a large garden helps hold down grocery bills.

Bread is baked at home. For 20 cents Mrs. Cone can bake six or seven batches with baker's yeast.

Even thread is bought several spools at a time to save pennies. There is use for it all because she sews for both boys and girls. Clothing isn't made from new materials —as one child outgrows something it is made over for a younger one. Mrs. Cone cuts her own pattern if she needs one.

"Someday," she said, "I would like to see what I could do with a pattern and new material."

Nails Demand Extra Care In Cold Weather

Like skin, nails need extra help in cold weather. Despite their hardness, nails are made of the same substance as skin. They grow drier in cold weather, become more brittle. Peeling and cracking are common.

For those who are plagued all year round with peeling or splitting, the only known treatment is to take gelatin. Plain white powdered gelatin, available in any grocery store, should be taken disolved in water, juices or milk two or three times a day.

There is also on the market gelatin in capsules, to be bought in drug stores, if drinking powdered gelatin doesn't appeal. But, regardless of form, gelatin has to be taken for a month or two before results in the nails become apparent. Incidentally, gelatin is high protein, low calorie food, so it is good for you and your figure as well. It will cut down appetite, making it easier to avoid fattening snacks.

Several external aids can help nails more immediately. Now on the market is a nail aid kit which includes a form of white iodine. Brushed on daily around the cuticles, white iodine seems to strengthen nails as they grow. White iodine is also incorporated in nail creams, to be worked in, on and around the nails.

If nails persist in breaking off, don't try to keep them long and pointed. File them to a short oval. Use colorless nail polish, brushing on a coat every day. The polish will fortify the nail.

A more permanent way to strengthen nails is to use one of the false nail kits that models employ. In the kit, which can be bought at drug and cosmetics counters, are too small bottles, one containing a powder, the other a liquid. They are to be mixed according to directions.

The resulting substance is brushed on the nails like nail polish. When it dries, a very hard coat is formed which is not removable. Models with peeling, cracking nails brush on the liquid in a thin coat over the whole nail, thus reinforcing it.

If a nail has broken off short, a new end can actually be built up with the substance.

Waist-Hugging Fashions Seen In New Styles

By GAY PAULEY

NEW YORK (UPI) — The world's fashion leaders HAVE to do something different for 1961 — as penance for the do-nothing of 1960.

The year just ended was one without a major change in silhouette. About the only two items of news note were the introduction of New York designer Norman Norell's trouser-skirted suits and Jacqueline Bouvier Kennedy's selection on another New York designer, Oleg Cassini, as the man who would create most of her inaugural wardrobe except for her formal ball gown.

What about predictions for 1961? They varied, depending on the designer to whom you talked. But there was one straw in the wind — "waist makers" once again may get their chance. There was promise of the revival of the fitted silhouette after several seasons of the wandering and uncertain waistline.

PREVIEWED THIS WEEK

Details of what one group of leading New York designers created for spring and summer 1961 were previewed last week during the Couture Group's "press week" for visiting reporters.

Some 51 members and auxiliaries of the group, starting Sunday showed collections of dresses, coats, suits, sportswear, fabrics and accessories.

In advance of the formal showings, United Press International paged 10 top designers for forecast of shapes to come — and several hinted the swing next would be to clothes which hug the waistline.

"The most important thing to watch is the return to fitted clothes. . .to the indented waistline," said Norman Norell.

"I think '61 will bring back the normal waistline and true figure definition," said Adele Simpson, the New York designer who heads her own manufacturing business.

James Galanos, the California couturier, said "the major change will be in new proportions. . . broader shoulders, to give a slimmer look below." Galanos' spring collection, incidentally, was shown in New York in early December and featured widened shoulders, bare arms and a slim, unfitted silhouette.

FORECAST WIDER SHOULDERS

Designer Ben Zuckerman whose firm is best known for its coat and suit styles, also saw shoulders returning. Coats, he said, would continue very full cut in the next few seasons.

"Colors will be fresh and strong and prints big and hold the year round," said Mollie Parnis, who has designed for Mrs. Dwight D. Eisenhower for several years.

Bill Blass chief designer for Maurice Rentner of New York agreed. "Color and fabric interest will outshine the silhouette," said Blass.

Guests Attend Lakeview Club At Tolbird Home

Sewing tips to keep up to date on clothing construction was the topic of the demonstration given by Mrs. Audrey Dawson Monday when she met with the Lakeview Home Demonstration club.

Business was conducted by the new president, during which reports on Home Management and Consumer Education were given by the leaders. Plans for the sewing work shop were made. After the recreational period a social hour was held at which time Mrs. J. C. Tolbird served refreshments to two visitors Mrs. J. W. Holton and Mrs. Audrey Dawson, and members, Mrs. J. T. Waldrop, Mrs. C. D. Waldrop, Mrs. Joe Kersh, Mrs. D. E. McGraw, Mrs. G. O. Johnston, Mrs. E. E. White, Mrs. Donald Tolbird, and Mrs. Jim McClung.

Next meeting will be in the home of Mrs. G. O. Johnston on Feb. 20.

SEW SIMPLE

By Eunice Farmer

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"I have a very full FELT skirt which requires shortening. This skirt is flared so I am not sure how I can be assured of an even hemline. I realize that it merely requires cutting as it does not have a hem."

Mrs. J.F.D.

Dear Mrs. J.F.D.:

I wouldn't consider finishing any hem - line without having it accurately marked on me with a pin-it skirt marker. This is your guarantee that the entire hem will be exactly the same distance from the floor.

If you are shortening a felt skirt for your growing teenage daughter, save the extra felt you have cut off. When it needs the added length, butt the two cut edges together and zig - zag them to a piece of firm bias fabric on the wrong side of the skirt. If you will mark several MATCHING POINTS on the wrong side of the skirt with different colored threads before you cut off the excess fabric, you will be able to fit the cut edges together exactly as they were originally.

The point where the two pieces are joined together may be covered with velvet cording, ribbon, fringe, or many other novelty trims to hide the stitching.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"I am 50 years old and have never sewed, but after reading your articles every week, I am going to try. Please tell me how I may get your "Sew Simple" articles I failed to cut out."

Mrs. M.L.Z.

Dear Mrs. M.L.Z.:

To you, and all the others who have written about obtaining back copies of this column, you will have to get this information from the Circulation Dept. of our newspaper. May I suggest that you save each column for future reference.

PATTERN BULGE

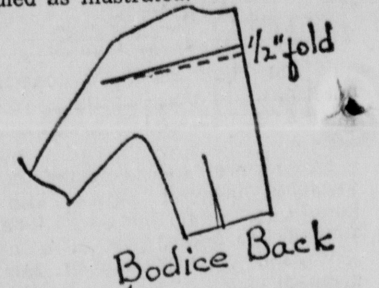
"Dear Eunice,

"I wonder if other folks are having my trouble. As you know, lots of the patterns this season are the one - piece back and sleeve combined. My jackets or dresses always bellow out across the back below the shoulders. How do you fix this?"

Mrs. M.K.

Dear Mrs. M.K.:

It sounds like there is too much fabric in the upper back of the bodice for you. This is easily remedied as illustrated.



Make a ½ - inch fold in the upper back of your pattern, about 3 inches below the shoulders. This fold will taper to nothing almost at the sleeve seam. When making any change of this type, it is always better to make it out of muslin first, then if it works, cut your good fabric the same.

Be sure that your bodice and jacket are not too long waisted. If a tightly - fitted garment is too long waist - ed, the fabric will also have a tendency to bulge in the middle of the back.

Please send all questions to Sew Simple, in care of this newspaper. Questions of general interest will be answered as soon as possible in this column. If you are doing buttonholes, you might like a free copy of my "All About Buttonholes" leaflet. Send a stamped, self - addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer in care of Monroe Morning World.

Logtown Club Plans Future Leader Meetings

January meeting of the Logtown Home Demonstration was held in the home of Mrs. Marvin Shipp with Mrs. J. T. Bennett, co - hostess. Mrs. George Tarleton Sr., president, called the meeting to order and gave the thought for the day.

Members were reminded of the Council meeting on January 27, the Home Management leader meeting on January 26, and the Nutrition and Home Management leaders' meeting on January 30.

Mrs. Audrey Dawson, home demonstration agent, gave a demonstration on "Sewing Tips to keep up-to-date on sewing." After the business session, members and guests enjoyed a recreational and social hour.

Mrs. J. W. Landrum and Mrs. F. S. Bennett, visitors, were invited to join the club. The February meeting will be held in the home of Mrs. W. F. Ramsey with Mrs. C. C. Scharff, co - hostess. "Pennies for Friendship were collected from the members."

Mitchell PTA Committee To Select Officers

A nominating committee to select officers for the ensuing year was selected at a meeting of the W. R. Mitchell Parent-Teacher Association held Wednesday, January 11 at the school.

Following the devotions by Mrs. Joe Halback, the program chairman, Mrs. W. W. Hinson, introduced the panel, who presented a discussion on "Improving Study Habits." The panel consisted of Mrs. Betty Garrison, Mrs. Lyda Tolbird and Howard Brown Jr.

Room count was won by Mrs. C. H. Tait's second grade.

Trundle Popular

The trundle bed is the most sought after design for children's rooms since it combines the space - saving asset of the bunk and the flexibility of twin beds.

When it needs the added length, butt the two cut edges together and zig - zag them to a piece of firm bias fabric on the wrong side of the skirt. If you will mark several MATCHING POINTS on the wrong side of the skirt with different colored threads before you cut off the excess fabric, you will be able to fit the cut edges together exactly as they were originally.

The point where the two pieces are joined together may be covered with velvet cording, ribbon, fringe, or many other novelty trims to hide the stitching.

"Dear Mrs. Farmer,

"I am 50 years old and have never sewed, but after reading your articles every week, I am going to try. Please tell me how I may get your "Sew Simple" articles I failed to cut out."

Mrs. M.L.Z.

Dear Mrs. M.L.Z.:

To you, and all the others who have written about obtaining back copies of this column, you will have to get this information from the Circulation Dept. of our newspaper. May I suggest that you save each column for future reference.

PATTERN BULGE

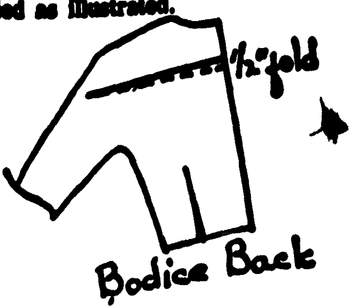
"Dear Eunice,

"I wonder if other folks are having my trouble. As you know, lots of the patterns this season are the one - piece back and sleeve combined. My jackets or dresses always bellow out across the back below the shoulders. How do you fix this?"

Mrs. M.K.

Dear Mrs. M.K.:

It sounds like there is too much fabric in the upper back of the bodice for you. This is easily remedied as illustrated.



Make a ½ - inch fold in the upper back of your pattern, about 3 inches below the shoulders. This fold will taper to nothing almost at the sleeve seam. When making any change of this type, it is always better to make it out of muslin first, then if it works, cut your good fabric the same.

Be sure that your bodice and jacket are not too long waisted. If a tightly - fitted garment is too long waisted, the fabric will also have a tendency to bulge in the middle of the back.

Please send all questions to Sew Simple, in care of this newspaper. Questions of general interest will be answered as soon as possible in this column. If you are doing buttonholes, you might like a free copy of my "All About Buttonholes" leaflet. Send a stamped, self - addressed envelope with your request to Eunice Farmer in care of Monroe Morning World.

Girl Scout News

If you didn't attend the council meeting Thursday evening, you missed an enthusiastic gathering.

Opening the meeting with a colorful flag ceremony were the following members of Troop 44: Bonnie Baldo, Ann Brinson, Linda Breard, Marilyn Denous, Gretchen Haas, Sally Hover, Virginia Starsney.

The film and Mrs. B. O. Yeldell's report on the recent national convention made us wish we'd been there. In three years there'll be another, this one in Miami, Florida. A timely report on program trends, including the proposed four-level program for girls 7 - 17, was given by program chairman, Mrs. Leon Noland, Jr.

Many had their first glimpse of the New Senior Scout uniform when Mickie Varnado, Troop 1, wearing the trim, dark - green dress, told of adventurous program opportunities open to Senior Scouts. For example, Senior Conference in New Orleans in February, the Mississippi Mermaid trip next June, Senior Roundup in 1962 in Vermont. Some girls from Troop 1 expect to take part in each of these events, as well as future ones, such as the Arkansas Float Down and the Appalachian Trail hike.

Receiving 10 year membership pins were Mrs. B. O. Yeldell and Mrs. J. W. Schonlau. Five-year pins went to Mrs. John H. Brown, Jr., Mrs. D. T. DeMasterson, Mrs. Ellis V. Hunt, Mrs. E. B. Pounds, Mrs. W. H. Chambliss, Mrs. R. H Upshaw, Mrs. O. K. Davis, Mrs. John Carso, Mrs. C. E. Vaughan, Mrs. E. S. Parrish, Mrs. Howard Irvin Kilpatrick, made the presentation.

Another first in our council were the golden shoulder ribbons which designate a leader. Mrs. Guy Alford, president, pinned the ribbons on Mrs. William Gannaway, a leader of Troop 1, and registered in Scouting for almost six years. Afterward the president presented each leader in uniform a pair of golden ribbons, and announced that a set would be waiting for each leader as she secured a uniform.

The engraved inscription on the statuette of a Girl Scout will remind our retiring president, Mrs. Alford of what we hope were rewarding years spent as board member, two of them as president. Mrs. Charles Overton, board member, made the presentation.

Business taken care of will be reported elsewhere. The board will elect officers at its meeting tomorrow night.

According to leaders of Senior Troop 1, there is great interest in the Senior Conference. The council was invited to send a patrol of eight girls, with two adults. Since so many are interested, the girls decided there was no way to be fair other than the time honored one of drawing for place, including alternates. Parents have been notified that they are to signify approval and to pay registration by troop meeting time Tuesday. We'll be hearing more about their plans.

Workshops that sound like fun are one on dramatics on Friday, the 27th, another on songs and games on Tuesday, the 31st, both at the office from 9:30 until 2:00. Anyone may attend all or part of a session. Both Brownie and Intermediate leaders will find the training helpful.

ANNOUNCEMENT is made today of the approaching marriage of Miss Peggy Sue Finley, above, to James Edward Hickman, son of Mr and Mrs. John E. Hickman of Calhoun. The bride-elect is the daughter of Mrs. R. H. Frazier, Calhoun and the late Feo M. Finley. The January 27 wedding will be solemnized in the Indian Village Methodist church at Calhoun. Miss Finley is a senior in Calhoun high school and her fiance, a graduate at Calhoun, is now employed in Monroe.

Housekeeping Jitters Often Strike New Brides

MEMO TO THE BRIDE: Housekeeping jitters are par for the course so don't hesitate to ask those with know-how how to solve them.

The first few months in a new home are dreamy—superficial cleaning is all that is required.

Then one day you notice the gloss has been dulled and your enchanted cottage or apartment requires some elbow grease.

Many brides are hemmed into a work box by wedding presents of thoughtful relatives. Weed out those bottlenecks that are dust collectors and work projects in the interest of progress.

Your own choice of furnishings could have been unwise. Frilly curtains are charming, but if you live in a sooty area, find some replacements at the window. If a plastic runner is necessary over that light colored carpet, use it. Remove it when you are entertaining.

Many a first spat for newlyweds occurs over the placement of furniture. Does the man of the house crash into the jutting corner of that end table every time he gets out of bed in the dark? Is there a good size ashtray convenient to his favorite chair to save the rug, table and his disposition? Is everything in your living room so precious that he feels uncomfortable in it? If so, change it while you have a chance to make it seem like home. When he complains about a little inconvenience, he's not talking. It counts with him.

What about a reading light in the bedroom? A man who has been accustomed to reading before he falls off to sleep, will need a good light for that purpose, even it it spoils the look of your headboard. Purdue University home furnishings specialists suggest ample light over the bed for each reader, the placement of light above the bed about 20 inches from the mattress.

Choose newer items in cleaning equipment, if possible. These double up in efficiency, and help cut down on chores. A new floor cleaner that combines scrubber and waxer can do all scrubbing jobs such as tile, wood, linoleum, and also can apply wax and polish to gleaming highlights.

Modern vacuum cleaners have been designed for easier use of accessories, and a jiffy house cleaning. You can vacuum draperies, upholstery, bookshelves and even ash trays, so that it is the easiest chore of all. A room will look spic and span in a few minutes, and a big cleaning chore is avoided by removing dust that could become imbedded in fabrics and crevices. The suction gadget for room corners, window frames, shelves is a time saver in itself.

Homemakers queried on the subject say the best time to work is in the morning. One is likely to have more energy then, they point out, and chores will not be hanging over for a long time, making tasks more difficult to face as the day wears on. These experienced homemakers suggest (1) cleaning one room thoroughly each day, (2) keeping ahead of closets (never put anything into one, unless it belongs), (3) cleaning the oven each day, (4) disposing of objects that cease to be useful, (5) avoiding clutter by saving the minimum of jars, bottle tops, corks, paper bags, string and other paraphernalia that is useful within a given space of time.

Fit New Home To Suit Your Personality

Does the new home you are planning suit your pocketbook — and your personality?

The latter can be more important than the money angle. Architects and builders are giving more and more attention to the psychological aspects of the homes they design and build because they have found this can markedly effect the health and well being of the occupants.

The home is the main item of physical environment for everybody. Either it assists in realizing human goals, aspirations and needs, or it doesn't. Individual needs and tastes differ, of course, but here are a few guideposts to aid in selecting the right home for you:

1. Make provisions for privacy. Everyone likes contact with other members of the family, but there is a definite need by each of us to be alone on occasion.

2. Stimulating surroundings. The atmosphere should be stimulating, but not artificial or "too busy." Natural earth materials such as ceramic tile — notable for its extremely expressive range of colors and designs — can help here.

3. Beautiful surroundings. Aim always for beautiful, life-enhancing surroundings, but remember to have facilities for pleasant leisure activities and personal comfort.

Answers Given To Problems In Beauty Care

By SOLANGE BERTRAND

Q: I am just over forty, and I find that my makeup doesn't hide lines. In fact, it gets into them and accentuates them. What should I use?

A: It's not the what, but the how. You are applying makeup too heavily. If the skin itself is good through care, it should not need to be masked with layers of foundation and powder.

Choose thin liquid foundations that blend well with the skin, finish with only the lightest dusting of powder. Occasionally glance into the mirror and remove any excess that may have worked its way into lines.

Q: I tried a home hair lightener, and my hair came out a brassy shade of gold. What did I do wrong?

A: Nothing except try to bleach it yourself when you obviously didn't know the color composition of your hair. Even ordinary brown hair has quite a lot of red in it. It is this red which makes the hair look brassy when bleached.

To get the right shade, you must use a toner on it after bleaching. This can be a temporary rinse or a permanent tint. I would advise you to visit a salon at least once to have it done professionally and see what is used.

Q: There are no two ways about it. My nose is too large for my face. I'm thinking of plastic surgery, but my family and friends laugh me out of it. What do you think?

A: If you secretly hope the heavens and earth will open up for you because you have had your nose changed, forget about it. All you'll get is a better-looking nose. Your life will remain the same otherwise.

But if your analysis is a sensible one, then don't be laughed out of it. Your doctor can guide you to a competent plastic surgeon, who performs these operations routinely every day.

Q: I'm sixteen and I know I'm not attractive to boys. Would it help to take a course at a charm school? I understand it costs quite a lot.

A: Of course, it would help, by giving you the knowledge with which to improve yourself. But the attainment of attractiveness to others is a lifelong process which must be worked at continually. The course will only give you a start.

If you realize this, the money will be well spent.

Review Club Topic On Islands Of Caribbean

The president, Mrs. W. M. Inabnet, conducted the business session at which time messages were read from the fifth district president and state president of Louisiana Federation of Women's Clubs. Letters of appreciation for the club's participation in the successful Monroe Day for Veterans at the Alexandria hospital received from the hospital and the Red Cross office were read. A letter from the president of General Federation of Women's Clubs announced Richard Carter's new book, Gentle Legions, as one of interest for community volunteers. The treasurer was instructed to send the club's contribution to C.A.R.E.

Caribbean Islands was the subject for the afternoon's program which was introduced by Mrs. A. T. Givens, chairman of the advisory board committee. Mrs. W. E. Bennett, Jr. gave a detailed history of the islands supplemented with pictorial materials. Mrs. W. T. Davis reviewed Island in the Sun by Alex Waugh. The impact of British colonial administration, the centuries-old friction between white planters and their native workers, the well - to - do society which carries on its pursuit of pleasure while explosive forces gather are among the dynamic elements that sweep this journalistic report to an affecting climax.

At the conclusion of the program guests were invited into the dining room where an oblong arrangement of specimen foliage centered the table. Mrs. Inabnet presided at the coffee service while the hostess served cake to Mrs. George Walker, Mrs. L. N. Waddell, Mrs. N. R. Spencer, Mrs. Claude Smith, Mrs. J. C. Loftin, Mrs. Fred Huenefeld, Jr., Mrs. DeWitt Henry, Mrs. Thomas Dansby, Mrs. C. P. Gray, Jr., Mrs. E. P. Cudd, Mrs. W. T. Davis, Mrs. A. T. Givens, Mrs. D. W. Griffith and Mrs. W. E. Bonnett, Jr.

THE HOME SHIFT

By MILDRED SWIFT

The little old fashioned paper narcissus are in bloom. Many of you used such blooms in your homes for Christmas. This is one of our most satisfactory bulbs, demanding little care, blooming for us when there are no other flowers in the garden. A few of these narcissus planted later this summer should give you good performance next December and January.

NANDINA

Few shrubs give us so much for so little — as does the nandina. Easy of culture, hardy to cold, growing in most any type soil, this plant is grown primarily for its berries. However the five foot high, 30 inch spread plant is a very beautiful upright evergreen, if kept pruned. It is used as a speciman plant, hedge or screen. Its leaves turn a beautiful red with cold weather, too. The coloration of both berries and leaves is more noticeable in the colder weather.

PROPAGATION

Propagation of nandina is accomplished by rooting stolons or underground stems from November through March. Put stolons outdoors in a cutting bed situated in a protected place. Rooting media can be sharp sand or sand and peat moss.

The plant has divided leaves; about May it produces terminal clusters of small white flowers, succeeded by berries. Birds eat these when other food is scarce.

CULTURE

Nandina is of easy culture, but must be kept pruned Now is a good time to do this pruning. Cut out all old looking canes, leaving only the shorter young ones. Cut these old stems within an inch of the ground.

This shrub fares well without feeding, but responds well when fed. It does not seem to be bothered by insects or disease.

Balled or burlapped nursery stock should be planted in a sunny spot with the top of the ball level with the ground. A light, well - drained loamy sandy soil, containing plenty of leaf mold is best.

SHOWY PLANT

Bridal wreath, which is the common name given to various specias of spirea, is a good background shrub for this area. This plant grows three to four feet high and is deciduous. It makes a "showy and snowy" shrub since it is covered with long sprays of white double flowers for several weeks in the spring, usually around azalea blooming time. The two make such a beautiful picture when in bloom at the same time. Bridal wreath flowers can be cut and taken inside but they shatter easily and are not longlasting.

This plant is not fussy as to soil and grows with little care. It responds to fertilization, but gives you gorgeous blooms if not fed. I have plants growing and thriving in clay soil and some in a rich loamy soil. They do not require a mulch, but the bed is easier kept if a mulch is used. Bridal wreath seems free of insects and disease.

PRUNING

Pruning is necessary after the bridal wreath blooms. Each year take out a few of the oldest canes, right down where they come out of the ground. New growth will come out here and you'll have blooms all the way to the ground next year. Top-notch pruning should never be done.

Now, while bridal wreath is dormant is the time to plant. Blooms come in singles and doubles. The old - fashioned double variety, to me, is the prettiest. It weeps so beautifully when in bloom. There's a late flowering group that has pink or reddish flowers.

GARDEN HINTS

The shrimp plant is a most satisfactory perennial that blooms over a long period of time. The nurseries will have these a little later. The plant bloom is the color of shrimp.

We usually think of the primrose as a house plant, but there's a variety that is hardy enough to plant outside. Many are evergreen. They come in most all colors and are lovely for low planting where you want color. Plant these in February

Start thinking about gladiolus bulbs, the varieties you want. You'll plant these the last of February, but you can be deciding on just what you want, now.

If you plan to have sweepeas for the sweet girl graduate, you can still plant these seed. They're large, (the seed) and can be planted while the soil is still rather wet and heavy. This is not true of tiny seed. They'll be packed and lost if the soil is too wet.

YOUR SERVANTS

You have many servants. Every electric motor in your home is a servant and many more will be added in 1961. Let's look into the next year's picture of what to look for in electric pleasure, convenience, luxury and comfort. A transistor radio in your glasses with set concealed in the side pieces — or if you prefer to carry your entertainment in your handbag in 1961, you'll be able to buy a transistor radio that weighs only 10½ ounces and is only as large as a king size package of cigarettes.

Professionals tell us that electronic ovens, one day will be roasting meats and baking cakes in a matter of seconds. In your future also is a system that lets you dial your range by telephone from a distant point and start it cooking dinner.

A new range in 1961 will barbecue over glowing ceramic coals.

HINTS

If you make a suit or coat yourself, you might do well to make a muslin test copy first. This has several purposes. It gives you the opportunity to check the fit of the pattern and the need for pattern alterations. With the test copy, you discover before it is too late whether the design looks well on your figure, and whether the coat feels comfortable. You can also gain some practice in construction details which will add to your confidence, when you begin actual work on the wool garment.

Press satin very carefully, because it can easily take on a flat, overpressed look. Always protect it with a light press cloth and press on the wrong side.

It's much harder to be smart in a size 46 than a size 16. It isn't as difficult as it used to be, though, thanks to the many little tricks used by clever designers who neatly solve the large figure problems. Light weight wools are recommended by these designers for the large figure — sold colors — clothes that do not accentuate the large waistline, careful selection of any prints used, three-quarter sleeves, just below the elbow and not too short skirts.

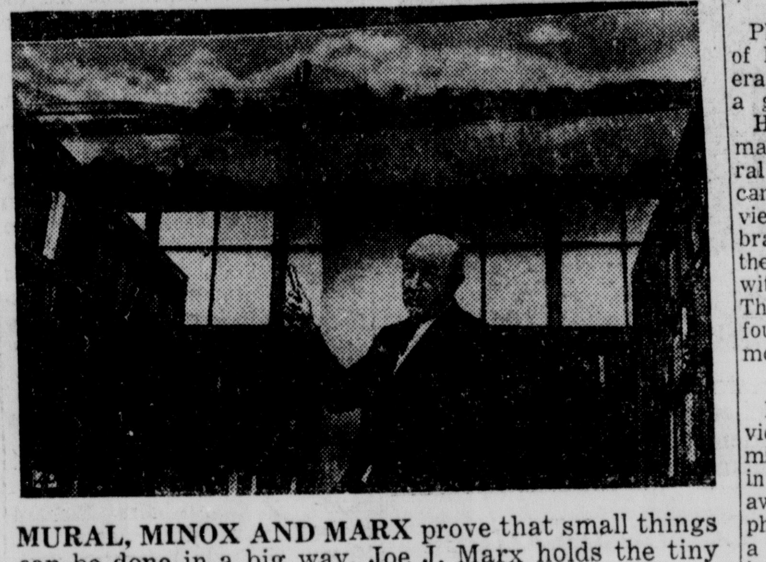
CITY'S SKYLINE

Large Mural Product Of Smallest Camera



MURAL, MINOX AND MARX prove that small things can be done in a big way. Joe J. Marx holds the tiny camera which produced the 15-foot mural which hangs in Cincinnati Public Library.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

He proved this recently by making probably the largest mural ever taken by the smallest camera. The result is on public view in the Cincinnati Public Library: a 15 - foot panorama of the city's skyline photographed with a sub-miniature camera. The original scene was shot on four negatives each of which measured less than half an inch.

ACHIEVEMENTS

I know Joe Marx from his previous achievements in the ultra-miniature field. For two years in a row he took the first prize awards in the national Minox photo contests. He couldn't do it a third time, however, because in 1960 they asked him to become a judge in the contest.

But what spurred him on to his recent feat?

"I had often studied a 40-foot daguerrotype mural on permanent display in the library," Marx explained. "It was a view of Cincinnati's waterfront taken from the Kentucky side in 1848, enlarged from eight daguerrotypes, each 4 x 5 inches.

"'What tremendous changes have taken place since then,' I thought. 'The city . . . cameras.' Why not use the smallest, most modern camera to take the same picture? What a challenge!"

With this goal in mind, did Marx rush down to the river's edge, camera in hand, shooting in all directions like a Roman candle?

No, he went back to the library to look up some photo books. Till now he had specialized in close-ups and human interest pictures and he realized a little research was in order. He found some helpful information in the Focal Encyclopedia, a British publication, which has been put out in a new desk edition distributed in this country by Macmillan Co., New York.

TRIPOD NEEDED

He learned that to make a good panorama, a tripod must be used, something he had never used before with a Minox. In addition, it would require a carpenter's spirit level to make sure that the film plane remained absolutely vertical in each of the separate exposures. Without it, the Ohio River might run up hill at the extreme edges of the picture.

Marx made the enlargements for the mural in his own bathroom - darkroom, printing 30x36 inch panels with a slight overlap at each edge. Not having big enough trays, he worked on a waxed masonite board set in the bathtub. He sloshed on the developer with a big sponge and controlled the rate of processing with a garden hose. He sponged on the hypo too and hosed the prints for washing.

In mounting, the shorelines of each panel had to meet and the light and dark tones had to match. The final assembly was on a 15-foot masonite board.

SPECIAL PROJECT

"But this was a special project, off its usual beat," he says. "I think it shows up best in every-day - picture - taking. An ultra miniature camera is portable, concealable and available.

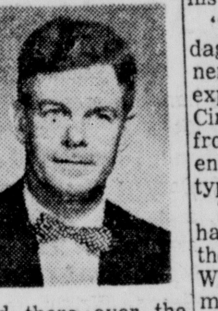
"Obviously you can't get pictures if you don't have a camera at hand when you run across something unexpectedly. And many another good picture has been lost because the camera, if it is on hand, is too obvious.

"Look at me now. Would you know that I'm carrying three Minox cameras and a flash unit under my jacket? One is loaded with a fast film, one with slow film and one with color. I'm prepared for anything and my pictures won't look posed because they aren't posed.

"For a final bit of advice to other camera fans, I'd say this: Shoot more close-ups. Select one important person, thing or detail and concentrate on it. Make it an exercise for one whole roll of film . . . nothing but close - ups. See if you don't like the results."

SOUTHERN GARDENER

Impenetrable Hedge Beauty



By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

If you want an absolutely impenetrable hedge through which no animal will venture to go, then plant one of the evergreen barberries. Two of these, at least, are available in southern nurseries: Julien's and Sargent's barberries.

Although they have not been plentiful, gardeners and plant lovers have come to know them since their arrival some 20 years ago.

REDDISH CANES

The Sargent barberry looks much like Julian's barberry, but has reddish new canes. The foliage is more shiny and the berries not as bluish as those on Julian's. These plants are nearly interchangeable as far as their uses are concerned. One of the most delightful things about both of them is the occurrence of red leaves, here and there over the bushes in contrast to the fine evergreen foliage. In some seasons, too, whole bushes will turn fiery red or rosy tones mixed with green.

As hedge plants, these two barberries are ideal because, except under the worst conditions of starvation and drouth, they are fitted out with dense leaves and formidable prickles right down to the ground. So terrible are the three - pronged prickles that nurserymen hate to handle them. Those who wish to have birds and cats at the same time need not worry about the birds in these prickly bushes.

Just now, after the season when red berries were so popular, the small bunches of blue-grey fruits on Julian's and the darker ones of Sargent's barberries are some of the most attractive things in the winter landscape. Birds do not seem to eat the fruits until later on in early spring.

With no pruning, these shrubs will become dense masses up to eight or ten feet tall. The famous "Chinese" Wilson of the Arnold Arboretum in Boston introduced both of these fine shrubs to cultivation from western China in 1900 and 1907, when the firm of James Veitch of England sent him to that country. He introduced, during these years, still other fine evergreen barberries, a very few of which found their way into our southern nurseries. All of them are elegant plants with evergreen leaves and bluish or black berries.

Broadway Play Role Helps Unite Actor And Uncle

Henry J. Watson, a brother of Spinetti's mother, came to this country from Wales in 1913, long before the birth of the young actor. When Watson and his wife learned the player would be here in "The Hostage," they came from Rochester, N.Y., for a get-acquainted visit.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Tips Given On Planting

By MARY M. JARDINE

By GLADYS M. KULCKE
Guest Writer

Facts to observe if you are planting trees — fruit trees, shade trees, flowering trees and shrubs:

If you want to shade your terrace plant a light foliage tree that will reduce glare, but will not cut off the light in your house. The locusts are ideal trees for this purpose. They are widely planted for decorative purposes and are easily transplanted.

The best time to plant trees is on a cloudy, windless day. Get the holes dug and all equipment ready before planting. Trees that have been dug up should be planted in holes bigger than the earth ball around the roots and set in slightly below the ground level.

HEELED

Trees and shrubs that are obtained from a nursery should be heeled into a trench in the garden if they cannot be planted immediately, but should never be delayed too long. Roots of any tree or shrub should be kept wet during the time of transplanting. After the protective coverings are removed it should be covered with a coating of wet mud or wet gunny sacks. If the tree is small enough it can be dipped into a large container so that the roots are thoroughly covered with wet mud or water. The earth should be pressed down firmly about the roots as the hole is filled. Use your foot to firm the earth well. When the hole is three - quarters filled with soil, fill with water. When it is absorbed fill again. Fill with soil and pile it in a mound around the base of the tree.

A shallow trench should be dug around the outside limits of the hole that has been dug for a transplanted tree. This trench will collect rain and moisture. When watering trees soak the ground thoroughly. Let the water run slowly. Mulch newly planted trees for the first year. This will keep the ground moist and prevent weeds from growing.

FEATURED

A composition used as a room divider was made by Mrs. Robert Bealle. She used a pumpkin colored, boat shaped compote, placed on a wooden base. The crescent design was made with the curved branches of eucalyptus. Pumpkin colored grapes were placed in the focal area on one side of the arrangement, and a bunch of lime green grapes formed the focal area on the opposite side. Large leaves of ivy were tucked to cover the voids in the focal areas.

Mrs. William Easley and Mrs. Robert Tyler chose a round brown compote placed on a round brown straw mat. The S design was made by curved branches of eucalyptus. The upright curved line was strengthened by dried aspisditiea. A cluster of green plastic grapes extended down out of the bowl. A pomegranate accented the point of interest. A longlasting composition of interesting color combination.

EXTENSION NEWS

Now Is Time For Planting

Now is an excellent time to plant the tree that you, Mrs. Homemaker, have been wanting. Dogwood is one of the loveliest. Every year thousands are lost because they are difficult to grow. When transplanted from a wooded area to the average home grounds, nursery grown dogwood trees are a far safer bet for transplanting.

In its natural situation, dogwood grows in a group of trees where it is shaded and sheltered by larger hardwood trees. It spreads its roots through the top soil in search of nutrients and moisture. In transplanting, this loose root system is usually badly damaged, and the tree is forced to adapt itself to heavier soil and more sunlight than it is accustomed to. It is also likely that it is planted somewhat deeper than it was. These things make survival difficult.

COMPARABLE

The nursery grown dogwood has been raised in a situation more comparable to home grounds. Its roots have been clipped back to make them develop in a more compact form than wild dogwood roots. Balled and burlapped, these trees can be moved without damage and chances of survival are many times greater. Be sure to plant the tree the same depth as it grew in the nursery. Burlap need not be removed in transplanting.

Under most circumstances nursery grown dogwood is a better investment. Though the tree you get from the woods may be free, if it does not live it means your time and effort is wasted and its beauty is lost from the wild site where it thrived.

SPRAYERS

Perhaps you, Mrs. Homemaker, are planning to buy a new sprayer to use in your fight against the insects and diseases this spring and summer in your garden. Our specialist, Kenneth Koch, advises that many sprayers will corrode very rapidly when using the many new pesticides. To reduce this corrosion, Koch advises buying a sprayer that's made of stainless steel which is resistant to corrosion. The department of agriculture engineering at the University of Manitoba, Canada reported that 21 different metal samples were exposed to seven different pesticides and that stainless steel showed no change. So if you are buying a new sprayer or if you need new parts for your old sprayer, you can't go wrong on stainless steel, if it is available.

H. D. NEWS

Yours truly and Mrs. C. D. Henderson, district director for the Home Demonstration Council, will attend the executive meeting in Alexandria on Wednesday of this week. Plans will be made for the district meeting and also annual state meeting of the Home Demonstration Council of Louisiana.

The home management leaders will meet at the Agricultural Building in West Monroe Thursday, January 26th for a leader training meeting. Mrs. Celia Hissong, specialist, will give the training. The meeting will begin at 9:30 a.m.

The Parish Home Demonstration Council will meet Friday, January 27th at the Agricultural Building. Mrs. L. J. Bower, president, asked that I remind you to attend the meeting. The guest speaker will be Buster Crowley, juvenile officer. Mrs. Bower will appoint important committees at this meeting — so be sure to be on hand at 10:00 a.m.

FOOD COSTS

Consumers are buying more services. Ten to 20 per cent of money spent on food goes for partially or full cooked foods, according to our specialist, W. D. Curtis. It is estimated that the sales of convenience foods will double in 1961. Teenagers have become a powerful buying group. About 79 per cent of them shop for family food.

The flow of income to consumers continued to increase and was at a record height at the end of 1960 — some five to six per cent above a year ago.

A THOUGHT

State Meeting Of Landscape Group Today

The session will be that of the Louisiana Landscape Association at the Inn Hotel. The meeting will get under way at 10 a.m. with members from throughout the state holding a business session.

A session open to the public will get under way at 2 p.m., with various phases of landscape architecture being discussed by experts in different fields of work.

The experts will present their subjects with the use of colored slides. Topics to be discussed will be "Residential Landscape," by Chris Friedrichs of New Orleans; "Recreational Landscapes," by Jerry Legendre, Baton Rouge, and "What Landscape Architecture Can Mean to You," by Armand Brunet, associate professor of landscape architecture at Louisiana State University.

At the conclusion of the program a question and answer period will be held.

THE HOME SHIFT

By MILDRED SWIFT

The little old fashioned paper narcissus are in bloom. Many of you used such blooms in your homes for Christmas. This is one of our most satisfactory bulbs, demanding little care, blooming for us when there are no other flowers in the garden. A few of these narcissus planted later this summer should give you good performance next December and January.

NANDINA

Few shrubs give us so much for so little — as does the nandina. Easy of culture, hardy to cold, growing in most any type soil, this plant is grown primarily for its berries. However the five foot high, 30 inch spread plant is a very beautiful upright evergreen, if kept pruned. It is used as a speciman plant, hedge or screen. Its leaves turn a beautiful red with cold weather, too. The coloration of both berries and leaves is more noticeable in the colder weather.

PROPAGATION

Propagation of nandina is accomplished by rooting stolons or underground stems from November through March. Put stolons outdoors in a cutting bed situated in a protected place. Rooting media can be sharp sand or sand and peat moss.

The plant has divided leaves; about May it produces terminal clusters of small white flowers, succeeded by berries. Birds eat these when other food is scarce.

CULTURE

Nandina is of easy culture, but must be kept pruned Now is a good time to do this pruning. Cut out all old looking canes, leaving only the shorter young ones. Cut these old stems within an inch of the ground.

This shrub fares well without feeding, but responds well when fed. It does not seem to be bothered by insects or disease.

Balled or burlapped nursery stock should be planted in a sunny spot with the top of the ball level with the ground. A light, well - drained loamy sandy soil, containing plenty of leaf mold is best.

SHOWY PLANT

Bridal wreath, which is the common name given to various specias of spirea, is a good background shrub for this area. This plant grows three to four feet high and is deciduous. It makes a "showy and snowy" shrub since it is covered with long sprays of white double flowers for several weeks in the spring, usually around azalea blooming time. The two make such a beautiful picture when in bloom at the same time. Bridal wreath flowers can be cut and taken inside but they shatter easily and are not longlasting.

This plant is not fussy as to soil and grows with little care. It responds to fertilization, but gives you gorgeous blooms if not fed. I have plants growing and thriving in clay soil and some in a rich loamy soil. They do not require a mulch, but the bed is easier kept if a mulch is used. Bridal wreath seems free of insects and disease.

PRUNING

Pruning is necessary after the bridal wreath blooms. Each year take out a few of the oldest canes, right down where they come out of the ground. New growth will come out here and you'll have blooms all the way to the ground next year. Top-notch pruning should never be done.

Now, while bridal wreath is dormant is the time to plant. Blooms come in singles and doubles. The old - fashioned double variety, to me, is the prettiest. It weeps so beautifully when in bloom. There's a late flowering group that has pink or reddish flowers.

GARDEN HINTS

The shrimp plant is a most satisfactory perennial that blooms over a long period of time. The nurseries will have these a little later. The plant bloom is the color of shrimp.

We usually think of the primrose as a house plant, but there's a variety that is hardy enough to plant outside. Many are evergreen. They come in most all colors and are lovely for low planting where you want color. Plant these in February

Start thinking about gladiolus bulbs, the varieties you want. You'll plant these the last of February, but you can be deciding on just what you want, now.

If you plan to have sweepeas for the sweet girl graduate, you can still plant these seed. They're large, (the seed) and can be planted while the soil is still rather wet and heavy. This is not true of tiny seed. They'll be packed and lost if the soil is too wet.

YOUR SERVANTS

You have many servants. Every electric motor in your home is a servant and many more will be added in 1961. Let's look into the next year's picture of what to look for in electric pleasure, convenience, luxury and comfort. A transistor radio in your glasses with set concealed in the side pieces — or if you prefer to carry your entertainment in your handbag in 1961, you'll be able to buy a transistor radio that weighs only 10¼ ounces and is only as large as a king size package of cigarettes.

In the next decade we can expect radio and TV to be producing sound with depth. (stereophonic sound).

Professionals tell us that electronic ovens, one day will be roasting meats and baking cakes in a matter of seconds. In your future also is a system that lets you dial your range by telephone from a distant point and start it cooking dinner.

A new range in 1961 will barbecue over glowing ceramic coals.

HINTS

If you make a suit or coat yourself, you might do well to make a muslin test copy first. This has several purposes. It gives you the opportunity to check the fit of the pattern and the need for pattern alterations. With the test copy, you discover before it is too late whether the design looks well on your figure, and whether the coat feels comfortable. You can also gain some practice in construction details which will add to your confidence, when you begin actual work on the wool garment.

Press satin very carefully, because it can easily take on a flat, overpressed look. Always protect it with a light press cloth and press on the wrong side.

It's much harder to be smart in a size 46 than a size 16. It isn't as difficult as it used to be, though, thanks to the many little tricks used by clever designers who neatly solve the large figure problems. Light weight wools are recommended by these designers for the large figure — sold colors — clothes that do not accentuate the large waistline, careful selection of any prints used, three-quarter sleeves, just below the elbow and not too short skirts.

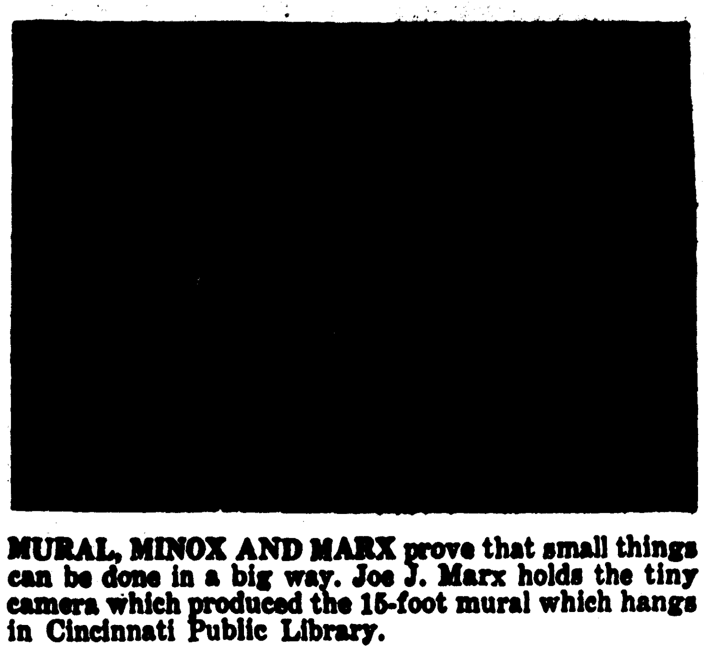
CITY'S SKYLINE

Large Mural Product Of Smallest Camera



MURAL, MINOX AND MARX prove that small things can be done in a big way. Joe J. Marx holds the tiny camera which produced the 15-foot mural which hangs in Cincinnati Public Library.

By IRVING DESFOR
AP Newsfeatures

Photo enthusiast Joe J. Marx of Loveland, Ohio, is a tiny-camera fan who does small things in a great way.

He proved this recently by making probably the largest mural ever taken by the smallest camera. The result is on public view in the Cincinnati Public Library: a 15 - foot panorama of the city's skyline photographed with a sub-miniature camera. The original scene was shot on four negatives each of which measured less than half an inch.

ACHIEVEMENTS

I know Joe Marx from his previous achievements in the ultra-miniature field. For two years in a row he took the first prize awards in the national Minox photo contests. He couldn't do it a third time, however, because in 1960 they asked him to become a judge in the contest.

But what spurred him on to his recent feat?

"I had often studied a 40-foot daguerrotype mural on permanent display in the library," Marx explained. "It was a view of Cincinnati's waterfront taken from the Kentucky side in 1848, enlarged from eight daguerrotypes, each 4 x 5 inches.

" 'What tremendous changes have taken place since then,' I thought. 'The city . . . cameras.' Why not use the smallest, most modern camera to take the same picture? What a challenge!"

With this goal in mind, did Marx rush down to the river's edge, camera in hand, shooting in all directions like a Roman candle?

No, he went back to the library to look up some photo books. Till now he had specialized in close-ups and human interest pictures and he realized a little research was in order. He found some helpful information in the Focal Encyclopedia, a British publication, which has been put out in a new desk edition distributed in this country by Macmillan Co., New York.

TRIPOD NEEDED

He learned that to make a good panorama, a tripod must be used, something he had never used before with a Minox. In addition, it would require a carpenter's spirit level to make sure that the film plane remained absolutely vertical in each of the separate exposures. Without it, the Ohio River might run up hill at the extreme edges of the picture.

Marx made the enlargements for the mural in his own bathroom - darkroom, printing 30x36 inch panels with a slight overlap at each edge. Not having big enough trays, he worked on a waxed masonite board set in the bathtub. He sloshed on the developer with a big sponge and controlled the rate of processing with a garden hose. He sponged on the hypo too and hosed the prints for washing.

In mounting, the shorelines of each panel had to meet and the light and dark tones had to match. The final assembly was on a 15-foot masonite board.

SPECIAL PROJECT

"But this was a special project, off its usual beat," he says. "I think it shows up best in everyday - picture - taking. An ultra miniature camera is portable, concealable and available.

"Obviously you can't get pictures if you don't have a camera at hand when you run across something unexpectedly. And many another good picture has been lost because the camera, if it is on hand, is too obvious.

"Look at me now. Would you know that I'm carrying three Minox cameras and a flash unit under my jacket? One is loaded with a fast film, one with slow film and one with color. I'm prepared for anything and my pictures won't look posed because they aren't posed.

"For a final bit of advice to other camera fans, I'd say this: Shoot more close-ups. Select one important person, thing or detail and concentrate on it. Make it an exercise for one whole roll of film . . . nothing but close - ups. See if you don't like the results."

SOUTHERN GARDENER

By WILLIAM LANIER HUNT

If you want an absolutely impenetrable hedge through which no animal will venture to go, then plant one of the evergreen barberries. Two of these, at least, are available in southern nurseries: Julien's and Sargent's barberries.

Although they have not been plentiful, gardeners and plant lovers have come to know them since their arrival some 20 years ago.

REDDISH CANES

The Sargent barberry looks much like Julian's barberry, but has reddish new canes. The foliage is more shiny and the berries not as bluish as those on Julian's. These plants are nearly interchangeable as far as their uses are concerned. One of the most delightful things about both of them is the occurrence of red leaves, here and there over the bushes in contrast to the fine evergreen foliage. In some seasons, too, whole bushes will turn fiery red or rosy tones mixed with green.

As hedge plants, these two barberries are ideal because, - except under the worst conditions of starvation and drouth, they are fitted out with dense leaves and formidable prickles right down to the ground. So terrible are the three - pronged prickles that nurserymen hate to handle them. Those who wish to have birds and cats at the same time need not worry about the birds in these prickly bushes.

Just now, after the season when red berries were so popular, the small bunches of blue-grey fruits on Julian's and the darker ones of Sargent's barberries are some of the most attractive things in the winter landscape. Birds do not seem to eat the fruits until later on in early spring.

With no pruning, these shrubs will become dense masses up to eight or ten feet tall. The famous "Chinese" Wilson of the Arnold Arboretum in Boston introduced both of these fine shrubs to cultivation from western China in 1900 and 1907, when the firm of James Veitch of England sent him to that country. He introduced, during these years, still other fine evergreen barberries, a very few of which found their way into our southern nurseries. All of them are elegant plants with evergreen leaves and bluish or black berries.

GARDEN CENTER NOTES

Tips Given On Planting

By MARY M. JARDINE

By GLADYS M. KULCKE
Guest Writer

Facts to observe if you are planting trees — fruit trees, shade trees, flowering trees and shrubs:

If you want to shade your terrace plant a light foliage tree that will reduce glare, but will not cut off the light in your house. The locusts are ideal trees for this purpose. They are widely planted for decorative purposes and are easily transplanted.

The best time to plant trees is on a cloudy, windless day. Get the holes dug and all equipment ready before planting. Trees that have been dug up should be planted in holes bigger than the earth ball around the roots and set in slightly below the ground level.

HEELED

Trees and shrubs that are obtained from a nursery should be heeled into a trench in the garden if they cannot be planted immediately, but should never be delayed too long. Roots of any tree or shrub should be kept wet during the time of transplanting. After the protective coverings are removed it should be covered with a coating of wet mud or wet gunny sacks. If the tree is small enough it can be dipped into a large container so that the roots are thoroughly covered with wet mud or water. The earth should be pressed down firmly about the roots as the hole is filled. Use your foot to firm the earth well. When the hole is three - quarters filled with soil, fill with water. When it is absorbed fill again. Fill with soil and pile it in a mound around the base of the tree.

A shallow trench should be dug around the outside limits of the hole that has been dug for a transplanted tree. This trench will collect rain and moisture. When watering trees soak the ground thoroughly. Let the water run slowly. Mulch newly planted trees for the first year. This will keep the ground moist and prevent weeds from growing.

FEATURED

A composition used as a room divider was made by Mrs. Robert Bealle. She used a pumpkin colored, boat shaped compote, placed on a wooden base. The crescent design was made with the curved branches of eucalyptus. Pumpkin colored grapes were placed in the focal area on one side of the arrangement, and a bunch of lime green grapes formed the focal area on the opposite side. Large leaves of ivy were tucked to cover the voids in the focal areas.

Mrs. William Easley and Mrs. Robert Tyler chose a round brown compota placed on a round brown straw mat. The S design was made by curved branches of eucalyptus. The upright curved line was strengthened by dried aspisditiea. A cluster of green plastic grapes extended down out of the bowl. A pomegranate accented the point of interest. A longlasting composition of interesting color combination.

Broadway Play Role Helps Unite Actor And Uncle

Henry J. Watson, a brother of Spinetti's mother, came to this country from Wales in 1913, long before the birth of the young actor. When Watson and his wife learned the player would be here in "The Hostage," they came from Rochester, N.Y., for a get-acquainted visit.

Music Ministry Goal Established

NASHVILLE, Tenn. (AP) — Southern Baptist state music secretaries, seminary deans and the denomination's Sunday School Board have set as a goal the establishment of "an organized music ministery in every church and mission."

EXTENSION NEWS

Now Is Time For Planting

Now is an excellent time to plant the tree that you, Mrs. Homemaker, have been wanting. Dogwood is one of the loveliest. Every year thousands are lost because they are difficult to grow. When transplanted from a wooded area to the average home grounds, nursery grown dogwood trees are a far safer bet for transplanting.

In its natural situation, dogwood grows in a group of trees where it is shaded and sheltered by larger hardwood trees. It spreads its roots through the top soil in search of nutrients and moisture. In transplanting, this loose root system is usually badly damaged, and the tree is forced to adapt itself to heavier soil and more sunlight than it is accustomed to. It is also likely that it is planted somewhat deeper than it was. These things make survival difficult.

COMPARABLE

The nursery grown dogwood has been raised in a situation more comparable to home grounds. Its roots have been clipped back to make them develop in a more compact form than wild dogwood roots. Balled and burlapped, these trees can be moved without damage and chances of survival are many times greater. Be sure to plant the tree the same depth as it grew in the nursery. Burlap need not be removed in transplanting.

Under most circumstances nursery grown dogwood is a better investment. Though the tree you get from the woods may be free, if it does not live it means your time and effort is wasted and its beauty is lost from the wild site where it thrived.

SPRAYERS

Perhaps you, Mrs. Homemaker, are planning to buy a new sprayer to use in your fight against the insects and diseases this spring and summer in your garden. Our specialist, Kenneth Koch, advises that many sprayers will corrode very rapidly when using the many new pesticides. To reduce this corrosion, Koch advises buying a sprayer that's made of stainless steel which is resistant to corrosion. The department of agriculture engineering at the University of Manitoba, Canada reported that 21 different metal samples were exposed to seven different pesticides and that stainless steel showed no change. So if you are buying a new sprayer or if you need new parts for your old sprayer, you can't go wrong on stainless steel, if it is available.

H. D. NEWS

The guest speaker will be Buster Crowley, juvenile officer. Mrs. Bower will appoint important committees at this meeting — so be sure to be on hand at 10:00 a.m.

FOOD COSTS

Consumers are buying more services. Ten to 20 per cent of money spent on food goes for partially or full cooked foods, according to our specialist, W. D. Curtis. It is estimated that the sales of convenience foods will double in 1961. Teenagers have become a powerful buying group. About 79 per cent of them shop for family food.

The flow of income to consumers continued to increase and was at a record height at the end of 1960 — some five to six per cent above a year ago.

A THOUGHT

Kennedy, Ike Recall D-Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television viewers wondered Friday what outgoing President Eisenhower and incoming President Kennedy were chatting about as they sat side by side at the inaugural ceremony.

The general and the onetime Navy PT boat skipper, White House sources said Saturday, were talking about D-Day in World War II when the Eisenhower-led forces landed on the coast of France.

The discussion touched mainly on why the German forces were deployed as they were at the time and whether the Nazi divisions should have been located differently. Kennedy is a veteran of the Pacific rather than the European phase of the war.

Eisenhower and Kennedy also talked cordially while they rode together from the White House to the Capitol.

To Collaborate

Laos Leaders Hold Session On Defense

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Premier Prince Boun Oum and Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, main military prop of his pro-Western regime, flew to Luang Prabang Saturday for a high defense council meeting with King Savang Vathana.

Amid reports of a stepped-up offensive by the pro-Communist rebels, Information Minister Bouavan Norasing told newsmen the council meeting is "routine." He declined to say whether the military situation had grown worse.

The United States meanwhile is stopping shipment of weapons any more advanced than the single-engine armed training planes that have arrived here. The six T6 Harvard trainers, one of which has been shot down, make up the Laotian air force.

But R. J. Boyle, a former brigadier general who heads the U. S. Program Evaluation Office, said Washington does not want to introduce more sophisticated weapons "unless Russia ups the ante." The Soviet Union has been parachuting supplies to the rebels.

There are no plans to fly in more planes for the Laotian air force, he said, except that, "We are prepared to replace the one they have lost."

The PEO is composed of former U. S. military men who say they give only technical training in the use of American weapons to the Laotians. They are not supposed to give any tactical advice in the field although they go out with government units fighting the rebels.

The information minister confirmed earlier reports and said the rebels had advanced against Tha Thom, 40 miles southwest of Xieng Khouang. He claimed government troops had recaptured Tha Thom Saturday morning. They were driven out of it last week by a rebel attack that scattered government troops and broke up plans for a counterblow against the rebel concentrations in the central Plaines des Jarres.

Congo Ransom Frees Belgians, Others Seized

LEOPOLDVILLE (UPI) — Followers of deposed premier Patrice Lumumba released 12 Belgians from jail Saturday in Stanleyville on payment of a $10,000 ransom and then immediately arrested a dozen more.

United Nations sources said three of the nine Belgian men released had been beaten and kicked by Lumumbists but that three Belgian women with them apparently were not molested.

The new terror against whites in the Congo broke out after Lumumba was flown from a jail in Thysville, brutally beaten by Katanga soldiers and jailed near Elisabethville.

More than 1,000 Belgians are still in Stanleyville, a Lumumba stronghold, or surrounding Oriental Province. They raised the ransom to free their comrades and appealed to the United Nations to do something about it.

But Stanleyville authorities replied by asking the United Nations why it was not equally persistent in trying to get Lumumba released.

U.N. officials said the Stanleyville rulers, after releasing the first group of Belgians, arrested the entire 12-man staff of a Belgian office there and were feared to have locked up other Europeans as well.

Kennedy, Ike Recall D-Day

WASHINGTON (AP) — Television viewers wondered Friday what outgoing President Eisenhower and incoming President Kennedy were chatting about as they sat side by side at the inaugural ceremony.

The general and the onetime Navy PT boat skipper, White House sources said Saturday, were talking about D-Day in World War II when the Eisenhower-led forces landed on the coast of France.

The discussion touched mainly on why the German forces were deployed as they were at the time and whether the Nazi divisions should have been located differently. Kennedy is a veteran of the Pacific rather than the European phase of the war.

Eisenhower and Kennedy also talked cordially while they rode together from the White House to the Capitol.

To Collaborate

Laos Leaders Hold Session On Defense

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—Premier Prince Boun Oum and Gen. Phoumi Nosavan, main military prop of his pro-Western regime, flew to Luang Prabang Saturday for a high defense council meeting with King Savang Vathana.

Amid reports of a stepped-up offensive by the pro-Communist rebels, Information Minister Bouavan Norasing told newsmen the council meeting is "routine." He declined to say whether the military situation had grown worse.

The United States meanwhile is stopping shipment of weapons any more advanced than the single-engine armed training planes that have arrived here. The six T6 Harvard trainers, one of which has been shot down, make up the Laotian air force.

But R. J. Boyle, a former brigadier general who heads the U. S. Program Evaluation Office, said Washington does not want to introduce more sophisticated weapons "unless Russia ups the ante." The Soviet Union has been parachuting supplies to the rebels.

There are no plans to fly in more planes for the Laotian air force, he said, except that, "We are prepared to replace the one they have lost."

The PEO is composed of former U. S. military men who say they give only technical training in the use of American weapons to the Laotians. They are not supposed to give any tactical advice in the field although they go out with government units fighting the rebels.

The information minister confirmed earlier reports and said the rebels had advanced against Tha Thom, 40 miles southwest of Xieng Khouang. He claimed government troops had recaptured Tha Thom Saturday morning. They were driven out of it last week by a rebel attack that scattered government troops and broke up plans for a counterblow against the rebel concentrations in the central Plaines des Jarres.

AT GETTYSBURG

Eisenhowers Get 'Welcome Home'

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Gettysburg rolled out the welcome mat Saturday for a couple named Eisenhower who have set up housekeeping in a big farm house down the road a piece.

"He seems anxious to be in a warmer climate," said Oren H. Wilson, president of the board of trustees of the Gettysburg Presbyterian church.

The matter of transferring the Eisenhowers memberships from the National Presbyterian church in Washington to the Gettysburg church took little time, but Ike was in a reminiscent and mellow mood. Wilson stayed on while the ex-president for a day talked of many things.

Eisenhower seemed surprised that nearly a dozen reporters and photographers were on hand. "How many of you are still around?" he asked.

Despite the cold, Eisenhowr appeared without an overcoat.

He wore a brown tweed suit, mustard-colored shirt, brown tie and hat, and a Texas-style hat

A single Secret Service agent, in contrast to the many who used to swarm about when Eisenhower was president, was on hand. The agent, Dick Flohr, who served as Eisenhower's driver during his eight years in the White House, explained that he was on vacation.

Residents of Gettysburg and Adams county were ready with best wishes and gifts.

One was a big sterling silver tray with this inscription:

WELCOME HOME
President and Mrs. Eisenhower
With affectionate regard and best wishes from your friends and neighbors in Gettysburg and Adams County,
Jan. 20, 1961.

Then, too, there was a sterling silver plaque which quoted from an Eisenhower statement at a news conference here Aug. 12, 1958. He made it when asked what he hoped would be accomplished by Soviet Premier Khrushchev's then forthcoming visit to this country. Eisenhower's reply is engraved on the plaque:

U.S. Sub Ends Historic Patrol

NEW LONDON, Conn. (AP)—The nuclear Polaris submarine George Washington made a triumphant return Saturday from a historic mission.

The George Washington skippered by Cmdr. James B. Osborn, was back from history's first underwater missile patrol. She had been operating in an undisclosed area for more than two months.

The submarine, with her cargo of 16 nuclear-tipped Polaris missiles intact, nosed into the Navy's State Pier in near zero weather. She was greeted by members of families of the 10 officers and 90 men crew.

The George Washington is America's first submarine designed to fire the Polaris missile from underwater or surface. She was launched in June, 1959 and commissioned six months later.

Congress Likely To Pass JFK's 5-Point Program

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy's minimum five-point 1961 legislative program appears likely to be passed before Congress quits next summer.

It is the new and different proposals he may send to Capitol Hill that Democrats and Republicans alike are awaiting with interest. Even before Friday's inauguration, committees started doing some of the spade work on the five items—depressed areas, minimum wage, housing, aid to education, and a social security health care system.

All are somewhat old hat on Capitol Hill. Both Senate and House have struggled with them in recent years, but in the face of heavy Eisenhower administration opposition to the form in which most Democrats wanted the measures passed.

Democratic leaders say the path for the bills will be smoothed immeasurably by the assurance they will be signed, and by active support for them from the executive departments concerned.

A Senate Banking subcommittee opened public hearings Wednesday on depressed areas legislation designed to furnish jobs in communities which long have suffered from high unemployment. This is likely to be the first major bill to reach Kennedy's desk.

Four Children Perish In Fire

EL DORADO, Ark. (AP) —Four Negro children died Saturday when flames destroyed their four-room frame home at Aurelle, about 30 miles southeast of here near the Arkansas-Louisiana border.

They were the children of Mr. and Mrs. George Lee Lovett, Dr. John H. Pinson Jr., Union County coroner, said. Killed were Brenda Joy, 4; Gloria Jean, 3; George Irvin, 19 months, and Vanessa Diane, 6 months.

Pinson said the father was at work and the mother had gone to a neighbor's house to get some water. There is no well at the Lovette home, Pinson said.

All four bodies were found in the wreckage of a bedroom. Also found was a kerosene can. Pinson speculated that a child had poured kerosene on embers in a wood-burning fireplace.

Castro 'Peace Bid' Terms High

HAVANA (AP)—Prime Minister Fidel Castro's offer to let bygones be bygones and start fresh with President Kennedy was accompanied by such conditions that many here feel it will receive scant welcome in Washington.

But most of the Cuban prime minister's supporters cheered his offer to "begin anew" as more proof of Castro's desire for peace and understanding with all nations.

Castro made the peace bid in a 2-hour and 10-minute "demobilization speech" Friday night to thousands of militiamen summoned to protect Cuba against an invasion from the United States that never came. An analysis Saturday showed Castro is laying down what are believed here to be impossible demands for peace with the Kennedy administration.

His asking price for a new start is complete renunciation by the United States of all forms of support for whatever groups here or abroad oppose his leftist regime.

Negro's Home Gutted By Fire

The Monroe fire department answered the call with two trucks.

No one was in the house at the time. Campbell was visiting in the house of Wiley Gaines, 301 28th St. across the street.

8 Negroes Booked In Monroe Raid

Eight Negroes were taken into custody for participating in a dice game at 310 Railroad Ave. about 8:30 last night.

Booked were Leroy Chargois, 43, 712 Coleman Ave.; Roy Brown, 74, 310 Railroad Ave.; Johnny Bennett, 63, 716 Coleman Ave.; Louis Hawkins, 50, 713 Coleman Ave.; Charley Rempo, 64, 724 Coleman Ave.; L. Body Of Missing Naval Officer Found In Wreck

LONDON (AP)—The body of a missing British naval ciphers officer was found Saturday near his wrecked auto at the bottom of a 100-foot gorge in the Scottish Highlands.

A nationwide search had been going on since New Year's day for Sub-Lieutenant Henry Drummond, 35, who had access to secret NATO documents.

The body and car were located about 10 miles from Burrelton, where Drummond's parents live. He left their house on New Year's day saying he was going to park the auto.

Police said it appeared Drummond's car had skidded on an icy corner and plunged down the gorge. Naval authorities had already discounted the possibility that he defected.

JFK Okays Sub-Cabinet Nominee List

WASHINGTON (AP)—President Kennedy Saturday formally nominated his choices for 38 sub-Cabinet and other important positions in the new administration.

All of the choices had been announced earlier by Kennedy but one, the selection of John B. Connally Jr. of Texas to be secretary of the Navy, quickly ran into opposition in the Senate.

When they reached the Senate, Majority Leader Mike Mansfield, D-Mont., announced the Senate would take up on Monday and already cleared by its committees.

Sen. Wayne Morse, D-Ore., promptly served notice that he would oppose the nomination of Connally, a Texas lawyer and former campaign manager for Vice President Lyndon B. Johnson.

Connally already has been unanimously approved by the Senate Armed Services Committee. He said he planned to continue as one of the three executors of the late Sid W. Richardson, successful oil and gas producer.

Sen. William Proxmire, D-Wis., said there "appears to be a serious conflict of interests here."

Sen. John Sherman Cooper, R-Ky., said he also has some questions about confirming Connally.

The Navy uses great quantities of oil and oil products and its secretary is custodian and manager of large naval oil reserves.

Connally told the Senate Armed Services Committee last week that his experience in the oil and gas industry, and as an attorney and agent for Richardson should "serve me in good stead" as secretary of the Navy.

He said he saw no conflict of interests in either the Richardson operations or his own investments and the committee, in approving him, apparently agreed.

Gasoline Blast Injures Worker

GREENVILLE, Miss. (AP) — A Republic Refining Co. gasoline loading dock on Lake Ferguson caught fire and exploded like a bomb Saturday.

A tankerman, James E. Chanrler, 33, of Woodlawn, Tenn., was painfully burned about the face and hands. The dock was destroyed.

A gasoline barge owned by the Three Rivers Corp. of Cairo, Ill., was pumping gasoline through the dock facilities to the tanks of the Republic company when the fire started.

Firemen and fire boats fought the blaze in near freezing weather for over two hours. The flaming gasoline barge was shoved out onto the lake, away from shore facilities.

Hoffa's Union Okays $50,000 Turkish Bath

WASHINGTON (AP)—How modest is a $50,000 Turkish bath?

Pretty modest, says the Teamsters Union, if installed in a $5-million building.

The matter became of interest when it was discovered that James R. Hoffa's big union—now more than 1,700,000 members strong—is installing such a steam bath in the union's marble and glass headquarters here.

"In a $5-million building $50,000 isn't a lot," said a Hoffa aide. "It cost over $62,000 in six months just for maintenance, supplies and service."

The Teamsters have cleared out a basement mail room to get ready for contractors to transform it with ceramic tile and fittings for baths and exercise equipment.

Having his own steam bath and gym handy is nothing new for Teamsters President Hoffa. The Teamsters public relations department said Hoffa has had such a set-up for some time at his Detroit headquarters.

Eisenhowers Get 'Welcome Home'

GETTYSBURG, Pa. (AP)—Gettysburg rolled out the welcome mat Saturday for a couple named Eisenhower who have set up housekeeping in a big farm house down the road a piece.

A big "welcome home" party was arranged for neighbors Dwight and Mamie Eisenhower, to cap a day in which the 70-year-old former president relaxed and reminisced.

The burdens of the presidency cast aside after eight years, Eisenhower appeared to have only one worry—the bitter cold weather.

"He seems anxious to be in a warmer climate," said Oren H. Wilson, president of the board of trustees of the Gettysburg Presbyterian church.

The matter of transferring the Eisenhowers memberships from the National Presbyterian church in Washington to the Gettysburg church took little time, but Ike was in a reminiscent and mellow mood. Wilson stayed on while the ex-president for a day talked of many things.

Eisenhower seemed surprised that nearly a dozen reporters and photographers were on hand. "How many of you are still around?" he asked.

Despite the cold, Eisenhowr appeared without an overcoat.

He wore a brown tweed suit, mustard-colored shirt, brown tie and hat, and a Texas-style hat

A single Secret Service agent, in contrast to the many who used to swarm about when Eisenhower was president, was on hand. The agent, Dick Flohr, who served as Eisenhower's driver during his eight years in the White House, explained that he was on vacation.

Residents of Gettysburg and Adams county were ready with best wishes and gifts.

One was a big sterling silver tray with this inscription:

WELCOME HOME
President and Mrs. Eisenhower
With affectionate regard and best wishes from your friends and neighbors in Gettysburg and Adams County,
Jan. 20, 1961.

Then, too, there was a sterling silver plaque which quoted from an Eisenhower statement at a news conference here Aug. 12, 1959. He made it when asked what he hoped would be accomplished by Soviet Premier Khrushchev's then forthcoming visit to this country. Eisenhower's reply is engraved on the plaque:

A tankerman, James E. Chaarler, 33, of Woodlawn, Tenn., was painfully burned about the face and hands. The dock was destroyed.

A gasoline barge owned by the Three Rivers Corp. of Cairo, Ill., was pumping gasoline through the dock facilities to the tanks of the Republic company when the fire started.

Firemen and fire boats fought the blaze in near freezing weather for over two hours. The flaming gasoline barge was shoved out onto the lake, away from shore facilities.

No immediate estimate of damage was available.

Hoffa's Union Okays $50,000 Turkish Bath

WASHINGTON (AP)—How modest is a $50,000 Turkish bath?

Pretty modest, says the Teamsters Union, if installed in a $5-million building.

The matter became of interest when it was discovered that James R. Hoffa's big union—now more than 1,700,000 members strong—is installing such a steam bath in the union's marble and glass headquarters here.

"In a $5-million building $50,000 isn't a lot," said a Hoffa aide. "It cost over $50,000 in six months just for maintenance, supplies and service."

The Teamsters have cleared out a basement mail room to get ready for contractors to transform it with ceramic tile and fittings for baths and exercise equipment.

Having his own steam bath and gym handy is nothing new for Teamsters President Hoffa. The Teamsters public relations department said Hoffa has had such a set-up for some time at his Detroit headquarters.

My Answer

By Billy Graham

QUESTION: I am wondering if I should continue to pray for a certain person who for a long time has been very unGodly. Then the other day I read a verse that says something about not praying for a certain kind of sin. Does this mean I might be praying the wrong way or for the wrong way or for the wrong thing?

ANSWER: Definitely no You do not have reason to stop praying so long as you have the least concern for another person. The Bible verse that troubles you is found in I John 5:16. It says, "If any man see his brother sinning a sin not unto death, he shall ask, and God will give him life for them that sin not unto death. There is a sin unto death: not concerning this do I say that he should make request." Do not try to make that scripture more complicated than it is. The writer is evidently saying that as long as a person has not continued his sinning until he is dead, or as long as he is still alive, we ought to pray with assurance. But when that person persists in his sinning until he dies, we have no further reason or justification for praying. Praying after death is futile. A man's eternal destiny is fixed during this life, and neither he, nor his remaining friends can alter it when death has come.

Jesus said, "He that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live." Death cannot sever our relationship to Jesus. He said, "Whosoever liveth and believeth in me" that is, while physically alive come to trust in Christ, "shall never die" that means, shall never be separated from Christ. But the decision must be made while one is alive.

U. S. Delivers Planes To Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The United States has delivered two more T6 trainer-fighter planes to the pro-Western government of Laos, raising the size of this country's fledgling air force to five planes.

One of the first four planes delivered to Laos last week was shot down Tuesday by pro-Communist rebels.

The latest reinforcements arrived Thursday and are being fitted with 5-inch rockets and .30-caliber machine guns. They are expected to join the others in combat support operations against the rebel forces north of Vientiane Saturday.

My Answer

By Billy Graham

QUESTION: I am wondering if I should continue to pray for a certain person who for a long time has been very unGodly. Then the other day I read a verse that says something about not praying for a certain kind of sin. Does this mean I might be praying the wrong way or for the wrong way or for the wrong thing?

ANSWER: Definitely no. You do not have reason to stop praying so long as you have the least concern for another person. The Bible verse that troubles you is found in I John 5:16. It says, "If any man see his brother sinning a sin not unto death, he shall ask, and God will give him life for them that sin not unto death. There is a sin unto death: not concerning this do I say that he should make request." Do not try to make that scripture more complicated than it is. The writer is evidently saying that as long as a person has not continued his sinning until he is dead, or as long as he is still alive, we ought to pray with assurance. But when that person persists in his sinning until he dies, we have no further reason or justification for praying. Praying after death is futile. A man's eternal destiny is fixed during this life, and neither he, nor his remaining friends can alter it when death has come.

Jesus said, "He that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live." Death cannot sever our relationship to Jesus. He said, "Whosoever liveth and believeth in me" that is, while physically alive come to trust in Christ, "shall never die" that means, shall never be separated from Christ. But the decision must be made while one is alive.

U. S. Delivers Planes To Laos

VIENTIANE, Laos (AP)—The United States has delivered two more T6 trainer-fighter planes to the pro-Western government of Laos, raising the size of this country's fledgling air force to five planes.

One of the first four planes delivered to Laos last week was shot down Tuesday by pro-Communist rebels.

The latest reinforcements arrived Thursday and are being fitted with 5-inch rockets and .30-caliber machine guns. They are expected to join the others in combat support operations against the rebel forces north of Vientiane Saturday.
